Statute and Administrative Rule Not Composing Unconstitutional Dual Tax: Under this section, each employer is liable for state withholding taxes. If the employer fails to deduct and withhold the required amounts and the tax against which the deducted and withheld amounts would have been credited is paid, the amounts required to be deducted and withheld may not be collected from the employer. The state is not allowed to collect the same withholding taxes twice. However, under ARM 42.17.120, the employer will not be relieved from liability for the required withholding taxes unless it can show that the income tax against which the required withholdings may be credited has been paid. Here, an employer claimed that the Department of Revenue assessed both the employer and its workers for the same withholding taxes, resulting in an unconstitutional dual tax. The District Court concluded that although the statute and the administrative rule placed the burden of proving that withholding taxes were paid on the employer, they did not create a dual tax. The court noted that if the employer was in fact assessed state withholding taxes, the employer had but to show that the worker at issue also paid the tax. The Supreme Court agreed. The statutory enactments do not create a dual tax, but rather impose a burden on an employer to show that withholding taxes were paid, and if they were paid, the employer is relieved from liability so that only one tax is ultimately assessed. Case Notes

Proceeds of Multistate Lottery Ticket Purchased and Redeemed in Montana Taxed as "Income Earned in Montana" — Residency of Winner Not Determinative: The Sharps won $47 million in the multistate lottery game known as Lotto America. The Sharps, who were Montana residents when they won the lottery but later moved to Washington, challenged taxation of their earnings by the Montana Department of Revenue in a declaratory judgment action. The District Court held that all of the annual lottery payments made to the Sharps by the Montana Lottery on behalf of Lotto America were taxable as income earned in Montana. Before the Supreme Court, the Sharps argued that: (1) the version of 15-30-105 (renumbered 15-30-2104) in effect in 1991 governs their situation; (2) their annual payments from the lottery are payments in the nature of an annuity that are exempt under the 1991 version of 15-30-131(1) (renumbered 15-30-2111(1), now repealed); and (3) ARM 42.16.1113(1), exempting from taxation income from intangible personal property, applies to their situation. In beginning its analysis, the Supreme Court noted that pursuant to the statement of legislative intent in this section, no statute or administrative rule defines the proceeds of the lottery paid to the Sharps as income from intangible personal property or exempts the winnings from taxation. The Supreme Court also noted that the Department administrative rule relied upon by the Sharps cannot change a state statute and that the annual payments won by the Sharps are not an annuity or other income but are the prize itself. The Supreme Court then addressed the issue of which statute applied, holding that under the rationale of Couchot v. St. Lottery Comm'n, 659 NE 2d 1225 (Ohio 1996), certiorari denied, 519 US 810, 136 L Ed 2d 18, 117 S Ct 55 (1996), the statute in effect at the time of the annual distribution of the prize money, in this case, the 1992 version of 15-30-105 (renumbered 15-30-2104), governs the Sharps' situation. Relying upon Couchot, Harvester Co. v. Dept. of Taxation, 322 US 435 (1944), and Stark v. Comptroller, 554 A2d 458 (Md. App. 1989), the Supreme Court held that under the version of 15-30-105 (renumbered 15-30-2104), as amended by a 1992 special session of the Legislature, the Sharps' lottery winnings constitute "income earned in Montana" because they were "earned" in the state in which they were won and are therefore taxable in 1992 and subsequent years. The gross income amounts referred to in this subsection (1) must be increased by the personal exemption allowance determined in 15-30-2114 for each additional personal exemption allowance that the taxpayer is entitled to claim for the taxpayer and the taxpayer's spouse under 15-30-2114(3) and (4)"; inserted (1)(b) concerning a taxpayer that is not required to file a federal income tax return filing a Montana return; deleted former (2) that read: "(2) In accordance with instructions set forth by the department, each taxpayer who is married and living with a husband or wife and is required to file a return may, at the taxpayer's option, file a joint return with the husband or wife even though one of the spouses has neither gross income nor deductions. If a joint return is made, the tax must be computed on the aggregate taxable income and, subject to 15-30-2646, the liability with respect to the tax is joint and several. If a joint return has been filed for a tax year, the spouses may not file separate returns after the time for filing the return of either has expired unless the department consents"; in (5) near end after "tables based on the" substituted "Montana income tax structure" for "adjusted base year structure"; and made minor changes in style. Taxpayer Properly Held in Contempt for Refusal to File Income Tax Returns — Privilege Against Self-Incrimination No Defense: Gillispie failed to file an income tax return for 4 years. The District Court ordered her to file the returns or to show cause why she should not be required to file them. At the hearing, the Department of Revenue introduced Gillispie's W-2 forms, which showed that she had made the minimum income necessary to require her to file returns. The District Court ordered her to file the returns or be found in contempt. When Gillispie failed to file the returns, the District Court held her in contempt, and Gillispie filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus with the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court held that the District Court had jurisdiction to order Gillispie to file the returns and jurisdiction to hold Gillispie in contempt and that the District Court also had sufficient evidence to do so. The Supreme Court also held that Gillispie's privilege against self-incrimination does not justify the outright refusal to file a return and cannot be used as a method of evading payment of lawful taxes. The Supreme Court held that she must demonstrate the specific parts of the returns that would result in self-incrimination. Gillispie v. Sherlock, 279 M 21, 929 P2d 199, 53 St. Rep. 507 (1996).

Tax Withholding Statement Irrelevant: In a prosecution for failure to file proper tax returns, it was proper for the court to refuse to admit into evidence a tax withholding statement, although evidence of defendant's income was admitted. The payment of taxes by withholding was irrelevant to the issue of whether proper returns were filed and could have confused the jury. St. v. Poncelet, 187 M 528, 610 P2d 698 (1980).

Venue for Failure to File Tax Returns: Tax returns are required to be filed with the Department of Revenue. The department is required to be located in Helena, Montana. Section 46-3-101 (renumbered 46-3-111) provides that in all criminal prosecutions, trial shall be in the county where the offense was committed. The offense charged here was failure to properly file tax returns, so that venue was properly with Lewis and Clark County where Helena is located. St. v. Poncelet, 187 M 528, 610 P2d 698 (1980).

Failure to File Tax Return — Venue: Venue of a criminal action charging intentional failure to file a properly completed Montana individual income tax return would lie in either Lewis & Clark County or the county in which defendants reside. But, since the complaint was filed in the former and no legal justification or prejudice was shown to support transfer, the Supreme Court reversed the District Court's change of venue from Lewis & Clark County. Dept. of Revenue v. Lane, 187 M 230, 609 P2d 300 (1980), following St. v. Bretz, 169 M 505, 548 P2d 949 (1976).

Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 131, L. 1985, provided: "A statement of intent is necessary for this act in order to clarify the type of notice the legislature intends to be given to applicants for public assistance by the department of social and rehabilitation services [now department of public health and human services]. It is the intent of the legislature that the notice may be contained in the initial release of confidential information which an applicant signs when applying for public assistance. The notice shall be reasonably simple and specific as to the type of information obtainable.

It is the further intent of the legislature that rules adopted by the department of revenue to implement this act may not be burdensome to the department of social and rehabilitation services [now department of public health and human services] in obtaining the information so long as the notice has been given. The department of revenue shall cooperate with the department of social and rehabilitation services [now department of public health and human services] in achieving the purpose of this act, which is to allow easy access to information obtainable from other sources in order to reduce fraud in obtaining public assistance."

Common Carrier Employee Tax Information to Be Supplied to Department of Revenue: While 49 U.S.C. 11504 fixes the mandatory duties of employers engaged in interstate commerce to withhold taxes and to file reports respecting earnings in any particular state, that section does not prohibit the furnishing of earnings information at the request of the state or under a properly issued administrative subpoena. Therefore, the Department of Revenue may by administrative subpoena obtain information relating to Montana earnings from an interstate rail carrier respecting its employees, even though the carrier is not obliged to withhold Montana state income tax. Chapter 439 also substituted "any portion of such tax is not paid when due" for "any portion of such tax is not paid within 60 days after the same becomes due"; substituted "the department may issue a warrant for distraint as provided in Title 15, chapter 1, part 7" for a procedure where the department was required to issue a warrant directed to the sheriff to levy upon and sell the property of the taxpayer; deleted subsections (2), (3), and (4), the text of which may be found in sec. 1, Ch. 167, L. 1979.

Attorney General's Opinions

Collection of Delinquent Income Taxes of Nonresidents Employed by Foreign Corporation Doing Business in Montana: The salaries or wages of nonresidents employed by a foreign corporation doing business in Montana may be considered to be property within the state for the purpose of levying a warrant for distraint for unpaid state income taxes. Requiring the foreign corporation to honor the levy does not offend the notions of "fair play and substantial justice" which govern assertions of both jurisdiction in personam and jurisdiction in rem. 41 A.G. Attorney General's Opinions

Servicepersons — Registration to Vote — Tax Liability: The fact that a member of the military service has registered to vote in Montana is evidence, though not conclusive proof, that he is a Montana resident and is thus not exempt, under the federal Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act of 1940, from property and income taxation by Montana. Montana's election law requires one to be a resident of Montana before voting in the state's elections, so a serviceperson who has registered to vote in Montana (thereby claiming to be a resident) may not claim tax exemption under the federal Act without offering convincing evidence that he is in fact not a Montana resident after all. However, to claim he is not in fact a resident after having registered to vote in Montana would subject him to prosecution for the misdemeanor of fraudulent registration. 41 A.G. Op. 2 (1985).

Taxpayer Properly Held in Contempt for Refusal to File Income Tax Returns — Privilege Against Self-Incrimination No Defense: Gillispie failed to file an income tax return for 4 years. The District Court ordered her to file the returns or to show cause why she should not be required to file them. At the hearing, the Department of Revenue introduced Gillispie's W-2 forms, which showed that she had made the minimum income necessary to require her to file returns. The District Court ordered her to file the returns or be found in contempt. When Gillispie failed to file the returns, the District Court held her in contempt, and Gillispie filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus with the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court held that the District Court had jurisdiction to order Gillispie to file the returns and jurisdiction to hold Gillispie in contempt and that the District Court also had sufficient evidence to do so. The Supreme Court also held that Gillispie's privilege against self-incrimination does not justify the outright refusal to file a return and cannot be used as a method of evading payment of lawful taxes. The Supreme Court held that she must demonstrate the specific parts of the returns that would result in self-incrimination. Gillispie v. Sherlock, 279 M 21, 929 P2d 199, 53 St. Rep. 507 (1996).

15-30-2642. Notice of additional assessment — penalty and interest for deficiency.

Compiler's Comments

2005 Amendment: Chapter 594 deleted former (1) and (2) that read: "(1) If the payment required by 15-30-142(6) is not made within 60 days or if the understatement is due to negligence on the part of the taxpayer but without fraud, the penalty imposed in 15-1-216(1)(c) must be added to the amount of the deficiency. Interest on the additional assessment must be computed as provided in 15-1-216. Except as otherwise provided in this subsection, the interest in all cases must be computed from the date the return and tax were originally due as distinguished from the due date as it may have been extended to the date of payment.

(2) If the time for filing a return is extended, the taxpayer shall pay in addition interest on the tax due, as provided in 15-1-216, from the time when the return was originally required to be filed to the time of payment"; and inserted (1) and (2) related to notice of additional tax and penalties and interest. Amendment effective July 1, 2005.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 594, L. 2005, provided: "WHEREAS, the Fifty-Sixth Legislature enacted legislation establishing uniform provisions for the assessment of penalties for late filings of tax returns and other statements and for assessing penalty and interest for delinquent taxes and fees under Titles 15 and 16 of the Montana Code Annotated and certain other taxes and fees; and

WHEREAS, the uniform assessment provisions related to penalties and interest do not apply to every tax or fee imposed under Title 15 and administered by the Department of Revenue; and

WHEREAS, the Department of Revenue's Integrated Revenue Information System is designed to ensure that the state's tax laws are applied fairly and consistently; and

WHEREAS, it is in the best interest of the State of Montana and taxpayers to expand the application of the uniform method of assessing penalties and interest."

Applicability: Section 43, Ch. 594, L. 2005, provided: "(1) Except as provided in subsections (2) and (3), [this act] applies on and after July 1, 2005.

(2) [Section 3] [15-1-216, version effective January 1, 2007] applies to penalties assessed against taxes or fees due for tax reporting periods beginning after December 31, 2006.

(3) [Section 3] [15-1-216, version effective January 1, 2007] applies to interest computed under 15-1-216 assessed on taxes or fees owing after December 31, 2006, regardless of the tax reporting period for which the taxes or fees are owed."

1999 Amendment: Chapter 427 in (1) substituted "the penalty imposed in 15-1-216(1)(c) must be added to the amount of the deficiency. Interest on the additional assessment must be computed as provided in 15-1-216" for "there shall be added to the amount of the deficiency 5% thereof; provided, however, that no deficiency penalty shall be less than $2. Interest will be computed at the rate of 9% per annum or fraction thereof on the additional assessment"; in (2) substituted "on the tax due as provided in 15-1-216" for "thereon at the rate of 9% per annum"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective January 1, 2000.

Applicability: Section 57, Ch. 427, L. 1999, provided that this section applies to all tax periods beginning after December 31, 1999.

Case Notes

Failure to File Tax Returns — Statute of Limitations: Prosecution for failure to file state tax returns is a criminal prosecution differing from the civil action under 15-30-322 (now repealed) for collection of unpaid taxes. The failure to file tax returns is a misdemeanor, and as such is subject to the 1-year Statute of Limitations of 45-1-205. The state is barred from prosecuting for failure to file proper returns for the period prior to 1 year before commencing prosecution. St. v. Poncelet, 187 M 528, 610 P2d 698 (1980).

Giving of Sandstrom Instruction as Error: The giving of the Sandstrom instruction which states that a person intends the ordinary consequences of his voluntary acts, was prejudicial and harmful in this case, concerning failure to file proper state tax returns. The instruction when read with the body of instructions could be interpreted as allowing the jury no discretion and directing them to find the element of intent. St. v. Poncelet, 187 M 528, 610 P2d 698 (1980).

Judge to Instruct Jury on Law — Testimony of Constitutional Expert Excluded: The interpretation and application of the U.S. Constitution was a question of law and not a fact in issue in a prosecution for failure to file proper state tax returns. It was a determination to be made by the trial judge within his statutory powers. Instructing the jury on the law necessary for the jury's rendering of a verdict in a criminal case is a duty within the exclusive province of the trial judge. It was proper to exclude the testimony of an expert on the U.S. Constitution. St. v. Poncelet, 187 M 528, 610 P2d 698 (1980).

Pleading Fifth Amendment as a Defense: State tax returns which are signed, but submitted with a blanket assertion of the persons' fifth amendment privilege, are not properly filed returns as provided by law. Neither is the blanket assertion of privilege under the fifth amendment a proper defense. St. v. Poncelet, 187 M 528, 610 P2d 698 (1980).

Proper Limitation on Voir Dire — Religious Beliefs: In a prosecution for failure to file proper tax returns, it was within the trial court judge's discretion to restrict defendant from inquiring into the religious beliefs of the prospective jurors. Given the wide discretion allowed a trial judge, the lack of relevancy of religion to the issues at bar, and the permitted inquiry into the jurors' general belief in God, the limitation was proper. St. v. Poncelet, 187 M 528, 610 P2d 698 (1980).

Tax Withholding Statement Irrelevant: In a prosecution for failure to file proper tax returns, it was proper for the court to refuse to admit into evidence tax withholding statement, although evidence of defendant's income was admitted. The payment of taxes by withholding was irrelevant to the issue of whether proper returns were filed and could have confused the jury. St. v. Poncelet, 187 M 528, 610 P2d 698 (1980).

Venue for Failure to File Tax Returns: Tax returns are required to be filed with the Department of Revenue. The Department is required to be located in Helena, Montana. Section 46-3-101 (renumbered 46-3-111) provides that in all criminal prosecutions, trial shall be in the county where the offense was committed. The offense charged here was failure to properly file tax returns, so that venue was properly with Lewis and Clark County where Helena is located. St. v. Poncelet, 187 M 528, 610 P2d 698 (1980).

Failure to File Tax Return — Venue: Venue of a criminal action charging intentional failure to file a properly completed Montana individual income tax return would lie in either Lewis and Clark County or the county in which defendants reside. But, since the complaint was filed in the former and no legal justification or prejudice was shown to support transfer, the Supreme Court reversed the District Court's change of venue from Lewis and Clark County. Dept. of Revenue v. Lane, 187 M 230, 609 P2d 300 (1980), following St. v. Bretz, 169 M 505, 548 P2d 949 (1976).

Inadvertent Failure to Pay When Filing Return: The provision of 15-30-2641 (now repealed), prior to the 1955 amendment, that any person failing to pay tax on due date was allowed 60 days in which to pay tax with only a 5% penalty did not prevent assessment of the 100% penalty after the termination of such period, notwithstanding the fact that the taxpayer failed to include payment due to mistake, inadvertence, and excusable neglect. Stewart v. St., 135 M 323, 340 P2d 151 (1959).

Constitutionality Prior to Amendment: The double penalty imposed under subsection (2) of 15-30-2641 (now repealed), before the 1955 amendment, did not violate Art. III, sec. 20 and 27, 1889 Mont. Const. (now Art. II, sec. 22 and 17, 1972 Mont. Const.) as an excessive fine or the taking of property without due process of law. State ex rel. Hardy v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 133 M 43, 319 P2d 1061 (1958).

Case Notes

Innocent Spouse Tax Determination Not Preclusive — Marital Dissolution Proceeding: Prior to their divorce, the husband and wife accumulated over $90,000 in delinquent tax liabilities owed on two properties. The wife then obtained a determination from the IRS and the Montana Department of Revenue that she was an "innocent spouse" and was, therefore, not liable to the agencies for any of the delinquent tax liability. At the dissolution proceeding, the wife acknowledged that she and her family benefited from the income that created the tax liability and that she was aware that she and her husband had incurred income tax debt during the marriage. However, the wife argued that, because she had been adjudicated an "innocent spouse," the tax liability should not be considered marital debt. The District Court disagreed, holding that the "innocent spouse" tax determinations had no preclusive effect in the dissolution proceeding, that a dissolution proceeding primarily relates to equitably apportioning marital debt regardless of how and when it was acquired, that the "innocent spouse" administrative determinations were not subject to judicial review and did not raise the same issues, and that issue preclusion therefore did not apply. The Supreme Court affirmed, holding that the District Court used its broad discretion to apportion the marital estate in a manner equitable to each party under the circumstances. Rose v. Rose, 2016 MT 7, 382 Mont. 88, 364 P.3d 1244.

Amendment effective July 1, 2019, and terminates June 30, 2025, on occurrence of contingency.

Extension of Termination Date: Section 38, Ch. 415, L. 2019, amended sec. 28, Ch. 368, L. 2015, by extending the termination date imposed by Ch. 368 to June 30, 2025. Effective May 9, 2019.

Severability: Section 44, Ch. 415, L. 2019, was a severability clause.

Contingent Effective Date: Section 27(1), Ch. 368, L. 2015, provided that this section is effective upon approval by the U.S. department of health and human services of all waivers and approvals necessary to provide medicaid-funded services to individuals eligible pursuant to 53-6-1304 in the manner provided for in Title 53, chapter 6, part 13, and Title 39, chapter 12. The contingency occurred pursuant to approval by the U.S. department of health and human services in letters dated November 2, 2015, with waivers and eligibility effective January 1, 2016.

Nonseverability — Code Commissioner Correction: Section 26, Ch. 368, L. 2015, provided: "Except as provided in subsection (2), it is the intent of the legislature that each part of [this act] is essentially dependent upon every other part, and if one part is held unconstitutional or invalid, all other parts are invalid.

(2) If [section 19 or 20] is held unconstitutional, all other parts are valid."

Because these section references were not changed when new sections 20 and 22 were added to the bill by amendment, the code commissioner has determined that "[section 19 or 20]" should be replaced with "[section 19 or 21]" [25-3-106 or 27-2-205].

Termination: Section 28, Ch. 368, L. 2015, provided: "(1) [This act] terminates June 30, 2019.

(2) The department may reapply for the same waiver received to implement the Montana Health and Economic Livelihood Partnership Act program if the waiver expires before June 30, 2019."

Tax Credit for Donations to Sectarian Schools — United States Supreme Court Reversal of Montana Supreme Court — Free Exercise Clause of Federal Constitution Overrides No-Aid

Provision of Montana Constitution: The Montana Supreme Court found that the portion of the tax credit program codified at 15-30-3111 constituted a violation of Art. X, sec. 6, Mont. Const., which prohibits the Legislature, counties, cities, towns, school districts, and public corporations from making any direct or indirect appropriation or payment from any public fund or money for any sectarian purpose or to aid any church, sect, or denomination. The court found that by reimbursing, dollar-for-dollar, the donation to a student scholarship organization that directly funded tuition scholarships at religiously affiliated schools, the Legislature impermissibly functioned as the entity providing aid to sectarian schools, and the provision was determined to be facially unconstitutional. Because SB 410 (Ch. 457, L. 2015), which enacted the tax credit program, contained a severability clause, the Montana Supreme Court concluded that 15-30-3111 must be severed from the remainder of SB 410. (Espinoza v. Dept. of Revenue, 2018 MT 306, 393 Mont. 446, 435 P.3d 603, certiorari granted, 139 S Ct 2777 (2019)). On appeal, the United States Supreme Court reversed the Montana Supreme Court on the grounds that the Montana Supreme Court's application of the no-aid provision in Art. X, sec. 6, Mont. Const., discriminated against religious schools and families whose children attend or hope to attend them, in violation of the free exercise clause of the federal constitution. Espinoza v. Mont. Dept. of Revenue, 591 US 464, 140 S. Ct. 2246 (2020).

Case Notes

Supplemental Definition in Excess of Scope of Rulemaking Grant: The Department of Revenue believed that it could not constitutionally implement or administer the tax credit program of 15-30-3111. Instead, it created a definition through rulemaking in an attempt to cure the constitutional violation by excluding religiously affiliated schools from eligibility for donations under the program. The Supreme Court found that this rulemaking exceeded the grant of rulemaking authority conferred in 15-30-3114, noting that an "agency cannot transform an unconstitutional statute into a constitutional statute with an administrative rule". Espinoza v. Dept. of Revenue, 2018 MT 306, 393 Mont. 446, 435 P.3d 603, certiorari granted, 139 S Ct 2777 (2019), reversed and remanded on other grounds in Espinoza v. Mont. 2013 Amendment: Chapter 268 in (3) in first sentence after "state treasurer" substituted "a corporate income tax" for "as a license fee" and in second sentence before "must be" substituted "corporate income tax" for "license fee"; in (4) in first sentence after "Montana" substituted "corporate income tax" for "corporation license tax"; and inserted (5) providing that the use of certain terms means corporate income tax. Amendment effective October 1, 2013.

Saving Clause: Section 39, Ch. 268, L. 2013, was a saving clause.

Applicability: Section 40, Ch. 268, L. 2013, provided: "[This act] applies to tax years beginning after December 31, 2013."

2011 Amendment: Chapter 269 in third sentence of (3) following "15-31-502" inserted "and subject to the due date provision in 15-31-111(2)(b)"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 21, 2011.

Retroactive Applicability: Section 10, Ch. 269, L. 2011, provided: "[This act] applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to tax returns made after December 31, 2010."

2005 Amendment: Chapter 163 in (4) deleted former second sentence that read: "A foreign capital depository chartered under the laws of Montana is not subject to the Montana corporation license tax provided for under this chapter until October 1, 2012." Amendment effective October 1, 2005.

2001 Amendment: Chapter 143 in (1) at end after "or the United States" inserted reference to any limited liability company or other entity that is not a disregarded entity that is treated as an association for tax purposes; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2001.

Applicability: Section 19, Ch. 143, L. 2001, provided: "(1) Except as provided in subsections (2) and (3), [this act] applies to tax years beginning after December 31, 2001.

(2) [Section 8] [15-30-124] applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to tax years beginning after December 31, 2000.

(3) [Section 6] [15-30-1113, the January 1, 2003, version] applies to tax years beginning after December 31, 2002."

1997 Amendment: Chapter 382 in (3), at end of first sentence after "rate", substituted "set forth in this chapter" for "hereinafter set forth"; in (4) inserted second sentence providing that a chartered foreign capital depository is not subject to the corporation license tax; and made minor changes in style.

1997 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 382, L. 1997, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because the bill gives the state banking board and the department of commerce authority to adopt administrative rules to effectuate the purposes, policies, and provisions of this bill. The legislature intends that rules be adopted by the state banking board to govern the processes and procedures for both issuing a charter and for suspending or revoking a charter for a foreign capital depository. Because the department of commerce bears responsibility for the regulation and supervision of a foreign capital depository, the legislature finds it prudent to delegate rulemaking authority to that department with respect to the conduct of examinations and inspections, for mandatory reports, and for other related administrative matters. Because the financial privacy of depository customers must be afforded the highest protection possible within the parameters of state and federal law and because an applicant for a depository charter must be provided a readily discernable combination of certainty and flexibility with respect to the services provided by a depository, a blanket delegation of rulemaking authority is not granted to either the board or the department."

Severability: Section 87, Ch. 382, L. 1997, was a severability clause.

1989 Special Session Amendment: In (3), at beginning of third sentence, inserted exception clause. Amendment effective July 17, 1989.

Applicability: Section 15, Ch. 9, Sp. L. June 1989, provided that this section applies to taxable years beginning after December 31, 1989.

1987 Amendments: Chapter 622 near beginning of (3) changed "33-2-705(6)" to "33-2-705(4)".

Chapter 659 at beginning of (3) substituted "Except as provided in 15-31-103 or 33-2-705(6) or as may be otherwise specifically provided, every corporation" for "Every corporation, except as hereinafter provided and except as provided in 33-2-705(6)".

Case Notes

Imposition of Corporate License Tax on Tribally Chartered Corporation Conducting Business Entirely on Indian Reservation Considered Infringement of Tribal Sovereignty and Self-Government Authority: The Department of Revenue sought to impose the state corporate license tax on Flat Center Farms, Inc. (Flat Center). The District Court found that the tax may not be imposed on an Indian-owned corporation that does business entirely within the boundaries of an Indian reservation. The state appealed, but the Supreme Court affirmed. Flat Center was incorporated pursuant to the laws of Montana and chartered by the Fort Peck Tribe as a tribal corporation, with its sole business activity consisting of farming located entirely within the exterior boundaries of the Fort Peck Reservation. The corporation was wholly Indian owned, the beneficiaries of the corporate income were ultimately Indians, and the assets generating the income were Indian trust lands. The longstanding rule set out in Mescalero Apache Tribe v. Jones, 411 US 145 (1973), is that a state is without power to tax reservation lands and Indian income generated from on-reservation activities without the express authorization of Congress. Further, under Williams v. Lee, 358 US 217 (1959), the exercise of state jurisdiction over activities occurring entirely on Indian lands is an infringement on inherent tribal authority and is contrary to principles of self-government and tribal sovereignty. Nevertheless, the state contended that, as a nontribal member with a corporate identity distinct from its stockholders, Flat Center did not enjoy the shield from state taxation afforded to tribes and tribal members. However, under LaRoque v. St., 178 M 315, 583 P2d 1059 (1978), tribal membership is not essential to a determination of whether income earned on a reservation is taxable. Flat Center did not "carry on business in the state" because all of its activities were conducted in Indian country, so its income was not earned in Montana. The state's taxation authority is statutorily limited based on the situs of the activity from which income is earned. Thus, the District Court correctly concluded that the corporation license tax may not be imposed on a tribally chartered corporation that does business entirely within a reservation. Flat Center Farms, Inc. v. Dept. of Revenue, 2002 MT 140, 310 M 206, 49 P3d 578 (2002).

Nonstop Flyover Miles — No Authority for Inclusion in Numerator of Apportionment Formula: The language of 15-31-312 and ARM 42.26.264 expresses no intent to consider activity other than that in Montana; therefore, the Department of Revenue had no statutory authority to include in the numerator of the apportionment formula those miles flown by an airline as nonstop flights that did not take off or land in Montana or have contact with the state. NW. Airlines, Inc. v. St. Tax Appeal Bd., 221 M 441, 720 P2d 676, 43 St. Rep. 959 (1986).

Interest Income From Federal Obligations — Tax on Privilege and Income: Plaintiffs appealed from a summary judgment granted to defendant. Defendant had included the interest income from investments in several federal obligations in net income for purposes of computing plaintiffs' license tax. The District Court relied on 31 U.S.C. § 742, which contains an exception allowing states to levy a franchise tax on the income from federal obligations. The defendant contended that the Montana corporation license tax is a franchise tax on the privilege of doing business in Montana, with the tax based upon or measured by the net income of the taxpayer. The Supreme Court held that the tax is on the privilege and the net income. Defendant was attempting to tax indirectly income that it could not tax directly. The interest income from exempt federal obligations was not includable in net income for the purpose of calculating the Montana corporation license tax. First Fed. S&L Ass'n v. Dept. of Revenue, 200 M 358, 654 P2d 496, 39 St. Rep. 1802 (1982).

Value of Federal Obligations Deductible Under Bank Shares Tax: Under former law, neither the applicable Montana statutes nor administrative regulations expressly authorized a deduction for the value of federal obligations in computing the bank shares tax. However, the Montana statute must be construed as permitting such deduction and administrative regulations to the contrary must fall. Any other construction would violate the federal exemption statute and be unconstitutional under the Supremacy Clause of the United States Constitution. Mont. Bankers Ass'n v. Dept. of Revenue, 177 M 112, 580 P2d 909 (1978). However, see Mont. Bank of Roundup v. County Bd. of Comm'rs, 248 M 199, 810 P2d 1192, 48 St. Rep. 392 (1991), wherein it was held that under the doctrine of nonretroactivity, the exemption for federal obligations does not apply prior to 1978.

Tax Unenforceable Against Banks During 1972: Under former federal law, the state was precluded from collecting the corporation license tax on national banks during 1972, and since the intent of the Legislature in enacting a predecessor to this statute was to treat state and national banks equally, the state was also precluded from collecting the license tax from state banks during that year. Sec. Bank & Trust Co. v. Connors, 170 M 59, 550 P2d 1313 (1976).

Sale of Assets in Liquidation: Directors and trustees in liquidation of a liquidated corporation were entitled to a refund of that portion of the corporate license tax paid upon the gain realized by the corporation in the sale of its assets in liquidation. Barth v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 148 M 259, 419 P2d 484 (1966).

Livestock Production Credit Association: When "Class A" stock that had been federally owned was retired and control of production credit association passed completely into the hands of individual stockholders, then the association ceased to be an instrumentality of the United States as provided under 12 U.S.C., section 1138c, and became subject to the state corporation license tax. Mont. Livestock Prod. Credit Ass'n v. St., 143 M 578, 393 P2d 50 (1964).

No Conflict With Property Tax: Under former law, there was no conflict between this section and 15-24-801, since they dealt with separate and distinct taxes. Home Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Fulton, 141 M 113, 375 P2d 312 (1962).

Interest on United States Obligations: Under the wording of this section prior to the 1974 amendment, interest on the obligations of the United States was included in computing the corporate license tax since the United States is a "resident" within the meaning of the former provision fixing the tax at a percentage of the net income received "from all sources within the state". Mont. Bank v. Casey, 135 M 104, 337 P2d 935 (1959).

Interest-Bearing Obligations of Nonresidents: Under the wording of this section prior to the 1974 amendment, which imposed the tax upon the net income received by domestic insurance company "from all sources, including interest on bonds, notes or other interest-bearing obligations of residents, corporate or otherwise" of the state, interest accruing on obligations of nonresidents was excluded. Mont. Life Ins. Co v. Shannon, 106 M 500, 78 P2d 946 (1938).

Income From Lease on Indian Land: A corporation extracting oil from lands within the Blackfeet Indian Reservation under lease given by the tribe was subject to the payment of corporation license tax. British-American Oil Prod. Co. v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 101 M 293, 54 P2d 129 (1936), affirmed 299 US 159, 81 L Ed 95, 57 S Ct 132 (1936). See also Santa Rita Oil & Gas Co. v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 101 M 268, 54 P2d 117 (1936).

Constitutionality: Chapter 79, L. 1917, was not unconstitutional because of alleged discrimination between corporations whose business is wholly within this state and those whose business is not wholly within this state, such discrimination being necessary to attain reasonable equality of burdens between the two. Equitable Life Assurance Co. v. Hart, 55 M 76, 173 P 1062 (1918).

Applicable to Every Corporation: The purpose of Ch. 79, L. 1917, being the imposition of a license fee of 1% upon the net income of every corporation in the state for the privilege of doing business as such, without regard to the character of the business, insurance corporations were intended to be within its purview. Equitable Life Assurance Co. v. Hart, 55 M 76, 173 P 1062 (1918).

Effect of Other State Fees — No Double Taxation: Chapter 79, L. 1917, did not operate to repeal section 40-1302, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), requiring insurance corporations to pay certain license fees before commencing to do business in this state. The license fee required of insurance corporations by Ch. 79, L. 1917, and section 40-1302, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), did not constitute a case of double taxation, the impositions, though upon the same persons, not being for the same thing. Equitable Life Assurance Co. v. Hart, 55 M 76, 173 P 1062 (1918).

Statute of Limitations Applicable to Claims for Corporate License Tax Refunds: The statutory time limit within which to claim a refund of corporate license taxes, as provided in 15-31-509, begins running on the date established in subsection (2) of this section. Although this section allows a taxpayer to automatically extend for up to 6 months the period of time for filing, the extension is not included in determining when the limitations period begins to run. The extension simply gives the taxpayer additional time to prepare the return; it does not change the day prescribed for filing the return. Norfolk Holdings, Inc. v. Dept. of Revenue, 249 M 40, 813 P2d 460, 48 St. Rep. 569 (1991).

Power of Corporation Failing to Comply: The fact that a corporation does not comply with this section and has ceased to do business does not prevent it from redeeming its property sold at delinquent tax sale. Stensvad v. Ottman, 123 M 158, 208 P2d 507 (1949).

2013 Amendment: Chapter 268 in (1)(a)(ii) near middle after "income or" substituted "corporate income tax" for "license tax"; and in (3) in three places substituted "corporate income tax" for "corporation license tax". Amendment effective October 1, 2013.

Saving Clause: Section 39, Ch. 268, L. 2013, was a saving clause.

Applicability: Section 40, Ch. 268, L. 2013, provided: "[This act] applies to tax years beginning after December 31, 2013."

1995 Amendment: Chapter 278 in (1)(a)(i), at end, inserted "and exempt-interest dividends as defined in section 852(b)(5) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as that section may be amended or renumbered"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 29, 1995.

Effective Date — Retroactive Applicability: Section 5, Ch. 278, L. 1995, provided: "[This act] is effective on passage and approval [approved March 29, 1995] and applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to tax years beginning after December 31, 1994."

1981 Amendment: In (1)(a) substituted "including" for "but shall include"; inserted subsection (1)(a)(ii) including gain from liquidation of corporations not recognized under federal law; and inserted subsection (1)(b) excluding gain from liquidation of corporations recognized under federal law.

Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to HB 415 (Ch. 483, L. 1981) provided: "House Bill 415 is intended to address a problem that arises under the Montana individual income tax laws and corporation license and income tax laws due to the relationship between the Montana adjusted gross income under the federal income tax laws. Under present law the liquidation of a corporation holding property in Montana can cause gain on the sale of the property to pass through to the stockholders of the corporation. If the stockholders are not subject to Montana tax on this gain passing through, the state loses the revenue on what is essentially a state transaction, namely the sale of Montana property. This result occurs because of operation of the federal tax laws relating to corporation liquidations. House Bill 415 addresses this situation by requiring the liquidating corporation to recognize that portion of the gain from a corporate liquidation under sections 331 or 337 [331 through 337] of the Internal Revenue Code that passes through to stockholders, either individual or corporate, who are not subject to Montana tax, either individual income tax or corporate license tax, on the gain passed through pursuant to federal law. Because the provisions of House Bill 415 require recognition of gain at the corporate level, it is also necessary to remove this gain from the income of the stockholders, in order to avoid the possibility of double taxation.

For the example we have a corporation L that owns property in Montana. The stockholders of L are an out-of-state corporation, S; an out-of-state individual, I; and a resident individual, R, each with an equal interest. Corporation L sells the property with a gain of $3,000,000 and liquidates pursuant to sections 331 through 337 of the Internal Revenue Code. Under present law, R, as a resident, would pay tax on $1,000,000, but S and I would not be subject to Montana tax on the $1,000,000 passing through to them pursuant to federal law. Corporation L would not be subject to Montana tax. Under House Bill 415, R would remain subject to tax on $1,000,000, but Corporation L would now become subject to tax on the $2,000,000 (that portion of the gain passing through to persons not subject to Montana income or license tax)."

Dividend Deduction Not Prohibited by Amendment — Incorporation of Federal Law: Where the appellants, six holding companies, each owning 80% or more of the voting stock of a commercial bank, appealed a decision of the District Court reversing a decision of the State Tax Appeal Board (now Montana Tax Appeal Board) allowing the appellants to deduct the dividends received from their subsidiaries, the Supreme Court held that a 1973 amendment to the corporation license tax law did not alter the interrelationship found to exist in such cases as Lazy JD Cattle Co. v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 161 M 40, 504 P2d 287 (1972), between the corporation license tax law and the Internal Revenue Code. The deductions claimed by the appellants are allowed by the Internal Revenue Code, which has been incorporated by reference into the corporation license tax law. Because those deductions are not specifically prohibited by that law, they must be allowed. Baker Bancorporation, Inc. v. Dept. of Revenue, 202 M 94, 657 P2d 89, 39 St. Rep. 2350 (1982).

Net Operating Loss — Incorporation of Federal Law: Prior to the 1971 amendment to 15-31-114 that specifically provided for a net operating loss deduction, a net operating loss deduction was allowable since 15-31-113 incorporates section 172 of the Federal Internal Revenue Code for the purposes of determining net income. Lazy JD Cattle Co. v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 161 M 40, 504 P2d 287 (1972).

Net Operating Loss — No Retroactive Repeal: The 1971 amendment to 15-31-114 did not retroactively repeal the net operating loss deduction allowed under the definition of net income in 15-31-113. Lazy JD Cattle Co. v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 161 M 40, 504 P2d 287 (1972).

Cooperative Corporations — Patronage Dividends: Cooperative corporations doing business in Montana and subject to corporation license tax may exclude or deduct from gross income any amounts paid as patronage dividends. Fulton v. Farmers Union Grain Terminal Ass'n, 140 M 523, 374 P2d 231 (1962).

Premerger Net Operating Loss Deduction by Corporation — Prohibition Constitutional: Petitioner GBN appealed from a District Court order upholding a decision by the Department of Revenue, which, pursuant to this section (prior to 1989 amendment), disallowed a deduction from taxable income by the surviving corporation of the net operating losses sustained by the merged corporations prior to the date of the merger. The Supreme Court held that the provision was a reasonable tax classification that did not unconstitutionally discriminate against the surviving corporation in a merger of corporations. The provision applied equally to all entities falling within the same classification and prevented all merged corporations from deducting premerger net operating losses. GBN, Inc. v. Dept. of Revenue, 249 M 261, 815 P2d 595, 48 St. Rep. 715 (1991).

Multistate Taxpayers Engaged in Unitary Business: The Supreme Court held that when corporate taxpayers are engaged in a unitary business, sales by the corporation of temporary cash investments are not to be reported by them for Montana's corporation license tax or income tax purposes as included in gross sales; except for the net gain from such sales, the total amounts of these sales should be excluded from the formula determining the unitary business's income for corporation license tax reporting. Am. Tel. & Tel. Co. v. St. Tax Appeal Bd., 241 M 440, 787 P2d 754, 47 St. Rep. 403 (1990).

Retroactive Calculation of Tax — Unconstitutional: Plaintiffs contended that a change in net operating loss law was unconstitutionally retroactive. Plaintiff, Havre Federal Savings and Loan Association, had incurred a net operating loss in each of the 5 years from 1974 through 1978. The challenged portion of the statute was enacted in 1979. Under the previous law, the plaintiff carried forward its net operating losses and applied them to its 1979 return, which resulted in no net income for that year. The Department of Revenue, acting under the authority of the challenged subsection, recalculated plaintiff's net income for the years 1974 through 1978, which resulted in no net operating losses to carry forward. The Supreme Court held that the change in law was retroactive in effect and therefore unconstitutional. The State cannot change a law in 1979 and compel a recalculation of tax returns filed for 1974 through 1978 based on the new law effective for the first time in 1979. First Fed. S&L Ass'n v. Dept. of Revenue, 200 M 358, 654 P2d 496, 39 St. Rep. 1802 (1982).

Bond Reserve Account Disallowed Under Bank Shares Tax: Under former law, when bank had suffered no actual loss in its bond account, or actively traded or sold its bonds, it was improper for the bank to create a reserve for possible bond losses and segregate this amount from its undivided profits for bank shares tax purposes, as a bank may not claim a deduction for a bond loss reserve account on the principle that a liability does not accrue as long as it remains contingent. Mont. Nat'l Bank of Roundup v. Dept. of Revenue, 167 M 429, 539 P2d 722 (1975).

Bad Debt as Loss — Deduction — Reserve: A bad debt sustained and charged off within a year is a loss under this section. Although federal law authorizes a deduction from gross income for a reserve for bad debts, when the Code attempted to specifically deal with a particular deduction and restricted bad debt deductions to only those sustained and charged off within a year, there could be no deduction by a bank of a bad debt reserve. First Fed. S & L Ass'n v. St. Tax Appeal Bd., 167 M 33, 535 P2d 183 (1975).

Net Operating Loss — Incorporation of Federal Law: Prior to the 1971 amendment to 15-31-114 that specifically provided for a net operating loss deduction, a net operating loss deduction was allowable since 15-31-113 incorporates section 172 of the Federal Internal Revenue Code for the purposes of determining net income. Lazy JD Cattle Co. v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 161 M 40, 504 P2d 287 (1972).

Net Operating Loss — No Retroactive Repeal: The 1971 amendment to 15-31-114 did not retroactively repeal the net operating loss deduction allowed under the definition of net income in 15-31-113. Lazy JD Cattle Co. v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 161 M 40, 504 P2d 287 (1972).

Dividends of Building and Loan Associations: Dividends paid by building and loan associations are deductible from gross income in determining corporation license taxes. Home Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Fulton, 141 M 113, 375 P2d 312 (1962).

Cooperative Corporations — Patronage Dividends:
Cooperative corporations doing business in Montana and subject to corporation license tax may exclude or deduct from gross income any amounts paid as patronage dividends. Fulton v. Farmers Union Grain Terminal Ass'n, 140 M 523, 374 P2d 231 (1962).

Dividends paid on capital stock outstanding are not a proper deduction in determining the net income of a cooperative association organized under Title 35, ch. 15, for taxation purposes, such dividends being neither an expense nor a payment of interest on indebtedness, but patronage dividends which it must pay under 35-15-411 in apportioning its earnings, are in effect refunds or rebates to customers whether stockholders or not, and are to be treated as a necessary expense in computing net income upon which to pay a license tax. Gallatin Farmers Co. v. Shannon, 109 M 155, 93 P2d 953 (1939).

Deduction of Refund to Government: When a government contractor's liability to make a refund to the government was certain under the laws relating to renegotiation, the estimated amount of the contractor's liability thereunder was an allowable deduction as an expense incurred in computing the state corporation license tax of the contractor on the accrual basis although the exact amount was not known or presently due during the taxable year but such amount was determined later and the adjustment made. Birch & Sons Constr. Co. v. Porter, 117 M 232, 157 P2d 777 (1945).

Accounting Methods: Keeping accounts and making returns on the accrual basis, as distinguished from cash basis, import that it is the right to receive and not the actual receipt that determines inclusion of the amount in gross income. Birch & Sons Constr. Co. v. Porter, 117 M 232, 157 P 777 (1945).

Doing Business in State: Under former law, a Minnesota corporation engaged in the coal mining business in Montana was entitled to certain deductions under section 2297, R.C.M. 1921, although it maintained its general office in Minneapolis, where the meetings of the stockholders and directors were held and from where the business was directed, to which office money was sent for deposit and where it received interest and dividends from invested funds and disbursed same to its stockholders. The State Treasurer was in error in claiming that the corporation, by reason of the above facts, was partly engaged in business in Montana and partly in Minnesota, and therefore subject to a higher fee. Cottonwood Coal Co. v. Junod, 73 M 392, 236 P 1080 (1925).

2013 Amendment: Chapter 268 at end substituted "corporate income tax" for "corporation license tax". Amendment effective October 1, 2013.

Saving Clause: Section 39, Ch. 268, L. 2013, was a saving clause.

Applicability: Section 40, Ch. 268, L. 2013, provided: "[This act] applies to tax years beginning after December 31, 2013."

Amendment effective October 1, 2005.

Preamble: The preamble to Ch. 673, L. 1983, provided: "WHEREAS, the Montana Corporation License Tax Act (Title 15, chapter 31, part 1) was intended, after the enactment of Chapter 634, Laws of 1979, to require all corporations to report and pay a tax upon all income derived from obligations of the United States or its agencies or instrumentalities as permitted by Title 31, section 742, United States Code; and

WHEREAS, the Montana Supreme Court on September 23, 1982 (petition for rehearing denied December 6, 1982), decided in the case cited below that such income must be excluded from the measure of the subject tax; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature disagrees with the Montana Supreme Court's decision in the case of First Federal Savings and Loan Association, a Federally Chartered Association, et al., Plaintiffs and Appellants v. Department of Revenue, et al., Defendants and Respondents, Cause No. 81-528, and has filed, through its Revenue Oversight Committee, an Amicus Curiae brief in support of the position of the Department of Revenue; and

WHEREAS, the Department of Revenue is presently seeking to have the United States Supreme Court review the matter, and at this time other decisions are also being reviewed by the United States Supreme Court that might have a bearing on the issue of the taxability of such income; and

WHEREAS, in the interim uncertainty exists as to the taxability of such income and claims for refund of tax and returns of income will be made by corporations based upon the exclusion of such income; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature desires to maintain approximately the current level of revenue to state and local government; and

WHEREAS, immediate legislative action is necessary.

THEREFORE, it is the intent of the Legislature to proportionately reduce the allowable deductions to all corporations for all taxable periods for which interest income is excluded or claim for refund of tax is made upon such exclusion under claim of right under federal law."

Retroactive Effect: Section 6, Ch. 673, L. 1983, provided, in pertinent part: "Sections 1 and 3 of this act [codified to 15-31-115 and 15-31-116 (15-31-116 now repealed)] apply retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to taxable periods beginning on and after December 31, 1978 (the effective date of Chapter 634, Laws of 1979), for which a corporation has excluded interest income based upon federal law or for which a corporation has included interest income and subsequently claims a refund of taxes paid based upon federal law."

Case Notes

Interest Income From Federal Obligations — Tax on Privilege and Income: Plaintiffs appealed from a summary judgment granted to defendant. Defendant had included the interest income from investments in several federal obligations in net income for purposes of computing plaintiffs' license tax. The District Court relied on 31 U.S.C. § 742, which contains an exception allowing states to levy a franchise tax on the income from federal obligations. The defendant contended that the Montana corporation license tax is a franchise tax on the privilege of doing business in Montana, with the tax based upon or measured by the net income of the taxpayer. The Supreme Court held that the tax is on the privilege and the net income. Defendant was attempting to tax indirectly income that it could not tax directly. The interest income from exempt federal obligations was not includable in net income for the purpose of calculating the Montana corporation license tax. First Fed. S&L Ass'n v. Dept. of Revenue, 200 M 358, 654 P2d 496, 39 St. Rep. 1802 (1982).

WHEREAS, the uniform assessment provisions related to penalties and interest do not apply to every tax or fee imposed under Title 15 and administered by the Department of Revenue; and

WHEREAS, it is in the best interest of the State of Montana and taxpayers to expand the application of the uniform method of assessing penalties and interest."

Applicability: Section 43, Ch. 594, L. 2005, provided: "(1) Except as provided in subsections (2) and (3), [this act] applies on and after July 1, 2005.

(3) [Section 3] [15-1-216, version effective January 1, 2007] applies to interest computed under 15-1-216 assessed on taxes or fees owing after December 31, 2006, regardless of the tax reporting period for which the taxes or fees are owed."

However, consolidated returns for financial institutions do not reflect the true tax attributable to each local government. In addition, consolidated returns would permit financial institutions to offset income against losses of nonfinancial institutions, thereby distorting the true income of each financial organization.

(b) In accordance with subsection (6)(a), financial institutions are prohibited from filing consolidated returns under this section"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 23, 1997.

Retroactive Applicability: Section 4(2), Ch. 369, L. 1997, provided: "[Section 1] [amending 15-31-141] applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to tax years after December 31, 1996."

Amendment effective March 15, 1999.

Administrative Rules

ARM 42.23.313 Filing requirements upon dissolution, withdrawal, or cessation of business.

Case Notes

Period Covered by Tax: Under former law, when foreign corporation engaged in business in the state from April 1934, continuously until December 1937, when it ceased doing business, having paid the corporation license tax fee in 1935, 1936, and 1937, refusing to pay in 1938 on the ground that its 1937 payment was for 1937, the state erroneously contended the 1937 payment was for 1936. Under this section (before amendment), the tax is an excise or license and not an income tax, the tax paid in 1937 being for the year 1937 measured by the company's business done in 1936, and not having done any business in 1938 it owed nothing to the state. Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 537, L. 1997, provided: "WHEREAS, charitable endowments are permanent savings accounts, the income from which is perpetually committed to charitable purposes; and

WHEREAS, Montana-based charitable endowments can grow over time to become significant resources capable of funding many unanticipated and unmet needs of, and creating new opportunities for, Montana's citizens and their communities; and

WHEREAS, Montana's relatively weak tradition of endowed philanthropy can be demonstrated by comparing our state with the other 49 states, in that Montana ranks 44th in population and 41st in per capita income, but ranks 48th in foundation assets and 49th in foundation giving; and

WHEREAS, a planned gift is a type of charitable contribution that has the following three characteristics: first, it is composed typically of assets saved over the contributor's lifetime; second, it is conferred in connection with a carefully considered estate plan; and third, it transfers assets of the contributor to a charity prior to the contributor's death; and

WHEREAS, although planned gifts would appear to offer genuine financial potential for creating and expanding charitable endowments in Montana, in reality, planned gifts are so infrequently contributed in Montana that endowments in our state are not growing as fast as they are in other states; and

WHEREAS, planned gifts might be used more in funding charitable endowments in Montana if contributors could offset a significant portion of their gifts against their Montana income tax liabilities; and

WHEREAS, over the long term, income distributed from endowments can help achieve community goals and objectives when current funding from state and local government budgets may be limited; and

WHEREAS, local charitable endowments currently exist in almost every Montana community, and the existence of these widespread endowments offers everyone in Montana an opportunity to contribute endowed funding for their local communities; and

WHEREAS, community-based endowments in Montana have long-term potential to benefit all Montana communities by developing creative solutions to help individual communities meet growing needs and by helping these communities find transitions to self-sufficiency; and

WHEREAS, earnings from charitable endowments in Montana are distributed by volunteer boards of diverse community leaders to meet emerging community needs in such areas as education, arts and culture, social services, economic development, and health and the environment; and

WHEREAS, government cannot meet, nor should it be expected to meet, all of the needs of the state's communities because of its limited financial resources and because each community is in a better position to determine its own existing and future needs and opportunities; and

WHEREAS, tax credits provide financial incentives that encourage contributions for the establishment or expansion of charitable endowments in Montana; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature limits the tax credit created by [this act] [15-30-166, 15-30-167, 15-31-161, and 15-31-162] to qualified permanent endowments held by tax-exempt organizations or by banks or trust companies on behalf of tax-exempt organizations; and

WHEREAS, for the purpose of renewing the tax credit created by [this act] [15-30-166, 15-30-167, 15-31-161, and 15-31-162], it is the intent of the 55th Legislature that the state's cost of administering the tax credit may not exceed 5% of the total annual credits claimed."

Effective Date — Retroactive Applicability: Section 8, Ch. 537, L. 1997 provided: "[This act] is effective on passage and approval [approved May 5, 1997] and applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to tax years beginning after December 31, 1996."

Termination: Section 9, Ch. 537, L. 1997 provided: "[This act] terminates December 31, 2001."

Department Decision to Include Overflight Mileage in Apportionment Formula—Noncompliance With MAPA: The unilateral administrative decision of a Department of Revenue auditor to include an airline's nonstop flyover mileage in the numerator of the statutory apportionment formula qualified as a rule under 2-4-102 and was subject to the notice and hearing requirements of 2-4-302 in order to be valid under the Montana Administrative Procedure Act. Inapplicable if Gross Business Within the State Not Determined: Under former law, the predecessor to this part did not apply to an action to recover taxes paid by a domestic corporation where controversy was whether interest on obligations of nonresidents, collected outside the state and forwarded to the principal office in Montana should be considered as income within the state, since, until the interest payments had been determined to be income within or without the state, the gross business within and without the state could not be established, and until these two factors were known, the method of segregation formerly provided by the statute could not be applied. Case Notes

Water's-Edge Election — Multinational Corporations Permitted to Exclude Foreign Operations' Income or Loss From Apportionable Income: In general, the State of Montana imposes an income tax on corporations and similar entities. A corporation with business activities that are taxable both inside and outside the state must allocate and apportion its net income to the state to determine its income subject to state taxation. Notwithstanding, a multinational corporation may make a water's-edge election and file taxes on behalf of a combined group of affiliated corporations. This provision allows the corporation to exclude its foreign operations' income or loss from its apportionable income and therefore exclude the foreign subsidiaries' income from the group's Montana taxes. Exxon Mobil Corp. v. Dept. of Revenue, 2019 MT 156, 396 Mont. 298, 444 P.3d 407.

Unitary Business Assessment Upheld: After the Supreme Court's decision upholding the State Tax Appeal Board's ruling that assessment as a unitary business was proper, in Ward Paper Box Co. v. Dept. of Revenue, 196 M 87, 638 P2d 1053, 38 St. Rep. 4147 (1981), Ward was purchased by Russell Stover Candies, Inc. Russell Stover appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court, which vacated judgment and remanded to Montana for further consideration in light of two recent cases in which the U.S. Supreme Court held subsidiaries to be separate businesses, and since no relationship existed between the subsidiary and the transaction of business in the taxing state, due process was violated. The Montana court distinguished the cases, saying the Montana ranches were active operations of Ward and were formally part of the Ward corporation. The most important factor, however, was that the ranches had very little independence from the overall Ward operation. They had no capacity to operate independently. All bookkeeping and all major decisions were controlled by the home office. The state was correct in taxing Ward, based on appropriation of Ward's total income. Russell Stover Candies, Inc. v. Dept. of Revenue, 204 M 122, 665 P2d 198, 40 St. Rep. 712 (1983).

Federal Due Process Not Violated: The state's taxation of income derived in interstate commerce meets federal due process requirements since the corporation availed itself of the privilege of doing business within the state and was a unitary business within and without the state; citing Mobil Oil Corp. v. Comm'r of Taxes, 445 US 425, 63 L Ed 2d 510, 100 S Ct 1223 (1980). Ward Paper Box Co. v. Dept. of Revenue, 196 M 87, 638 P2d 1053, 38 St. Rep. 2147 (1981).

Similar Administrative Rule in Effect Before 1974: Although subsection (2) of 15-31-301 was created by a 1974 amendment, it applies to the period of dispute (1971-1975) because a similar administrative rule was in effect prior to the amendment and the rule was not inconsistent with the section as it existed prior to amendment. Ward Paper Box Co. v. Dept. of Revenue, 196 M 87, 638 P2d 1053, 38 St. Rep. 2147 (1981).

Unitary Business — Cattle Ranches and Paper Products Operation: A corporation consisted of seven divisions; five divisions outside the state produced and marketed paper products; two divisions within the state operated cattle ranches. The corporation was considered a unitary business within and without the state for purposes of apportionment of business income. The in-state operations were dependent upon the out-of-state operations for administrative services, management decisions, and financial assistance when ranch funds were insufficient; they contributed to out-of-state operations by providing short-term investment income and tax writeoffs. Ward Paper Box Co. v. Dept. of Revenue, 196 M 87, 638 P2d 1053, 38 St. Rep. 2147 (1981).

Authority to Adopt Regulations: The Department of Revenue had the authority to adopt rules concerning the apportionment of corporate net income derived from sources both within and without the state based on a "business vs. nonbusiness" test. Dept. of Revenue v. Am. Smelting & Ref. Co., 173 M 316, 567 P2d 901 (1977).

Statutory Transactional Test and Functional Test for Determining Business Income: The definition of business income in subsection (1) of this section includes both a transactional test, established in the phrase "income arising from transactions and activity in the regular course of the taxpayer's trade or business", and an independent functional test, established in the phrase "income from tangible and intangible property if the acquisition, management, and disposition of the property constitute integral parts of the taxpayer's regular trade or business operations." Gannett Satellite Information Network, Inc. v. St., 2009 MT 5, 348 M 333, 201 P3d 132 (2009). See also Hoechst Celanese Corp. v. Franchise Tax Bd., 22 P3d 324 (Cal. Rep. 2001).

Dept. of Revenue v. Am. Smelting & Ref. Co., 173 M 316, 567 P2d 901 (1977).

(2) that state has jurisdiction to subject the taxpayer to a net income tax, regardless of whether, in fact, the state does or does not subject the taxpayer to a net income tax". Amendment effective January 1, 2018.

2017 Amendment: Chapter 268 substituted current language for former language that read: "(1) Rents and royalties from real or tangible personal property, capital gains, interest, dividends, or patent or copyright royalties, to the extent they constitute nonbusiness income, shall be allocated as provided in subsections (2) through (5) of this section.

(2) (a) Net rents and royalties from real property located in this state are allocable to this state.

(b) Net rents and royalties from tangible personal property are allocable to this state:

(i) if and to the extent that the property is utilized in this state; or

(ii) in their entirety if the taxpayer's commercial domicile is in this state and the taxpayer is not organized under the laws of or taxable in the state in which the property is utilized.

(c) The extent of utilization of tangible personal property in a state is determined by multiplying the rents and royalties by a fraction the numerator of which is the number of days of physical location of the property in the state during the rental or royalty period in the taxable year and the denominator of which is the number of days of physical location of the property everywhere during all rental or royalty periods in the taxable year. If the physical location of the property during the rental or royalty period is unknown or unascertainable by the taxpayer, tangible personal property is utilized in the state in which the property was located at the time the rental or royalty payer obtained possession.

(3) (a) Capital gains and losses from sales of real property located in this state are allocable to this state.

(b) Capital gains and losses from sales of tangible personal property are allocable to this state if:

(c) Capital gains and losses from sales of intangible personal property are allocable to this state if the taxpayer's commercial domicile is in this state.

(4) Interest and dividends are allocable to this state if the taxpayer's commercial domicile is in this state.

(5) (a) Patent and copyright royalties are allocable to this state if and to the extent that:

(i) the patent or copyright is utilized by the payer in this state; or

(ii) the patent or copyright is utilized by the payer in a state in which the taxpayer is not taxable and the taxpayer's commercial domicile is in this state.

(b) A patent is utilized in a state to the extent that it is employed in production, fabrication, manufacturing, or other processing in the state or to the extent that a patented product is produced in the state. If the basis of receipts from patent royalties does not permit allocation to states or if the accounting procedures do not reflect states of utilization, the patent is utilized in the state in which the taxpayer's commercial domicile is located.

(c) A copyright is utilized in a state to the extent that printing or other publication originates in the state. Case Notes

Use of State-to-State Method in Calculating Sales Factor Applicable to Delivery of Intrastate Packages: The State Tax Appeal Board (now Montana Tax Appeal Board) properly applied the state-to-state revenue analysis method, although misnamed the adjusted revenue method, in calculating the sales factor applicable in determining revenue earned from intrastate packages both picked up and delivered in Montana. Dept. of Revenue v. United Parcel Serv., Inc., 252 M 476, 830 P2d 1259, 49 St. Rep. 20 (1992).

Nonstop Flyover Miles — No Authority for Inclusion in Numerator of Apportionment Formula: The language of 15-31-312 and ARM 42.26.264 expresses no intent to consider activity other than that in Montana; therefore, the Department of Revenue had no statutory authority to include in the numerator of the apportionment formula those miles flown by an airline as nonstop flights that did not take off or land in Montana or have contact with the state. NW. Airlines, Inc. v. St. Tax Appeal Bd., 221 M 441, 720 P2d 676, 43 St. Rep. 959 (1986).

Unitary Business Assessment Upheld: After the Supreme Court's decision upholding the State Tax Appeal Board's (now Montana Tax Appeal Board) ruling that assessment as a unitary business was proper, in Ward Paper Box Co. v. Dept. of Revenue, 196 M 87, 638 P2d 1053, 38 St. Rep. 4147 (1981), Ward was purchased by Russell Stover Candies, Inc. Russell Stover appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court, which vacated judgment and remanded to Montana for further consideration in light of two recent cases in which the U.S. Supreme Court held subsidiaries to be separate businesses, and since no relationship existed between the subsidiary and the transaction of business in the taxing state, due process was violated. The Montana court distinguished the cases, saying the Montana ranches were active operations of Ward and were formally part of the Ward corporation. The most important factor, however, was that the ranches had very little independence from the overall Ward operation. They had no capacity to operate independently. All bookkeeping and all major decisions were controlled by the home office. The state was correct in taxing Ward, based on appropriation of Ward's total income. Russell Stover Candies, Inc. v. Dept. of Revenue, 204 M 122, 665 P2d 198, 40 St. Rep. 712 (1983).

Mileage Method as Inequitable Representation of State Business Activity: This section requires an equitable representation of a taxpayer's business activity in the state. However, in this case, the mileage method promulgated in an administrative rule implementing this section was not an equitable method of calculating defendant's income-producing activity for the sales factor portion of the formula. Defendant's petition for an alternative method of apportionment under this section was appropriate. Dept. of Revenue v. United Parcel Serv., Inc., 252 M 476, 830 P2d 1259, 49 St. Rep. 20 (1992).

Multistate Taxpayers Engaged in Unitary Business: The Supreme Court held that when corporate taxpayers are engaged in a unitary business, sales by the corporation of temporary cash investments are not to be reported by them for Montana's corporation license tax or income tax purposes as included in gross sales; except for the net gain from such sales, the total amounts of these sales should be excluded from the formula determining the unitary business's income for corporation license tax reporting. Water's-Edge Election — Multinational Corporations Permitted to Exclude Foreign Operations' Income or Loss From Apportionable Income: In general, the State of Montana imposes an income tax on corporations and similar entities. A corporation with business activities that are taxable both inside and outside the state must allocate and apportion its net income to the state to determine its income subject to state taxation. Notwithstanding, a multinational corporation may make a water's-edge election and file taxes on behalf of a combined group of affiliated corporations. This provision allows the corporation to exclude its foreign operations' income or loss from its apportionable income and therefore exclude the foreign subsidiaries' income from the group's Montana taxes. Water's-Edge Election — Multinational Corporations Permitted to Exclude Foreign Operations' Income or Loss From Apportionable Income: In general, the State of Montana imposes an income tax on corporations and similar entities. A corporation with business activities that are taxable both inside and outside the state must allocate and apportion its net income to the state to determine its income subject to state taxation. Notwithstanding, a multinational corporation may make a water's-edge election and file taxes on behalf of a combined group of affiliated corporations. This provision allows the corporation to exclude its foreign operations' income or loss from its apportionable income and therefore exclude the foreign subsidiaries' income from the group's Montana taxes. Case Notes

Corporations Allowed to Deduct Actual Dividends Received From 80/20 Corporations: Exxon Mobil Corporation filed its State of Montana taxes utilizing a water's-edge election. It claimed a 100% deduction for dividends received from its 80/20 corporations under section 243 of the federal Internal Revenue Code. The District Court found that the dividends at issue were expressly apportionable as income under this section and that Exxon Mobil was therefore entitled to only an 80% exclusion for the dividends. On appeal, the Supreme Court reversed, finding that unless the Legislature expressly provides otherwise, corporations are entitled to all Internal Revenue Code deductions when filing their state taxes. Because this section does not expressly mention either section 243 of the code or the type of actual dividends at issue, then Exxon Mobil could avail itself of section 243 and deduct 100% of the actual dividends for purposes of Montana taxation. WHEREAS, the Department of Revenue's Integrated Revenue Information System is designed to ensure that the state's tax laws are applied fairly and consistently; and

WHEREAS, it is in the best interest of the State of Montana and taxpayers to expand the application of the uniform method of assessing penalties and interest."

If no protest is filed, the amount of the additional tax proposed to be assessed becomes final upon the expiration of the 30-day period. If such protest is filed, the department shall reconsider the proposed assessment and, if the taxpayer has so requested, shall grant the taxpayer an oral hearing. After consideration of the protest and the evidence presented in the event of an oral hearing, the department's action upon the protest is final when it mails notice of its action to the taxpayer"; and in (2) deleted first sentence that read: "When a deficiency is determined and the tax becomes final, the department shall mail notice and demand to the taxpayer for the payment thereof, and the tax shall be due and payable at the expiration of 10 days from the date of such notice and demand".

Failure to Report Change in Federal Taxable Income — When Federal Changes Become Final: The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) determined through an audit that plaintiff owed additional federal taxes for 1995 and 1996. Plaintiff appealed the assessment, but the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed the decision in 2003. The state Department of Revenue received two IRS reports in 2004 reflecting the changes in plaintiff's 1995 and 1996 taxable income and in 2004 issued plaintiff an assessment of additional state taxes due. Plaintiff appealed the assessment, arguing that the assessment had been issued beyond the statute of limitations in 15-31-509, but the State Tax Appeal Board (STAB) (now Montana Tax Appeal Board) concluded that because plaintiff failed to file an amended Montana return at the time that it filed an amended federal return, the Department was allowed to assess tax liability under 15-31-544 and that the assessment was not barred by the statute of limitations. The District Court affirmed the STAB decision, and plaintiff appealed, but the Supreme Court affirmed. Under the 1995 version of 15-31-506 in effect at the time, plaintiff was required to report the change in its 1995 and 1996 federal taxable income to the state within 90 days of receiving notice of the change. Plaintiff did not file the required report, but argued on appeal that the statute of limitations expired prior to the state's issuance of an assessment for those years. The District Court erred in concluding that the assessment was not barred by the statute of limitations in 15-31-544 because that provision applies only when a taxpayer fails to file a return or files a fraudulent return. However, under 15-31-509, the limitations prescribed for giving notice of a proposed assessment of an additional tax does not apply when a taxpayer fails to file a report of changes in federal taxable income as required by 15-31-506 until 5 years after the federal changes become final. In this case, the federal changes became final when the Ninth Circuit Court issued its opinion in 2003, so the Department's 2004 assessment was issued well within the 5-year limitation period and was not barred by the statute of limitations. Case Notes

Failure to Report Change in Federal Taxable Income — When Federal Changes Become Final: The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) determined through an audit that plaintiff owed additional federal taxes for 1995 and 1996. Plaintiff appealed the assessment, but the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed the decision in 2003. The state Department of Revenue received two IRS reports in 2004 reflecting the changes in plaintiff's 1995 and 1996 taxable income and in 2004 issued plaintiff an assessment of additional state taxes due. Plaintiff appealed the assessment, arguing that the assessment had been issued beyond the statute of limitations in 15-31-509, but the State Tax Appeal Board (STAB) (now Montana Tax Appeal Board) concluded that because plaintiff failed to file an amended Montana return at the time that it filed an amended federal return, the Department was allowed to assess tax liability under 15-31-544 and that the assessment was not barred by the statute of limitations. The District Court affirmed the STAB decision, and plaintiff appealed, but the Supreme Court affirmed. Under the 1995 version of 15-31-506 in effect at the time, plaintiff was required to report the change in its 1995 and 1996 federal taxable income to the state within 90 days of receiving notice of the change. Plaintiff did not file the required report, but argued on appeal that the statute of limitations expired prior to the state's issuance of an assessment for those years. The District Court erred in concluding that the assessment was not barred by the statute of limitations in 15-31-544 because that provision applies only when a taxpayer fails to file a return or files a fraudulent return. However, under 15-31-509, the limitations prescribed for giving notice of a proposed assessment of an additional tax does not apply when a taxpayer fails to file a report of changes in federal taxable income as required by 15-31-506 until 5 years after the federal changes become final. In this case, the federal changes became final when the Ninth Circuit Court issued its opinion in 2003, so the Department's 2004 assessment was issued well within the 5-year limitation period and was not barred by the statute of limitations. Frontier Chevrolet v. Dept. of Revenue, 2008 MT 191, 344 M 18, 186 P3d 219 (2008).

Statute of Limitations Applicable to Claims for Corporate License Tax Refunds: The 5-year statutory time limit within which to claim a refund of corporate license taxes (as provided in this section prior to 1997 amendment) begins running on the date established in 15-31-111(2). Although 15-31-111 allows a taxpayer to automatically extend for up to 6 months the period of time for filing, the extension is not included in determining when the limitations period begins to run. The extension simply gives the taxpayer additional time to prepare the return; it does not change the day prescribed for filing the return. Norfolk Holdings, Inc. v. Dept. of Revenue, 249 M 40, 813 P2d 460, 48 St. Rep. 569 (1991).

Corporate License Tax — Limitations on Assessment Where No Return — No Revival of Impliedly Repealed Section by Internal Reference: The 2-year Statute of Limitations in 27-2-211 applied to the assessment of corporate license tax for corporations that failed to file a return for the reason that the Supreme Court in St. v. King Colony Ranch, 137 M 145, 350 P2d 841 (1960), had held that sec. 1, Ch. 209, L. 1945 (amending 15-31-526), had superseded sec. 9, Ch. 166, L. 1933 (enacting 15-31-542), as to the time limitation and the Legislature, in sec. 2, Ch. 186, L. 1963 (enacting 15-31-509), though referencing 15-31-542 on an exception, had not used language to revive it; therefore 15-31-542 remained superseded or repealed. (But see 15-31-544.) Caterpillar Tractor Co., Inc. v. Dept. of Revenue, 194 M 537, 633 P2d 618, 38 St. Rep. 1245 (1981).

Limitation of Powers of Department — Extension Agreement: An agreement to extend the 5-year (now 3-year under 1997 amendment) period to give notice of a tax deficiency does not permit the Department of Revenue to give notice after expiration of the extension period. This section acts as a limitation on the powers of the Department and is not solely a Statute of Limitations that may be tolled simply by filing a notice of tax deficiency during the applicable period or an extension thereof. Anaconda Co. v. Dept. of Revenue, 178 M 254, 583 P2d 421 (1978).

Limitation on Action of Board: Under 15-31-526, prior to the 1963 amendment, the Board of Equalization (now Department of Revenue) was limited to going back no more than 5 (now 3 years under 1997 amendment) years to recover corporation license taxes alleged to be due. St. v. King Colony Ranch, 137 M 145, 350 P2d 841 (1960).

1999 Amendment: Chapter 427 in (1) substituted "there is charged interest in the amount of 12% a year calculated" for "there is assessed a 20% a year underpayment interest penalty calculated"; in (1)(b) and (1)(d) near beginning substituted "interest" for "the interest penalty" and after "installment may not be" substituted "charged" for "imposed"; in (2) at beginning inserted exception clause; and at end substituted "as provided in 15-1-216" for "at the rate of 12% a year from the due date until paid"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective January 1, 2000.

1997 Amendment: Chapter 51 deleted former (2) that read: "If the tax for any corporation is not paid on or before the due date of the return as provided in 15-31-111(2) or if the tax is not paid on or before the due date of the return as provided in 15-31-111(3), there is assessed a penalty of 10% of the amount of the tax due, unless it is shown that the failure was due to reasonable cause and not to neglect"; in (2) substituted "as provided in 15-31-545" for "under 15-31-111(2)"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 13, 1997.

Effective Date — Retroactive Applicability: Section 3, Ch. 54, L. 1995, provided: "[This act] is effective on passage and approval [approved February 9, 1995] and applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to tax years beginning after December 31, 1994."

1993 Amendment: Chapter 92 in (1)(a), near beginning after "underpayment is", substituted "the amount of the required installment set forth in 15-31-502 that exceeds the amount" for "in excess of the amount of the installment that would be required to be paid if the estimated tax were equal to 80% of the tax shown on the return for the taxable year or, if no return was filed, 80% of the tax for the year over the amount"; in (1)(b), after "tax were", deleted "the lesser of the following"; deleted former (1)(b)(i) and (1)(b)(ii) precluding payment of the interest penalty if the estimated tax required to be paid was the lesser of the tax shown on the return of the corporation for the preceding taxable year if a return showing a liability for tax was filed for the preceding taxable year and the preceding year was a taxable year of 12 months or an amount equal to the tax computed at the rates applicable to the taxable year, but otherwise on the basis of the facts shown on the return of the corporation for, and the law applicable to, the preceding taxable year; and made minor changes in style.

Case Notes

Interest Calculable From Date Outstanding Tax Balance Due: Plaintiff's tax liability for 1999 totaled $906,844, due on May 15, 2000. As of May 15, 2000, plaintiff had paid $1,361,802 in taxes for 1999. The Department of Revenue issued a refund of $824,112 on June 7, 2001, for the overpayment. On December 16, 2002, plaintiff filed an amended 1999 tax return reporting an additional tax liability of $368,654 and enclosed a payment of $435,012 with the amended return, which covered the additional tax liability plus $66,358 in interest. The Department contended that interest should have been assessed from the original return due date of May 15, 2000, and claimed that plaintiff owed an additional $51,610 in interest. Plaintiff argued that no tax was due pursuant to this section until June 7, 2001, and that no debt was owed, even in light of the additional tax liability that was discovered later, because plaintiff had overpaid taxes by such a significant amount. The Supreme Court agreed. Once the Department issued the refund, a deficit was created, although the deficit was not discovered until the amended return was filed. After the refund, plaintiff's total taxes paid for 1999 was $538,190, so as of June 7, 2001, plaintiff had an outstanding balance of $368,654. Thus, the date that the outstanding tax balance became due for purposes of this section was June 7, 2001, and interest on the outstanding balance should have been calculated from that date forward. Prohibition on Access to Corporate Tax Records Affirmed Absent Constitutional Challenge: A state senator requested certain corporate tax information from the Legislative Auditor, and the auditor compiled the information for tax year 2002 after receiving information from the Department of Revenue. The senator disclosed the information to the public. The senator subsequently requested that the Department provide similar information for other tax years, but the Department declined, citing the prohibition against disclosure of corporate tax information in this section. The senator petitioned the District Court to order disclosure of the information, but the court denied the petition. On appeal, the senator asserted that the records were subject to disclosure pursuant to the public's constitutional right to know and, without challenging the statute, dismissed the statutory prohibition on grounds that the statute must yield to constitutional law. The Supreme Court agreed with this cardinal premise, but noted that a statute is presumed constitutional unless unconstitutionality is demonstrated beyond a reasonable doubt. Absent a direct constitutional challenge to this section, the court declined to disturb the statutory prohibition against disclosure of corporate tax records. Elliott v. Dept. of Revenue, 2006 MT 267, 334 M 195, 146 P3d 741 (2006).

Corporate License Tax — Limitations on Assessment Where No Return — No Revival of Impliedly Repealed Section by Internal Reference: The 2-year Statute of Limitations in 27-2-211 applied to the assessment of corporate license tax for corporations that failed to file a return for the reason that the Supreme Court in St. v. King Colony Ranch, 137 M 145, 350 P2d 841 (1960), had held that sec. 1, Ch. 209, L. 1945 (amending 15-31-526), had superseded sec. 9, Ch. 166, L. 1933 (enacting 15-31-542), as to the time limitation and the Legislature, in sec. 2, Ch. 186, L. 1963 (enacting 15-31-509), though referencing 15-31-542 on an exception, had not used language to revive it; therefore 15-31-542 remained superseded or repealed. (But see 15-31-544.) Caterpillar Tractor Co., Inc. v. Dept. of Revenue, 194 M 537, 633 P2d 618, 38 St. Rep. 1245 (1981).

Limitation: Under this section, prior to the 1963 amendment, the Board of Equalization (now Department of Revenue) was limited to going back no more than 5 years to recover corporation license taxes alleged to be due. St. v. King Colony Ranch, 137 M 145, 350 P2d 841 (1960).

WHEREAS, the Department of Revenue's Integrated Revenue Information System is designed to ensure that the state's tax laws are applied fairly and consistently; and

WHEREAS, it is in the best interest of the State of Montana and taxpayers to expand the application of the uniform method of assessing penalties and interest."

Applicability: Section 43, Ch. 594, L. 2005, provided: "(1) Except as provided in subsections (2) and (3), [this act] applies on and after July 1, 2005.

Case Notes

Time of Taxpayer Delay Added to Period for Which No Interest Due on Refund Overpayment: This section establishes a 6-month period from the date that a return is due or filed, whichever is later, during which no interest is allowed on a refund. Plaintiff filed a return on October 13, 2000. According to the 6-month "safe harbor" period, if the Department of Revenue issued a refund to plaintiff by April 13, 2001, then plaintiff would not have been entitled to any interest on the overpayment. However, the refund was not issued until June 7, 2001, so plaintiff claimed to be entitled to interest. The Department contended that because plaintiff delayed the processing of the return by 84 days after the Department requested additional information, the 6-month period should be extended by that amount of time, which would place the June 7, 2001, payment within the safe harbor period and preclude the payment of interest on the refund. The Supreme Court agreed. When a taxpayer fails to respond to the Department's request for information within 30 days, interest will not accrue during the delay, and the running of the 6-month safe harbor is tolled during the delay. Thus, plaintiff was not entitled to interest on its overpayment. U.S. West, Inc. v. Dept. of Revenue, 2008 MT 125, 343 M 1, 183 P3d 16 (2008).

15-31-532. Application for refund — appeal from denial.

Compiler's Comments

1991 Amendment: At end of first sentence, after "notify the taxpayer", substituted "as provided in 15-1-211" for "accordingly", deleted former second and third sentences that read: "At the expiration of 30 days from the mailing of the notice, the department's action shall become final unless within the 30-day period the taxpayer appeals in writing from the action of said department to the state tax appeal board. If such appeal is made, the board shall grant the taxpayer an oral hearing. After consideration of the appeal and evidence presented, the board shall forthwith mail notice to the taxpayer of its determination. The board's determination is final when it mails notice of its action to the taxpayer", and inserted last sentence relating to review under 15-1-211.

Applicability: Section 31, Ch. 811, L. 1991, provided: "[This act] applies to requests for refunds received by and the notices of additional tax issued by the department of revenue pursuant to [section 1] [15-1-211] after December 31, 1991."

Case Notes

Failure to Report Change in Federal Taxable Income — When Federal Changes Become Final: The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) determined through an audit that plaintiff owed additional federal taxes for 1995 and 1996. Plaintiff appealed the assessment, but the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed the decision in 2003. The state Department of Revenue received two IRS reports in 2004 reflecting the changes in plaintiff's 1995 and 1996 taxable income and in 2004 issued plaintiff an assessment of additional state taxes due. Plaintiff appealed the assessment, arguing that the assessment had been issued beyond the statute of limitations in 15-31-509, but the State Tax Appeal Board (STAB) (now Montana Tax Appeal Board) concluded that because plaintiff failed to file an amended Montana return at the time that it filed an amended federal return, the Department was allowed to assess tax liability under 15-31-544 and that the assessment was not barred by the statute of limitations. The District Court affirmed the STAB decision, and plaintiff appealed, but the Supreme Court affirmed. Under the 1995 version of 15-31-506 in effect at the time, plaintiff was required to report the change in its 1995 and 1996 federal taxable income to the state within 90 days of receiving notice of the change. Plaintiff did not file the required report, but argued on appeal that the statute of limitations expired prior to the state's issuance of an assessment for those years. The District Court erred in concluding that the assessment was not barred by the statute of limitations in 15-31-544 because that provision applies only when a taxpayer fails to file a return or files a fraudulent return. However, under 15-31-509, the limitations prescribed for giving notice of a proposed assessment of an additional tax does not apply when a taxpayer fails to file a report of changes in federal taxable income as required by 15-31-506 until 5 years after the federal changes become final. In this case, the federal changes became final when the Ninth Circuit Court issued its opinion in 2003, so the Department's 2004 assessment was issued well within the 5-year limitation period and was not barred by the statute of limitations. Frontier Chevrolet v. Dept. of Revenue, 2008 MT 191, 344 M 18, 186 P3d 219 (2008).

Transition — Carryover of Credits: Section 66, Ch. 503, L. 2021, provided: "A credit allowed a taxpayer prior to January 1, 2022, under the provisions of law in effect prior to January 1, 2022, that may be carried forward for a specified number of years is not impaired by [this act], and a taxpayer may claim the credit for the taxes specified for the period established in the section at the time the credit was first allowed. This section applies to all tax credits that are removed or repealed by [this act]."

Coordination: Section 8, Ch. 576, L. 1977, read: "If House Bill 70 [Ch. 566] is enacted, then in lieu of the amendments to 84-301 enacted by this act, classes fifteen and eighteen in House Bill 70 [Ch. 566] shall be further amended by deleting references to capital investments in recognized nonfossil forms of energy generation and in building for an energy conservation purpose." House Bill 70 was enacted by Ch. 566, L. 1977, thus giving effect to sec. 8, Ch. 576, L. 1977.

1991 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 467, L. 1991, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because it is anticipated that rulemaking proceedings will be required for implementation.

Montana currently has nine communities that exceed the state and federal ambient air quality standards for particulate matter smaller than 10 microns in diameter (PM-10) and two communities that exceed carbon monoxide standards. Several other communities have PM-10 concentrations approaching the ambient standards.

It is the intention of the legislature that the tax credit available for the cost of purchasing and installing a low emission wood or biomass combustion device be restricted to only the most efficient devices available on the market. While replacing older wood stoves with newer low-emission wood stoves may reduce ambient levels of PM-10, carbon monoxide, and other pollutants, the legislature finds that the current tax incentives do not encourage the improvements in efficiency and reductions in pollutants that will be required in the future to improve air quality.

While it restricts the availability of these tax incentives, the legislature finds it appropriate to increase the amount of the incentive available for those devices that qualify. This action is intended to stimulate the availability of the more efficient devices and further promote their use. Changes are also being made, as appropriate, to preserve the application of other incentives to the installation and production of these devices."

Applicability: Section 5, Ch. 467, L. 1991, provided: "[This act] applies to taxable years beginning after December 31, 1991, and before January 1, 1996."

Retroactive Applicability: Section 4, Ch. 646, L. 1991, provided that the amendment to this section applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to taxable years beginning after December 31, 1990.

1989 Amendment: At beginning of (6)(b) inserted "a system"; at beginning of (6)(c) substituted "low-emission" for "low emission" and at end deleted "and also means"; and reoutlined subsection (6) and made minor changes in punctuation and phraseology.

1985 Amendment: Inserted definition of "Low emission wood or biomass combustion device"; and in (6) after "solid wood wastes", inserted "a low emission wood or biomass combustion device".

Attorney General's Opinions

"Nonresidential Structure" to Refer to Entire System: The exemption given to each "nonresidential structure" in 15-6-201 refers to each energy generating system, not to its individual parts. The reference to nonfossil forms of energy generation is defined in 15-32-102 to be a system for capturing or converting energy into usable sources. The legislative intent behind 15-6-201 indicates the intention of encouraging, through tax incentives, the development of alternative energy systems. Whether a single structure contains all the components that generate energy, thereby making it a system, must be made on a case-by-case basis. 40 A.G. Op. 6 (1983).

Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to HB 534 (Ch. 652, L. 1979) provided: "In adopting rules to determine the eligibility for tax credits of recognized nonfossil forms of energy generation that produce passive solar heat, the department shall rely on the standards adopted, if any, by the Internal Revenue Service pursuant to the National Energy Act and on those adopted by the states of California and New Mexico. The department of revenue shall adapt these standards to fit passive solar systems suited for Montana's climate.

A passive solar system includes only those portions and components of a building that are expressly designed and required for the collection, storage, and distribution of solar energy and that are not standard components of a conventional building. Thus, the conventional amount of south-facing windows or a standard mass wall could not be included as part of a passive solar system, but additional south-facing windows or additional thickenings to a standard mass wall used for solar heat storage could be included."

15-32-609. Recycled material qualifying for deduction — purpose — rulemaking.

Compiler's Comments

1993 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 568, L. 1993, provided: "A statement of intent is included in this bill because [section 2] [15-32-609] requires rulemaking by the department of revenue. The department is to conduct rulemaking to define the recycled materials that qualify for a tax deduction under 15-32-610.

The goal of amending 15-32-601 and of adopting rules to implement the amendment is to reduce solid waste and pollution. The greater the quantity of material reclaimed, the longer landfills will last and the less pollution they will create. The best way to reduce landfill material is to reclaim postconsumer material for reuse. The rules of the department should provide for using the maximum postconsumer reclaimed material content possible when defining the reclaimed material eligible for additional tax deduction.

It is intended that the department keep abreast of the recycling industry and try to encourage maximum use of recycled materials through the use of the tax deduction. The department should define recycled material by the amount and type of reclaimable material, as defined in 15-32-601, that it contains. The amount of material may be measured by volume, weight, fiber content, or other applicable standard. Recycled material may also be defined by the type of reclaimed material it contains, such as postconsumer, de-inked, or other applicable type.

The amounts and types of reclaimed material should follow industry standards so that industry labeling, as certified by appropriate bodies, can be used by purchasers to ensure that the products they are purchasing meet departmental deductibility definitions."

Amendment effective July 1, 2005.

1995 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 542, L. 1995, provided: "This bill extends by 6 years the termination date for the recycling tax credit provided for in 15-32-602 and the recycling tax deduction provided for in 15-32-610. It also expands the application of the credit to include investments in equipment used to treat soils contaminated by hazardous wastes. In order to implement the tax credit for capital investments in property purchased to collect or process reclaimed material, including soil that has been contaminated by hazardous wastes, provided for under 15-32-602, the department of revenue shall make a determination about the equipment and processes that qualify. It is the intent of the legislature that the department of health and environmental sciences [now department of environmental quality], upon request, assist the department of revenue in making that determination."

Extension of Termination Date: Section 4, Ch. 542, L. 1995, amended sec. 9, Ch. 712, L. 1991, to read: "[This act] terminates December 31, 2001." The effect of the amendment is to extend the termination date of this section from December 31, 1995, to December 31, 2001.

1991 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 712, L. 1991, provided: "A statement of intent is necessary for this bill because [section 5] [section 6 after amendment, now this section] grants rulemaking authority to the department of revenue. This bill allows rulemaking to proceed prior to the effective date of the act to allow the department ample time prior to the time the bill goes into effect to hold hearings and elicit the views of taxpayers, the public, and groups interested in the reclamation and recycling of materials.

The legislature expects the department to adopt rules that will promote the reclamation of materials that would normally be discarded, by encouraging the collection, processing, and reuse of reclaimable and recycled materials by businesses.

The bill addresses four levels of business involvement in the reclamation and recycling of materials:

(1) Retail businesses are encouraged to purchase equipment to collect reclaimable material from consumers.

(2) Recyclers are encouraged to purchase equipment to collect reclaimable material from businesses and other sources and process the material.

(3) Manufacturers are encouraged to purchase equipment to manufacture products from reclaimed material.

(4) All businesses are offered an additional business-related tax deduction to use recycled products in the course of their business.

The scope of the business activity to qualify for a tax credit should be broad. Retail grocery stores and other businesses should be encouraged to collect reclaimable material by receiving a tax credit for equipment they purchase to collect the material, even if they do not directly receive a business-related profit from the equipment or collection operation. Recyclers are encouraged to purchase collection and processing equipment, and manufacturers are encouraged to purchase equipment to make products from reclaimed material.

The rules should be inflexible in allowing dual roles for equipment—the qualifying equipment should be used primarily for the purposes of this bill. The rules should be flexible in determining the specifics of what are to be defined as reclaimable materials and recycled materials. The in-state advantages to building industry based upon reclamation and recycling may have local and interstate benefits that far outweigh the cost of a tax credit and additional deduction."

CHAPTER 35
COAL SEVERANCE TAX

Chapter Case Notes

State Taxation of Coal in Indian Ceded Strip — Crow Coal Case: The state was not required to pay taxes that it collected, plus interest, to the Crow Tribe for taxes paid by a non-Indian mining company that were imposed on coal that was owned by the tribe but was not within the Crow Reservation. The tribe based its case upon assumpsit and constructive trust because the state taxes, which were illegally collected, unjustly enriched the state and burdened the tribe's economic interests by decreasing the sale of Crow coal. The U.S. Supreme Court held that because the taxes were paid by the mining company, which forfeited entitlement to a tax refund, and that because the tribe could not have imposed a tax during the time in question, disgorgement of Montana taxes was not warranted and damages could not be granted since the tribe sought only disgorgement to the exclusion of damages. Mont. v. Crow Tribe of Indians, 523 US 696 (1998).

Coal Severance Tax Not in Contravention of Federal Constitutional or Statutory Policy: The Montana coal severance tax in its present form is a lawful exercise of this state's taxing authority. The Montana Supreme Court upheld the tax stating that, whether as a question of this state's power to levy any tax or its power to levy a tax at the rate set forth, there has been no preemption by the federal government in the field of coal severance taxation, or any national policy derived from Congressional enactments pursuant to the constitution with which Montana's tax conflicts. Part Administrative Rules

Title 42, chapter 25, subchapter 5, ARM Gross proceeds on coal production.

Part Case Notes

1999 Coal Producer's License Tax Violative of Constitutional Coal Severance Tax Provisions: By simple majority vote, the 1999 Legislature passed House Bill No. 260, which created a license tax on the production of coal and allocated revenue from the tax to various state programs. Several legislators challenged the validity of the new tax, contending that by creating a license tax on the same taxable event for which the state coal severance tax is imposed and then providing a credit against the severance tax in an amount slightly greater than the amount of the license tax, the Legislature simply diverted what in substance and character are coal severance taxes to purposes other than the coal tax trust fund, in violation of Art. IX, sec. 5, Mont. Const. The Supreme Court agreed, noting that the only difference between the coal severance tax and the coal producer's license tax was the purpose for which each was allocated. A tax on the production of natural resources is characterized by the nature of the activity upon which the tax is imposed, and the effect of a legislative assessment is more important than its label in determining the character of the tax. Legislative imposition of a tax can become unlawful when done to accomplish an unlawful end, which was the case in this instance because the coal producer's license tax diverted production-based coal severance taxes for an unconstitutional purpose. Although the Legislature has the authority to determine the percentage of the coal severance tax, in this case, the Legislature simply gave a different name to the same tax and thereby diverted revenue to causes other than the coal tax trust fund. A coal severance tax by any other name is just as dedicated. By diverting and allocating coal severance tax revenue in a manner contrary to the requirement in Art. IX, sec. 5, and by doing so without the required three-fourths vote of each house of the Legislature, House Bill No. 260 violated the constitution; thus, the state was enjoined from enforcing House Bill No. 260. State Taxation of Coal in Indian Ceded Strip — Crow Coal Case: The state was not required to pay taxes that it collected, plus interest, to the Crow Tribe for taxes paid by a non-Indian mining company that were imposed on coal that was owned by the tribe but was not within the Crow Reservation. The tribe based its case upon assumpsit and constructive trust because the state taxes, which were illegally collected, unjustly enriched the state and burdened the tribe's economic interests by decreasing the sale of Crow coal. The U.S. Supreme Court held that because the taxes were paid by the mining company, which forfeited entitlement to a tax refund, and that because the tribe could not have imposed a tax during the time in question, disgorgement of Montana taxes was not warranted and damages could not be granted since the tribe sought only disgorgement to the exclusion of damages. Mont. v. Crow Tribe of Indians, 523 US 696 (1998).

History of Crow Case:

In 1978, the Crow Tribe brought action against Montana, seeking declaratory and injunctive relief against the imposition of the state's 30% coal severance and gross proceeds taxes on tribally owned coal mined from the Crow Reservation and the "ceded strip" by non-Indian lessees. While the District Court dismissed the action (469 F. Supp. 154 (D.C. Mont. 1979)), the Ninth Circuit Court, on appeal by the tribe, reversed and remanded (650 F2d 1104 (9th Cir. 1981), as amended by 665 F2d 1390 (9th Cir. 1982) (Crow I)). On remand, the District Court upheld the state's application of taxes for coal mined in the "ceded strip", but it abstained from deciding whether taxes could be imposed on the reservation boundaries (657 F. Supp. 573 (D.C. Mont. 1985)). On appeal, the Ninth Circuit Court reversed, ruling that federal law and policy preempted state taxation and that the taxes infringed on tribal sovereignty. The court also held that the question of whether coal mined on the reservation would be subject to taxation was a justiciable controversy (819 F2d 895 (9th Cir. 1987) (Crow II)). On appeal by the state, the Supreme Court affirmed the decision of the Ninth Circuit Court (108 S Ct 685 (1988)).

After Crow II, the District Court awarded the tribe over $23 million in severance taxes that the lessee Westmoreland had paid after 1982. The tribe then sought restitution of some $57 million in total taxes paid to the state and county between 1975 and 1982. The District Court denied the state's motion to dismiss the claim and certified an order for interlocutory appeal. After initially granting the leave to appeal, the Ninth Circuit Court dismissed the appeal, ruling that the states argument concerning privity had been resolved against the state in Crow II. Crow Tribe of Indians v. Mont., 969 F2d 848 (9th Cir. 1992) (Crow III).

After trial, the District Court denied relief, ruling that the tribe was not entitled to restitution. On appeal, a three-judge panel of the Ninth Circuit Court reversed, concluding that the District Court's denial of equitable relief was erroneously based on considerations explicitly rejected in the previous court decisions. The case was remanded to District Court for entry of an order directing the state and county to return the improperly collected taxes and for consideration by the court of the tribe's unresolved request for prejudgment interest. Crow Tribe of Indians v. Mont., 92 F3d 826 (9th Cir. 1996) (Crow IV), reversed and remanded in Mont. v. Crow Tribe of Indians, 523 US 696 (1998).

Case Notes

Coal Contract Sales Price Includes Certain Additives — Plain Language of Statute and Legislative History Confirm Taxation of Coal Additives Prior to Shipment: Following audits of the plaintiff coal mine operator for 2005-2007, the Department of Revenue assessed additional coal severance taxes and penalties. In addition to a valuation issue, the assessment included recovery of taxes on two items that were added to coal before it was shipped on a train. The additives included a freeze-proofing agent and dust suppressants. The plaintiff responded by filing a declaratory relief action in District Court, alleging that the additives should not be part of the sales price, and that legislative enactments were being applied retroactively. The District Court held that the additives were subject to coal taxes based on both the plain language of the definition "contract sales price" in 15-35-102 and the legislative history. On appeal, the Supreme Court affirmed, reasoning that the statute was broad enough to assess taxes based on the costs associated with the preparation of coal for shipment, and that later legislative amendments provided further explanation of this practice. Cloud Peak Energy Resources, LLC v. St., 2015 MT 10, 378 Mont. 54, 340 P.3d 1258.

Deduction for Tribal Tax Not Permitted: The plaintiff, who operated a mine on tribal land, paid coal severance and gross proceeds taxes to the tribe. The plaintiff also paid Montana's Resource Indemnity Trust and Ground Water Assessment Tax (RITT) to the Department of Revenue. In paying the RITT, the plaintiff attempted to deduct tribal taxes from the contract sales price used to calculate the RITT. The RITT calculation specifically did not include deductions for payments to a tribal entity, but it included a deduction for other local governments. The Supreme Court held that because the deduction for other local governments specifically did not include tribal governments, the RITT did not allow a deduction for tribal taxes. Westmoreland Resources Inc. v. Dept. of Revenue, 2014 MT 212, 376 Mont. 180, 330 P.3d 1188.

Apportionment of Tax From Coal Mine Spanning Two Counties Proper: Musselshell County filed an action against Yellowstone County for a declaratory judgment that the Department of Revenue improperly allocated a portion of the tax collected on coal from the Signal Peak mine, which spans both counties. Musselshell County argued that while coal is extracted from both counties, the coal is shipped only from Musselshell County and that the Department was required to adopt rules under the Montana Administrative Procedure Act to correctly apportion the proceeds. The Supreme Court held that the Legislature intended the coal gross proceeds to be apportioned between the counties in which the mine is located and that the Department was not required to adopt an administrative rule before apportioning the proceeds. Musselshell County v. Yellowstone County, 2012 MT 292, 367 Mont. 350, 291 P.3d 579.

Case Notes

1999 Coal Producer's License Tax Violative of Constitutional Coal Severance Tax Provisions: By simple majority vote, the 1999 Legislature passed House Bill No. 260, which created a license tax on the production of coal and allocated revenue from the tax to various state programs. Several legislators challenged the validity of the new tax, contending that by creating a license tax on the same taxable event for which the state coal severance tax is imposed and then providing a credit against the severance tax in an amount slightly greater than the amount of the license tax, the Legislature simply diverted what in substance and character are coal severance taxes to purposes other than the coal tax trust fund, in violation of Art. IX, sec. 5, Mont. Const. The Supreme Court agreed, noting that the only difference between the coal severance tax and the coal producer's license tax was the purpose for which each was allocated. A tax on the production of natural resources is characterized by the nature of the activity upon which the tax is imposed, and the effect of a legislative assessment is more important than its label in determining the character of the tax. Legislative imposition of a tax can become unlawful when done to accomplish an unlawful end, which was the case in this instance because the coal producer's license tax diverted production-based coal severance taxes for an unconstitutional purpose. Although the Legislature has the authority to determine the percentage of the coal severance tax, in this case, the Legislature simply gave a different name to the same tax and thereby diverted revenue to causes other than the coal tax trust fund. A coal severance tax by any other name is just as dedicated. By diverting and allocating coal severance tax revenue in a manner contrary to the requirement in Art. IX, sec. 5, and by doing so without the required three-fourths vote of each house of the Legislature, House Bill No. 260 violated the constitution; thus, the state was enjoined from enforcing House Bill No. 260. State Taxation of Coal in Indian Ceded Strip — Crow Coal Case: The state was not required to pay taxes that it collected, plus interest, to the Crow Tribe for taxes paid by a non-Indian mining company that were imposed on coal that was owned by the tribe but was not within the Crow Reservation. The tribe based its case upon assumpsit and constructive trust because the state taxes, which were illegally collected, unjustly enriched the state and burdened the tribe's economic interests by decreasing the sale of Crow coal. The U.S. Supreme Court held that because the taxes were paid by the mining company, which forfeited entitlement to a tax refund, and that because the tribe could not have imposed a tax during the time in question, disgorgement of Montana taxes was not warranted and damages could not be granted since the tribe sought only disgorgement to the exclusion of damages. Mont. v. Crow Tribe of Indians, 523 US 696 (1998).

History of Crow Case:

In 1978, the Crow Tribe brought action against Montana, seeking declaratory and injunctive relief against the imposition of the state's 30% coal severance and gross proceeds taxes on tribally owned coal mined from the Crow Reservation and the "ceded strip" by non-Indian lessees. While the District Court dismissed the action (469 F. Supp. 154 (D.C. Mont. 1979)), the Ninth Circuit Court, on appeal by the tribe, reversed and remanded (650 F2d 1104 (9th Cir. 1981), as amended by 665 F2d 1390 (9th Cir. 1982) (Crow I)). On remand, the District Court upheld the state's application of taxes for coal mined in the "ceded strip", but it abstained from deciding whether taxes could be imposed on the reservation boundaries (657 F. Supp. 573 (D.C. Mont. 1985)). On appeal, the Ninth Circuit Court reversed, ruling that federal law and policy preempted state taxation and that the taxes infringed on tribal sovereignty. The court also held that the question of whether coal mined on the reservation would be subject to taxation was a justiciable controversy (819 F2d 895 (9th Cir. 1987) (Crow II)). On appeal by the state, the Supreme Court affirmed the decision of the Ninth Circuit Court (108 S Ct 685 (1988)).

After Crow II, the District Court awarded the tribe over $23 million in severance taxes that the lessee Westmoreland had paid after 1982. The tribe then sought restitution of some $57 million in total taxes paid to the state and county between 1975 and 1982. The District Court denied the state's motion to dismiss the claim and certified an order for interlocutory appeal. After initially granting the leave to appeal, the Ninth Circuit Court dismissed the appeal, ruling that the states argument concerning privity had been resolved against the state in Crow II. Crow Tribe of Indians v. Mont., 969 F2d 848 (9th Cir. 1992) (Crow III).

After trial, the District Court denied relief, ruling that the tribe was not entitled to restitution. On appeal, a three-judge panel of the Ninth Circuit Court reversed, concluding that the District Court's denial of equitable relief was erroneously based on considerations explicitly rejected in the previous court decisions. The case was remanded to District Court for entry of an order directing the state and county to return the improperly collected taxes and for consideration by the court of the tribe's unresolved request for prejudgment interest. Crow Tribe of Indians v. Mont., 92 F3d 826 (9th Cir. 1996) (Crow IV), reversed and remanded in Mont. v. Crow Tribe of Indians, 523 US 696 (1998).

Applicability of Tax to Adjustment Portion of Coal Sales Price — Commerce Clause: The contract sales price for coal was adjusted when the actual BTU content of the coal was different from the BTU content warranted by seller. The warranted BTU content determined the base price of the coal. The adjustment formula took railroad shipping charges into account and was part of the contract sales price. The coal severance and gross proceeds taxes were based on the contract sales price, and the resource indemnity tax was based on the value of the coal at the time of extraction. It was proper for the state to apply the coal severance, gross proceeds, and resource indemnity trust taxes to amounts seller received on upward price adjustments caused by higher BTU content, after deducting from the contract sales price, for purposes of the resource indemnity trust tax, the costs of hauling the coal from the mine to the railroad and preparing the coal for shipment. Seller's claim that it was taxed on the revenue received pursuant to the transportation costs component of the adjustment formula was properly denied in the lower court. Transportation costs were paid by the buyer, not the seller, the transportation cost component of the formula was based on the average transportation rate per ton and did not vary. The adjustment formula did nothing to alter the actual transportation costs. The claim that the commerce clause of the United States Constitution was violated was properly denied in the lower court because seller did not receive, and thus was not taxed on, any transportation revenue. Westmoreland Resources v. Dept. of Revenue, 263 M 303, 868 P2d 592, 51 St. Rep. 67 (1994).

Coal Severance Tax Not in Contravention of Federal Constitutional or Statutory Policy: The Montana coal severance tax in its present form is a lawful exercise of this state's taxing authority. The Montana Supreme Court upheld the tax stating that, whether as a question of this state's power to levy any tax or its power to levy a tax at the rate set forth, there has been no preemption by the federal government in the field of coal severance taxation, or any national policy derived from Congressional enactments pursuant to the constitution with which Montana's tax conflicts. Commonwealth Edison Co. v. St., 189 M 191, 615 P2d 847, 37 St. Rep. 1192 (1980).

Case Notes

Unconstitutionality of Department of Revenue Rule Concerning Confidentiality of Coal Severance Tax Information: Plaintiffs sought information regarding coal severance tax payments that had been routinely supplied to the Department of Revenue by coal mine operators prior to adoption of ARM 42.2.701 (now repealed), which declared certain information, such as tax returns that taxpayers are required to submit to the Department and Department-prepared documents that identify taxpayers, to be confidential. Plaintiffs challenged the rule on grounds that it violated constitutional and statutory rights to public information. The Department asserted that the rule was adopted to protect taxpayers' constitutional right to privacy and to inform the public of the Department's procedures regarding the confidentiality of tax information. The District Court found that the rule was adopted after balancing the public's right to know with the coal producers' right to privacy and that the producers had a reasonable and ongoing expectation of privacy that outweighed the public's right to know. On appeal, the Supreme Court disagreed, finding ARM 42.2.701 (now repealed) unconstitutional on its face. The rule presumes a wholesale constitutionally protected right to privacy for all taxpayers that prevails over public disclosure without balancing the taxpayers' right to privacy with the public's right to know. Prior to adoption of the rule, coal producers did not have an actual or subjective expectation of privacy in revenue information submitted to the Department. After the rule was adopted, the producers could assert a subjective expectation of privacy. However, based on a facially unconstitutional rule, the expectation was not one society would be willing to recognize as reasonable, especially when the information had been routinely available for nearly 20 years before ARM 42.2.701 (now repealed) was adopted. Neither prong of the two-part privacy test in Great Falls Tribune Co., Inc. v. Day, 1998 MT 133, 289 M 155, 959 P2d 508 (1998), having been met, a constitutionally protected privacy interest in the information was ruled out. Assoc. Press, Inc. v. Case Notes

Imputed Value of Coal Not Value When Loaded on Train — Similarly Negotiated Contracts Provided Value of Coal — Valuation Methodology Varies Based on Economic Conditions: Following audits of the plaintiff coal mine operator for 2005-2007, the Department of Revenue assessed additional coal severance taxes and penalties in the amount of $3,369,713. The plaintiff responded by filing a declaratory relief action in District Court, alleging that the Department's methodology in calculating the imputed fair market value of coal for non-arm's-length sales was improper under 15-35-107. The District Court ruled in favor of the plaintiff and held that when price is determined by contract it is the negotiation timeframe that should set the market value, and not the date coal is loaded on the train. On appeal, the Supreme Court affirmed the holding that market value was properly based on similarly negotiated contracts, but it also determined that the District Court improperly limited the Department's discretion by directing the usage of comparable sales to a negotiation timeframe that was a few months before and a few months after the contracts were executed. The Supreme Court cautioned that each case may require a different analysis depending on the economic conditions necessary to properly measure market value. Cloud Peak Energy Resources, LLC v. St., 2015 MT 10, 378 Mont. 54, 340 P.3d 1258.

Imputed Value of Coal Not Approximate of Market Value Under Market Conditions at Time of Sale — Additional Coal Tax Assessment Reversed: Following three audits of Decker Coal Co. (Decker) for 1987-92, the Department of Revenue assessed additional taxes and interest for years 1987-90. Administrative appeals were denied. Subsequently, there was an additional assessment for 1991-92, and administrative appeals were again denied. Both appeals were consolidated before the State Tax Appeal Board (STAB) (now Montana Tax Appeal Board), which granted the Department's motion for summary judgment. Upon judicial review, the District Court affirmed the STAB decision, and Decker appealed to the Supreme Court. Under the terms of Decker's 1974 long-term coal sales contract with Commonwealth Edison (ComEd), coal was to be supplied at a base price that would be adjusted over time by a predetermined escalator. During the audit period of 1987-92, the base price plus escalators was $24 to $28 a ton. However, during that time, Decker sold coal for $7.50 to $10.42 a ton to two other coal companies, who in turn sold the coal to ComEd under their contract right to outsource coal from an alternative source, in this case Decker. Decker timely paid $8.5 million in taxes on the full contract price and received no additional money or other consideration from the two companies. The Department contended that by selling coal to two other companies, Decker was attempting to contract away its tax obligation on coal mined under its original ComEd contract. Thus, the Department applied the imputed price of $24 to $28 a ton as market value. Decker asserted that during the period in question, it never had an opportunity to sell the coal at the imputed price. Under this section, the Department may impute a value to coal sales rather than relying on contract prices if: (1) it determines that the contract price does not represent an arm's-length agreement; and (2) the imputed value approximates market value. Both conditions must be satisfied before an imputed value may be assessed. The Department also argued that the statute allows application of factors used under federal tax regulations and that when those factors were applied, the representative market price was established by the original Decker-ComEd contract. The undisputed definition of "market value" in this case, as established by the District Court, was "the price that a willing buyer would pay a willing seller under the market and economic conditions at the time of sale". The only evidence of market value under this definition was presented by Decker's expert, which showed that coal sales in Decker's market area during the time in question ranged from $3.77 to $7.61 a ton; thus, the prices paid to Decker met or exceeded market value. The Department's imputed price erroneously ignored the temporal component of the definition, which required consideration of market factors at the time of sale, and the federal tax language did not suggest that the taxpayer's own actual sales be determinative of current market value regardless of date and price. Thus, the Supreme Court held that Decker's sale of coal to ComEd pursuant to the contract with predetermined escalators was not representative of the market and economic conditions at the time of sale and therefore did not meet the definition of market value. The STAB and Department conclusion that the 1974 contract represented market value was incorrect. Decker showed that the Department's imputed value did not approximate market value f.o.b. mine under market and economic conditions at the time of sale, so the District Court decision affirming STAB was dismissed. Because this issue was dispositive, the court did not address whether the sale price constituted an arm's-length agreement. Decker Coal Co. v. Dept. of Revenue, 2000 MT 125, 299 M 477, 2 P3d 245, 57 St. Rep. 512 (2000).

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 390, L. 2013, provided: "WHEREAS, Article VIII, section 15, of the Montana Constitution requires that "Public retirement systems shall be funded on an actuarially sound basis" and that "Public retirement system assets, including income and actuarially required contributions, shall not be encumbered, diverted, reduced, or terminated and shall be held in trust to provide benefits to participants and their beneficiaries and to defray administrative expenses"; and

WHEREAS, the unprecedented collapse of the financial markets in 2008 through 2009 and the subsequent slow rate of economic recovery have resulted in little or no prospect that current statutory contribution rates together with future market returns will be sufficient to fund the Public Employees' Retirement System on an actuarially sound basis, and current contributions remain insufficient to pay the past and future accruals of retirement benefits for members currently in the system; and

WHEREAS, failure to return the system to a position of actuarially sound funding places the benefits to be paid to current system participants in jeopardy and results in collection of employee contributions for which future benefits may not be guaranteed; and

WHEREAS, the current and increasing level of unfunded liabilities has the potential to compromise the credit ratings of the state of Montana and of local government entities, including public school districts; and

WHEREAS, because reasonable increases in employer contributions and reasonable reductions in benefits for future participants alone will not be sufficient to return the system to a position of actuarially sound funding, a reasonable increase in contributions for current participants is necessary to help return the system to a position of actuarially sound funding; and

WHEREAS, during the past two legislative sessions and interims, the Legislature, interim committees, the retirement system board and staff, and the Governor's office have analyzed and enacted alternatives for returning the system to a position of actuarially sound funding without raising contract impairment issues for current members, which have failed to reduce system costs enough to restore the system to actuarial soundness; and

WHEREAS, in light of significant strains on the Montana economy, on state and local government budgets, and on taxpayers, a modest supplemental contribution rate increase of 1% imposed on current members, with an appropriate mechanism to terminate the supplemental contribution rate as system funding improves and in conjunction with additional employer and state contributions, is, pursuant to the language of U.S. Trust Company of New York v. New Jersey, 431 U.S. 1 (1977), concerning contract impairment, reasonable and necessary, is for a valid public purpose, and is the least impairing alternative available to the Legislature as it seeks to fulfill its constitutional obligation to ensure that the retirement system is funded in an actuarially sound manner."

Attorney General's Opinions

"Collection" as Referring to Quarter of Assessment Rather Than Quarter of Payment: The coal tax is assessed on coal mined during the quarter but the payment is not due until 30 days following the end of the quarter. The term "collection" refers to the assessment rather than the actual payment of the tax. 38 A.G. Op. 72 (1980).

Applicability of Distribution Formula: The distribution formula embodied in Ch. 540, L. 1977, applies only to taxes assessed on coal mined after July 1, 1977. 37 A.G. Op. 73 (1977).

(2) A repayment amount under subsection (1) must include interest at the average annual short-term investment pool rate of the preceding fiscal year."

Retroactive Applicability: Section 3, Ch. 299, L. 1993, provided that this section applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to August 11, 1989.

Powers of State Board of Equalization Transferred: Chapter 405, L. 1973, transferred the powers and duties of the State Board of Equalization to the Department of Revenue and the State Tax Appeal Board (now Montana Tax Appeal Board). In Dept. of Revenue v. Burlington N., Inc., 169 M 202, 545 P2d 1083 (1976), the Montana Supreme Court held that State Board of Equalization's administrative functions were transferred to the Department of Revenue, while the appellate functions were transferred to the State Tax Appeal Board (now Montana Tax Appeal Board).

Chapter Case Notes

Lease Not Tract of Land: Gary Drilling Company obtained a declaratory judgment that the production from certain of its wells had to be taxed as new production under a predecessor to this chapter. The Department of Revenue appealed, arguing that it could not be new production because there had been previous production on the tract of land where the company had drilled the wells. The Supreme Court held that the oil was new production because the company operated under a different lease than the one used by the parties that had obtained earlier production on the property. Gary Drilling Co. v. Dept. of Revenue, 250 M 313, 820 P2d 428, 48 St. Rep. 975 (1991).

State Taxation of Indian Trust Properties Valid — No Repeal by Implication Found: Where the plaintiff Indian tribe sought declaratory and injunctive relief against the levy and collection of certain taxes (now repealed) by the state and several counties on the production of oil and gas owned by the United States in trust for the plaintiff by non-Indian lessees within the boundaries of the plaintiff's reservation, the court held that the provisions of 25 U.S.C. § 398 specifically authorized state taxation of oil and gas on tribal lands and that the provisions of the statute had not been impliedly repealed by 25 U.S.C. § 396. The sovereign right asserted by the plaintiff to be free from state taxation has been controlled by Congress, and the plaintiff has not shown that there is such a repugnancy between the two federal statutes as to satisfy their burden of proving a congressional intent to repeal the former by enactment of the latter or that there is an ambiguity in the law which should be construed in favor of the plaintiff. Blackfeet Tribe v. St., 507 F. Supp. 446, 38 St. Rep. 238 (D.C. Mont. 1981); reversed in part and remanded for further proceedings by en banc court of appeals, Blackfeet Tribe v. Mont., 729 F2d 1192 (9th Cir. 1984); certiorari granted state to resolve whether Montana may tax Indian royalty interest arising out of leases executed after the adoption of 1938 Act, and U.S. Supreme Court upheld the 9th Circuit decision that state could not tax such royalty interests. Mont. v. Blackfeet Tribe, 105 S Ct 2399 (1985).

Production Under Lease of Trust Patent Indian Land — Prior Tax Laws: The State Board of Equalization (now Department of Revenue) is authorized to levy the operator's net proceeds tax and the oil producers' license tax or gross production tax, but not the royalty owner's net proceeds tax, on oil and gas produced under a lease of trust patent Indian land. (Overruling Santa Rita Oil & Gas Co. v. St. Bd. of Equalization (now Department of Revenue), 101 M 268, 54 P2d 117 (1936), with exception of the royalty owner's net proceeds tax, for the reason that the federal Supreme Court overruled its holdings upon which the state court's former opinion was based.) Santa Rita Oil & Gas Co. v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 112 M 359, 116 P2d 1012 (1941).

Nature of Tax: Under former law, oil and gas in place is land, and a tax on the income of such oil and gas is a tax on land. A tax on the royalty, which only accrues as a result of the production of oil or gas, is a burden on the production of oil or gas and, therefore, a tax levied and assessed against the gas and oil produced. A tax on royalty is a part of the net proceeds tax arising out of the operation of mines, and the holder of royalty interest is liable for tax thereon in absence of contractual obligation to the contrary. N. Pac. Ry. v. Gas Dev. Co., 103 M 214, 62 P2d 204 (1936).

Estate in Land Created by Lease of Trust Patent Indian Land Held Taxable: Oil and gas leases on Indian lands held under trust patent, in which the oil and gas were reserved for the benefit of the tribe, created an estate in land distinct and separate from the interest held by the federal government, which estate was subject to operators' net proceeds tax and the gross production tax (now repealed). British-American Oil Prod. Co. v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 101 M 293, 54 P2d 129 (1936), affirmed 299 US 159, 81 L Ed 95, 57 S Ct 132 (1936).

Nonresident Royalty Holder: Under former law, the fact that the owner of a royalty interest in an oil well made taxable under sections 2096.1 and 2096.2, R.C.M. 1935 (now repealed), was a nonresident of the state did not render him immune from payment of a tax thereon, the tax imposed upon the royalty as a part of the net proceeds being in lieu of the ad valorem tax on the oil in the ground as a part of the realty and not a personal property tax depending upon the residence of the owner. Forbes v. Mid-Northern Oil Co., 100 M 10, 45 P2d 673 (1935).

Land Leased From United States: An oil company operating under leases from the United States government and assigned to it, under the terms of which the lessees were given the exclusive right to explore for, extract, and dispose of oil and gas in lands covered by homestead entries for which patents had not issued, is not such an agency or instrumentality of the federal government as to render the license or occupation tax imposed by Ch. 266, L. 1921, invalid. Mid-Northern Oil Co. v. Walker, 65 M 414, 211 P 353 (1922), affirmed, 268 US 45, 69 L Ed 841, 45 S Ct 440 (1925).

Nature of Tax: The tax of 1% of the gross value of crude oil exacted from persons engaged in producing petroleum within the state, by Ch. 266, L. 1921, is not a property tax or imposed for regulatory purposes under the police power but is a revenue measure, and the exaction is a license or occupation tax. Mid-Northern Oil Co. v. Walker, 65 M 414, 211 P 353 (1922), affirmed, 268 US 45, 69 L Ed 841, 45 S Ct 440 (1925).

Part Administrative Rules

Title 42, chapter 25, subchapter 18, ARM Natural resources taxes — oil and gas.

Part Case Notes

Absent Equal Protection Violation, No Constitutional Violation for Legislature to Tax or Exempt From Taxation Property Without First Classifying Property: Certain counties and individual taxpayers argued that statutes enacted to tax coal, oil, and natural gas while at the same time exempting those properties from a statewide mill levy for education were invalid because the statutes did not classify those properties as required by 15-6-101 and, in addition, created a partial exemption from school funding instead of creating a total exemption. The Supreme Court held that the Legislature is not constitutionally limited to a classification system and that the Legislature is not constitutionally limited to providing tax exemptions for property exclusively within a classification system. Powder River County v. St., 2002 MT 259, 312 M 198, 60 P3d 357 (2002).

Conflicting Taxation Statutes Not Invalid: Certain counties and individual taxpayers argued that statutes enacted to tax coal, oil, and natural gas were invalid because the statutes did not classify those properties as required by 15-6-101. The Supreme Court held that the specific statutes providing for taxation of coal, oil, and natural gas were superior to and not invalidated by the more general classification statute. Powder River County v. St., 2002 MT 259, 312 M 198, 60 P3d 357 (2002).

2023 Amendments — Composite Section — Purported Amendment: Section 1, Ch. 475, L. 2023, in definition of natural gas substituted "means all natural gases, hydrocarbon gases, all forms of inert gas, and all other fluid hydrocarbons as produced at the wellhead and not defined as oil under 82-1-111" for "means natural gas and other fluid hydrocarbons, other than oil, produced at the wellhead"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective May 8, 2023. The amendments to the previous two temporary versions terminated May 18, 2023, based on the termination of the two temporary versions by sec. 5, Ch. 569, L. 2023 (see sec. 1, Ch. 475, L. 2023, for amendments to the temporary versions).

Section 1, Ch. 725, L. 2023, in definition of incremental production in (a) near middle inserted "by recompletion of an existing horizontal drain hole"; in definition of production decline rate at end of first sentence inserted "or the recompletion of an existing horizontal drain hole"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective January 1, 2024.

Although sec. 1, Ch. 569, L. 2023, purported to amend this section, the final version of the text remained unamended by Ch. 569.

Applicability: Section 3, Ch. 475, L. 2023, provided: "[This act] applies to the future production of natural gas after [the effective date of this act]." Effective May 8, 2023.

(b) The average price for a barrel is computed by dividing the sum of the daily price for a barrel of west Texas intermediate crude oil for the calendar quarter by the number of days on which the price was reported in the quarter.

(c) Production must be determined by dividing the amount of production from a lease or unitized area for the year immediately preceding the current calendar year by the number of producing wells in the lease or unitized area and then dividing the resulting quotient by 365"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective January 1, 2022, January 1, 2023, January 1, 2024, January 1, 2025, and January 1, 2026, and terminates on occurrence of contingency until December 31, 2025.

The contingent termination provisions in subsections (2) through (5) are limited to the duration of time established by each subsection and are necessary based on the lack of information available to the legislature from the federal government at the time of enactment of [this act].

(2) [Sections 1 and 6] [first temporary amendment of 15-36-303 and 15-36-304] terminate on the date that the budget director provides the certification provided for in subsection (7). In order to be effective, the certification must be made in calendar year 2021.

The budget director's notification of the preliminary determination may occur after January 1 but no later than December 10 of each of the calendar years 2021, 2022, 2023, and 2024. 2015 Amendment: Chapter 29 in definition of stripper oil in (a) after "average price for a barrel of" deleted "oil as reported in the Wall Street Journal for" and in (b) substituted "for a barrel of west Texas intermediate crude oil" for "for west Texas intermediate crude oil as reported in the Wall Street Journal"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2015.

2005 Amendment: Chapter 592 in definition of stripper oil in (a) in first sentence after "produces" inserted "more than 3 barrels but" and deleted former last sentence that read: "There is no stripper well exemption tax rate if the average price for a barrel of oil as reported in the Wall Street Journal for west Texas intermediate crude oil during a calendar quarter is more than $38 a barrel"; in definition of stripper well exemption in first sentence inserted stripper well bonus as defined term and inserted second sentence related to determination of production; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2005.

Applicability: Section 4, Ch. 592, L. 2005, provided: "[This act] applies to oil produced and sold after June 30, 2005."

2001 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 403 in definition of expanded enhanced recovery project, new enhanced recovery project, and secondary recovery project after "December 31, 1993" deleted "and before January 1, 2002"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 28, 2001.

Chapter 421 in definition of stripper oil near end of second sentence after "stripper tax rate" deleted "including stripper well exemption tax rate" and inserted third sentence eliminating stripper well exemption tax rate when oil price exceeds $38 a barrel; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 28, 2001.

Retroactive Applicability: Section 4, Ch. 421, L. 2001, provided: "[This act] applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to production occurring on or after January 1, 2001."

1999 Amendments — Composite Section — Coordination: Chapter 488 inserted definition of stripper well exemption; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 27, 1999.

Section 4, Ch. 488, L. 1999, a coordination instruction, voided part of the definition of stripper well exemption after "3 barrels a day or less" by deleting: "when the average price per barrel of oil as reported in the Wall Street Journal for west Texas intermediate crude oil during a calendar quarter is less than $30 a barrel. If the price of oil is equal to or greater than $30 a barrel in a calendar quarter, there is no stripper well exemption in that quarter. However, the stripper exemption would apply subject to the conditions of subsection (21). The average price per barrel is computed by dividing the sum of the daily price for west Texas intermediate crude oil as reported in the Wall Street Journal for the calendar quarter by the number of days on which the price was reported in the quarter."

Chapter 530 deleted definition of stripper exemption that read: ""Stripper exemption" means the first 3 barrels a day for petroleum and other mineral or crude oil produced by a stripper well if the average price per barrel of oil as reported in the Wall Street Journal for west Texas intermediate crude oil during a calendar quarter is less than $30 a barrel. If the price of oil is equal to or greater than $30 a barrel in a calendar quarter, there is no stripper exemption in that quarter. The average price per barrel is computed by dividing the sum of the daily price for west Texas intermediate crude oil as reported in the Wall Street Journal for the calendar quarter by the number of days on which the price was reported in the quarter"; substituted definition of stripper oil for former definition that read: ""Stripper oil" means the oil produced from any well that produces less than 10 barrels a day for the calendar year immediately preceding the current year. Production must be determined by dividing the amount of production from a lease or unitized area for the year immediately preceding the current calendar year by the number of producing wells in the lease or unitized area and by dividing the resulting quotient by 365"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 30, 1999.

(Temporary version) Chapter 554 in definition of post-1985 well in two places inserted "but before January 1, 1999"; inserted definition of post-1999 well; in definition of qualifying production in (a)(i) inserted "but before January 1, 1999" and inserted (a)(ii) regarding well production on or after January 1, 1999; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 30, 1999, and terminates December 31, 1999.

(Version effective January 1, 2000) In definition of post-1999 well at beginning substituted "Post-1999" for "Post-1985", substituted "on or after January 1, 1999" for "after June 30, 1985, other than horizontally completed or recompleted oil wells drilled after December 31, 1993", and substituted "post-1999" for "post-1985"; in definition of pre-1999 well at beginning substituted "Pre-1999" for "Pre-1985" and at end substituted "January 1, 1999" for "July 1, 1985"; in definition of production decline rate substituted "15-36-304(5)(e)" for "15-36-304(4)(d)"; in definition of qualifying production in first sentence substituted "12 months" for "24 months", substituted "a well" for "any post-1985 well", and substituted December date and language regarding horizontally completed well drilled after December date for "March 31, 1995"; and made minor changes in style.

Effective Date — Applicability: Section 5, Ch. 488, L. 1999, provided: "[This act] is effective on passage and approval [approved April 27, 1999] and applies to oil produced and sold during the quarters beginning after June 30, 1999."

Applicability: Section 7, Ch. 530, L. 1999, provided: "[This act] applies to oil produced and sold after June 30, 1999."

If the price of oil is equal to or greater than $30 a barrel in a calendar quarter, there is no stripper exemption in that quarter. Section Not Codified: Section 84-723, R.C.M. 1947, which transferred the duty of collecting the metalliferous mines license tax from the State Treasurer to the Department of Revenue, was not codified in the MCA. This clause has not been repealed and is still valid law. Citation may be made to sec. 1, Ch. 79, L. 1927, as amended by sec. 13, Ch. 516, L. 1973, and sec. 7, Ch. 286, L. 1977.

Section 84-2015, R.C.M. 1947, which is a severability clause that applies to most of the sections in this part, was not codified in the MCA. This clause has not been repealed and is still valid law. Citation may be made to sec. 16, Initiative No. 28, 1925.

Part Case Notes

Constitutionality — Sufficiency of Title:

Initiative measure No. 28 did not violate Art. V, sec. 23, 1889 Mont. Const. (now Art. V, sec. 11, 1972 Mont. Const.) because arsenic or arsenious oxide, taxable under initiative measure No. 28 was not mentioned in its title. State ex rel. Snidow v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 93 M 19, 17 P2d 68 (1932).

If an act deals with matters germane to the subject expressed in its title and the title is not of such character as to mislead the public or the members of the Legislature, the constitutional requirement with relation to the contents of the title, Art. V, sec. 23, 1889 Mont. Const. (now Art. V, sec. 11, 1972 Mont. Const.) is sufficiently complied with; where the general object is plainly expressed in the title it is not necessary that it should embody the exact methods of application or procedure, and courts should not embarrass legislation by technical interpretation based upon mere form or phraseology. State ex rel. Snidow v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 93 M 19, 17 P2d 68 (1932).

Effect of Repealed Sections: Initiative measure No. 28, providing for a gross proceeds of mines tax, specifically repealed sections 2344-2355, R.C.M. 1921, providing for a net proceeds of metalliferous mines tax, and it was error to contend that measure No. 28 was simply amendatory of the net proceeds act, that act by its repeal having been blotted out as completely as though it had never existed, a new and different act taking its place. State ex rel. Snidow v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 93 M 19, 17 P2d 68 (1932).

Nature of Tax: The tax provided by initiative measure No. 28 is not a property tax—on metals, minerals, or mine products—but an occupational license tax, i.e., upon the business of producing metals or precious stones, based upon annual production. Should there be no quotation covering any particular product, the department of revenue shall fix the value of such gross product or such portion thereof in such a manner as may seem equitable"; and made minor changes in phraseology. Deductions in Fixing Tax for Smelting Reduction "or Otherwise": In the former version of this section that prohibited "any deductions for costs of smelting, reduction or treatment, or otherwise", the words "or otherwise" relate to whatever expense is incurred in making the gross product. State ex rel. Snidow v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 93 M 19, 17 P2d 68 (1932).

Market Value in Montana, Not in New York, Taxable: Under the former version of this section, which declared that the amount of the license tax exacted by the state on operators of metalliferous mines shall be determined by ascertaining the market value of the gross product resulting from the smelting, reduction, or treatment of the ore, based upon the average quotations of the price of the metals or mineral products in New York City, their market value in Montana, not that prevailing in New York, is taxable. State ex rel. Snidow v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 93 M 19, 17 P2d 68 (1932).

New York Price as Basis: Under the former version of this section, it was contemplated that in fixing the market value of zinc, the New York price was to be considered as a basis, thus the State Board of Equalization (now Department of Revenue) in fixing market value upon the basis of the price of the metal in St. Louis did so in violation of the act. State ex rel. Snidow v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 93 M 19, 17 P2d 68 (1932).

Chapter Administrative Rules

Title 42, chapter 25, subchapter 15, ARM Resource indemnity trust tax.

Chapter Case Notes

No Constitutional Limitation on Appropriation of Resource Indemnity Trust Funds Beyond Principal: Nothing in the Montana Constitution as a whole or in the plain language of Art. IX, sec. 2, Mont. Const., places a limitation on the appropriation of resource indemnity trust funds beyond the $100 million principal, which must remain inviolate. Butte-Silver Bow Local Gov't v. St., 235 M 398, 768 P2d 327, 46 St. Rep. 87 (1989).

Trust Funds Not Limited to Reclamation of Land Disturbed by Taking of Natural Resources: The appropriation or allocation of resource indemnity trust funds is not limited to the reclamation of lands disturbed by the taking of natural resources. Therefore, the use of funds for programs related to improving the total environment does not violate the fiduciary duty of the state toward the trust in allocating trust funds. Butte-Silver Bow Local Gov't v. St., 235 M 398, 768 P2d 327, 46 St. Rep. 87 (1989).

State Taxation of Indian Trust Properties Valid — No Repeal by Implication Found: Where the plaintiff Indian tribe sought declaratory and injunctive relief against the levy and collection of certain taxes by the state and several counties on the production of oil and gas owned by the United States in trust for the plaintiff by non-Indian lessees within the boundaries of the plaintiff's reservation, the court held that the provisions of 25 U.S.C. § 398 specifically authorized state taxation of oil and gas on tribal lands and that the provisions of the statute had not been impliedly repealed by 25 U.S.C. § 396. The sovereign right asserted by the plaintiff to be free from state taxation has been controlled by Congress, and the plaintiff has not shown that there is such a repugnancy between the two federal statutes as to satisfy their burden of proving a congressional intent to repeal the former by enactment of the latter, or that there is an ambiguity in the law which should be construed in favor of the plaintiff. Blackfeet Tribe v. St., 507 F. Supp. 446, 38 St. Rep. 238 (D.C. Mont. 1981); reversed in part and remanded for further proceedings by en banc court of appeals, Blackfeet Tribe v. Mont., 729 F2d 1192 (9th Cir. 1984); certiorari granted state to resolve whether Montana may tax Indian royalty interests arising out of leases executed after the adoption of 1938 Act, and U.S. Supreme Court upheld 9th Circuit decision that state could not tax such royalty interests. Mont. v. Blackfeet Tribe, 105 S Ct 2399 (1985).

This policy of indemnification is achieved by establishing a permanent resource indemnity trust from the proceeds of a tax levied on mineral extraction and by allocating spendable trust revenues:

(1) to protect and restore the environment from damages resulting from mineral development; and

(2) to support a variety of development programs that benefit the economy of the state and the lives of Montana citizens" for "It is the policy of this state to provide security against loss or damage to our environment from the extraction of nonrenewable natural resources. Recognizing that the total environment consists of our air, water, soil, flora, fauna, and also of those social, economic, and cultural conditions that influence our communities and the lives of our individual citizens, it is necessary that this state be indemnified for the extraction of those resources. Therefore, it is the purpose of this chapter to provide for the creation of a resource indemnity trust in order that the people and resources of Montana may long endure."

Deduction for Tribal Tax Not Permitted: The plaintiff, who operated a mine on tribal land, paid coal severance and gross proceeds taxes to the tribe. The plaintiff also paid Montana's Resource Indemnity Trust and Ground Water Assessment Tax (RITT) to the Department of Revenue. In paying the RITT, the plaintiff attempted to deduct tribal taxes from the contract sales price used to calculate the RITT. The RITT calculation specifically did not include deductions for payments to a tribal entity, but it included a deduction for other local governments. The Supreme Court held that because the deduction for other local governments specifically did not include tribal governments, the RITT did not allow a deduction for tribal taxes. Westmoreland Resources Inc. v. Dept. of Revenue, 2014 MT 212, 376 Mont. 180, 330 P.3d 1188.

Applicability of Tax to Adjustment Portion of Coal Sales Price — Commerce Clause: The contract sales price for coal was adjusted when the actual BTU content of the coal was different from the BTU content warranted by seller. The warranted BTU content determined the base price of the coal. The adjustment formula took railroad shipping charges into account and was part of the contract sales price. The coal severance and gross proceeds taxes were based on the contract sales price, and the resource indemnity tax was based on the value of the coal at the time of extraction. It was proper for the state to apply the coal severance, gross proceeds, and resource indemnity trust taxes to amounts seller received on upward price adjustments caused by higher BTU content, after deducting from the contract sales price, for purposes of the resource indemnity trust tax, the costs of hauling the coal from the mine to the railroad and preparing the coal for shipment. Seller's claim that it was taxed on the revenue received pursuant to the transportation costs component of the adjustment formula was properly denied in the lower court. Transportation costs were paid by the buyer, not the seller, the transportation cost component of the formula was based on the average transportation rate per ton and did not vary. The adjustment formula did nothing to alter the actual transportation costs. The claim that the commerce clause of the United States Constitution was violated was properly denied in the lower court because seller did not receive, and thus was not taxed on, any transportation revenue. Case Notes

Mines Net Proceeds Taxes and Resource Indemnity Trust Taxes Settlement Agreement — Payments Distributed According to Mill Levies in Year Settlement Paid: Under a settlement agreement in 1992, Cyprus paid to Madison County back mines net proceeds taxes and resource indemnity trust taxes for the years 1980-1987. The county brought a summary judgment action to allow it to distribute the payment to certain Madison County taxing districts rather than according to the mill levies in place on the date when the funds were received, including the state university levies and the county and state school equalization aid payments. The county argued that application of school funding equalization taxes to Cyprus's settlement for 1980-1987 taxes was improper retroactive taxation because not all of the equalization laws were in effect in those years. The District Court granted summary judgment to the county. The Supreme Court held that no retroactivity issue existed and that the settlement paid was property tax revenue that must be distributed according to the mills levied in the year that the settlement was paid. If no protest is filed, the amount of the additional tax proposed to be assessed becomes final upon the expiration of the 30-day period. If a protest is filed, the department must reconsider the proposed assessment and, if the taxpayer has so requested, must grant the taxpayer an oral hearing. After consideration of the protest and the evidence presented at any oral hearing, the department's action upon the protest is final when it mails notice of its action to the taxpayer", and inserted last sentence relating to review under 15-1-211; and in (2) deleted former first two sentences that read: "When a deficiency is determined and the tax becomes final, the department shall mail a notice and demand for payment to the taxpayer. Case Notes

Deduction for Tribal Tax Not Permitted: The plaintiff, who operated a mine on tribal land, paid coal severance and gross proceeds taxes to the tribe. The plaintiff also paid Montana's Resource Indemnity Trust and Ground Water Assessment Tax (RITT) to the Department of Revenue. In paying the RITT, the plaintiff attempted to deduct tribal taxes from the contract sales price used to calculate the RITT. The RITT calculation specifically did not include deductions for payments to a tribal entity, but it included a deduction for other local governments. The Supreme Court held that because the deduction for other local governments specifically did not include tribal governments, the RITT did not allow a deduction for tribal taxes. (1) If House Bill No. 777, including the section of that bill amending 15-38-202, is passed and approved, and if House Bill No. 718, including the section of that bill amending 15-38-202, is passed and approved, the bracketed material in section 12 must read "46%".

Case Notes

Trust Funds Not Limited to Reclamation of Land Disturbed by Taking of Natural Resources: The appropriation or allocation of resource indemnity trust funds is not limited to the reclamation of lands disturbed by the taking of natural resources. Therefore, the use of funds for programs related to improving the total environment does not violate the fiduciary duty of the state toward the trust in allocating trust funds. FOREST LANDS TAX

Part 1
General Provisions

Part Compiler's Comments

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 783, L. 1991, provided: "WHEREAS, the Department of Revenue does not have adequate resources to properly administer the existing standing inventory method of taxing forest lands; and

WHEREAS, the standing inventory method of taxing forest lands encourages landowners to harvest timber without regard to good forest management; and

WHEREAS, the valuation of forest lands in Montana is often based on outdated information; and

WHEREAS, the Forest Taxation Subcommittee of the Revenue Oversight Committee found that the forest productivity method of taxing forest lands encourages good forest management and is a more equitable method of taxing forest lands; and

WHEREAS, the forest productivity method of taxing forest lands is in the long run easier and less costly to administer than the standing inventory method; and

WHEREAS, the Forest Taxation Subcommittee of the Revenue Oversight Committee recommends that forest lands be taxed on the basis of productivity; and

WHEREAS, it is the intent of the Legislature to implement the recommendation of the Forest Taxation Subcommittee of the Revenue Oversight Committee.

THEREFORE, it is the purpose of this bill to implement the recommendation to change the method of taxing forest lands in the state."

1991 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 783, L. 1991, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because the department of revenue is granted authority to adopt rules for the administration and enforcement of the forest productivity method of taxing forest lands.

The legislature contemplates that rules adopted by the department should, at a minimum, address the following:

(1) guidelines for information that must be contained in the statement of intent submitted by the forest landowner as provided for in [section 2(5)(b)] [15-44-102(5)(b)];

(2) the form to be used by the forest landowner for the statement of intent;

(3) the procedures for determining appropriate forest valuation zones and for computing forest land valuation schedules;

(4) the notification of landowners who may be eligible for forest land classification under this bill;

(5) the process by which a landowner may appeal the valuation of the owner's forest land; and

(6) the definition of terms and establishment of procedures as appropriate for the efficient administration of the forest productivity method of taxation.

In determining forest productivity values and in computing forest land valuation schedules, the department shall use the assistance of the university of Montana [now university of Montana-Missoula]. The legislature also intends that, in implementing this bill, the department seek the advice of the department of state lands [functions now transferred to department of natural resources and conservation], landowners of private forest lands, the timber industry, and local governments."

(2) This assessment is done on November 30 of each year and must be paid with the property tax due as provided in 15-16-101.

(3) (a) By September 1 of each year, the department of revenue shall provide county treasurers with a list showing:

(i) all owners of private timberland in the county as of January 1 of that year; and

Part 2

Tax on Contractors

Part Case Notes

Contract Made Without License: The District Court erred in concluding that the contract entered into between the parties was illegal and therefore void. Appellant admits that it did not have a public contractor's license as required by former statute when it accepted the bid proposal. It admits that it may have violated the law and may be assessed a misdemeanor fine. Nowhere in the statutes is it declared that a contract made without a license is unenforceable or void. Taurman v. Cascade, 192 M 529, 629 P2d 226, 38 St. Rep. 906 (1981).

Prior Act Unconstitutional: Chapter 277, L. 1965, which provided for a license tax payable only by nonresident public contractors, was unconstitutional. State ex rel. Schultz-Lindsay Constr. Co. v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 145 M 380, 403 P2d 635 (1965).

Part Attorney General's Opinions

Public Utility Contractor Not to Install Certain Service Lines in Billings Unless Licensed by State as Plumber — City Required to Check License Qualifications:

In clarifying 44 A.G. Op. 12, the Attorney General noted that work done on a public water supply or public sewer system that does not include work falling within the statutory distances for plumbing or drainage systems does not require a state-issued plumber's license. Therefore, the city of Billings may not allow public utility contractors to install water service lines that extend from the public water main to a point within the walls of the private property or within 20 feet from any foundation wall of the premises, whichever distance is shorter as measured from the foundation wall, or wastewater service lines that extend from the public sewer main to a point within 2 feet from any foundation wall of the premises, unless the contractor also has a plumber's license issued by the state. 44 A.G. Op. 39 (1992).

The city of Billings may not allow public utility contractors to install water and wastewater service lines that extend from the public water or sewer main to a point within the walls of the private property or within 20 feet from any foundation wall of the private residence unless the contractor also has a plumber's license issued by the state. The city is required to determine whether a person applying for a plumbing permit pursuant to the Uniform Plumbing Code is licensed by the state as a plumber if the type of work described in the permit requires licensure as a requisite to performance. 44 A.G. Op. 12 (1991).

Turnkey Contract for Public Housing Subject to Public Contractor's Licensing Tax: A turnkey method of providing public housing, whereby a public housing authority contracts for a completed development to be produced by the developer on his own land and with payments to be upon the "turning over the keys" of the development to the public housing authority, is a public contract for construction work. All of the essential elements required by 15-50-101 are present. The contract is between a person and a public agency, the value of the contract (prior to the 1983 amendment increasing the contract amount to $5,000) exceeds $1,000, and the contract contemplates construction. The turnkey method of production of new public housing units is therefore a public contract subject to the public contractor's licensing tax. To hold otherwise would frustrate the expressed legislative goal of the tax and allow any contractor to avoid the tax on projects intended to be included by merely changing contract language. 38 A.G. Op. 118 (1980).

Case Notes

United States Government Estopped From Bringing Constitutional Challenge: When the United States government had required a public contractor to challenge the constitutionality of the 1% public contractor's license fee and directed the litigation to an unsuccessful conclusion in the Montana Supreme Court in Peter Kiewit Sons' Co. v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 161 M 140, 505 P2d 102 (1973), the United States was collaterally estopped from thereafter challenging the constitutionality of the tax in federal courts. Mont. v. U.S., 440 US 147, 59 L Ed 2d 210, 99 S Ct 970 (1979).

Constitutionality: Imposing a 1% gross receipts tax was constitutional and did not violate Art. XII, sec. 11, 1889 Mont. Const., since the classification of public contractors separately from private contractors is reasonable and does not discriminate against the federal government or interfere with its functions or violate its immunity from taxation. Peter Kiewit Sons' Co. v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 161 M 140, 505 P2d 102 (1973).

Applicability: Section 7, Ch. 515, L. 2003, provided: "[This act applies to bills issued on or after the first day of the first month after [the effective date of this act]." Effective July 1, 2003.

2001 Amendment: Chapter 484 in definition of sales price in (b)(iii) at end after "charges or fees" inserted "collected for and remitted to a federal government entity", in (b)(vi) substituted "construction" for "reconnection of service or for replacement of service", and in (b)(vii) near beginning inserted "installation" and after "servicing of equipment" inserted "and wiring"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 30, 2001.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 484, L. 2001, provided: "WHEREAS, the Retail Telecommunications Excise Tax Act, House Bill No. 128, 56th Legislature (Chapter 426, Laws of 1999), was enacted as a part of the 1999 Legislative Session's economic development package, replacing an archaic telephone license tax and an illogical and confusing array of property tax provisions with an excise tax that would foster Montana's long-term economic growth and ensure that Montana will have the necessary telecommunications infrastructure needed to be competitive for jobs and income for the future; and

WHEREAS, as enacted, the purpose section of the Retail Telecommunications Excise Tax Act, in 15-53-128(4)(c), stated that one of the reasons for imposing a replacement tax was to "preserve the revenue base of the existing property tax system for taxing jurisdictions in the state"; and

WHEREAS, as enacted, in the purpose section of the Retail Telecommunications Excise Tax Act, in 15-53-128(7), the legislature declared a "compelling public need to modify the existing system of property taxation . . . to ensure competitive neutrality and constancy of revenue to taxing jurisdictions in the state of Montana"."

Applicability: Section 4, Ch. 484, L. 2001, provided: "[This act] applies to federal subscriber line charges and other federally authorized charges and fees collected but not remitted to a federal governmental entity by the telecommunications carrier and to retail telecommunications installation and activation charges made only after June 30, 2001."

Case Notes

Cable Company Properly Reclassified as a Telecommunications Company — Conclusion Based on Evaluation of Use and Productivity: The Department of Revenue reclassified a cable company's property from class eight (cable television system) to class thirteen (telecommunications services company) by reasoning that the company's voice, cable, and Internet services made it a centrally assessed telecommunications services company under 15-6-156. The District Court reversed the classification change, but the Supreme Court upheld the Department's decision. The Supreme Court reasoned that the Legislature had exempted certain properties from class thirteen in the past but chose not to exempt companies that use a network to provide voice, cable, and Internet services. Moreover, an analysis of the use and productivity of the cable company's entire network resulted in the inescapable conclusion that it used a single transmission line to deliver three services, and therefore the Department had the authority to treat all of the property accordingly under class thirteen. CHAPTER 59
CEMENT TAXES

Chapter Compiler's Comments

Section Not Codified: Section 84-723, R.C.M. 1947, which transferred the duty of collecting the cement producers' and cement dealers' license tax from the State Treasurer to the Department of Revenue, was not codified in the MCA. This clause has not been repealed and is still valid law. Citation may be made to sec. 1, Ch. 79, L. 1927, as amended by sec. 13, Ch. 516, L. 1973, and sec. 7, Ch. 286, L. 1977.

Powers of State Board of Equalization Transferred: Chapter 405, L. 1973, transferred the powers and duties of the State Board of Equalization to the Department of Revenue and the State Tax Appeal Board (now Montana Tax Appeal Board). In Dept. of Revenue v. Burlington N., Inc., 169 M 202, 545 P2d 1083 (1976), the Montana Supreme Court held that State Board of Equalization's administrative functions were transferred to the Department of Revenue, while the appellate functions were transferred to the State Tax Appeal Board (now Montana Tax Appeal Board).

Part 1
Cement and Gypsum Producers

15-59-102. License tax on producers and importers of gypsum and cement.

Case Notes

Gypsum Wallboard: Under former law, in an action under a predecessor to this section, as amended in 1931 adding "other products", to enjoin collection of tax on manufactured gypsum wallboard, State was in error in contending that "other products" by implication included gypsum wallboard, since, under doctrine of ejusdem generis, the Legislature meant gypsum products made and handled like plaster. The administrative measurements as used in the act being only barrels and tons, and not square feet as wallboard is handled and sold, the uncertainties were resolved in favor of the taxpayer. U.S. Gypsum Co. v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 116 M 275, 149 P2d 774 (1944).

Amendment effective January 1, 2000.

If a protest is filed, the department must reconsider the proposed assessment and, if the taxpayer has so requested, must grant the taxpayer an oral hearing. After consideration of the protest and the evidence presented at any oral hearing, the department's action upon the protest is final when it mails notice of its action to the taxpayer", and inserted last sentence relating to review under 15-1-211; and in (2) deleted former first two sentences that read: "When a deficiency is determined and the tax becomes final, the department shall mail a notice and demand for payment to the taxpayer. Case Notes

Bankruptcy Exemption for Health Savings Accounts — Recent Legislation: The Bankruptcy Court sent a certified question to the Supreme Court asking whether a debtor may claim an exemption in a health savings account pursuant to 25-13-608. The Supreme Court held that Montana applies a principle of liberal construction as it relates to bankruptcy exemptions, that the nature of a health savings account qualified as a benefit under 25-13-608, that the statute explicitly provided that medical, surgical, or hospital benefits are exempt, and that certain funds in a health savings account are exempt. The court then noted that the Montana Legislature subsequently exempted certain health or medical savings accounts through Ch. 298, L. 2017, consistent with their opinion. CHAPTER 64
TAXATION OF DRUGS AND DRUG LICENSING

Chapter Case Notes

Dangerous Drug Tax — Prohibited as Double Jeopardy: The U.S. Supreme Court held that Montana's dangerous drug tax was barred under the double jeopardy doctrine of the fifth amendment to the U.S. Constitution. The tax is conditioned on the commission of a crime; the rate of the tax was eight times the drug's market value; and, although the tax purports to be a property tax, it is levied on goods that the taxpayer neither owns nor possesses when the tax is imposed. A tax on possession of goods that no longer exist and that the taxpayer never lawfully possessed has a punitive character. Dept. of Revenue v. Kurth Ranch, 511 US 767, 128 L Ed 2d 767, 114 S Ct 1937 (1994).

Dangerous Drug Tax Not Double Jeopardy — Civil Remedy Versus Criminal Penalty — Constitutionality of Dangerous Drug Tax: The Department of Revenue assessed a dangerous drug tax on two men who were convicted of possession of dangerous drugs, sentenced, and fined under the criminal code. Two District Courts found that the tax was excessive and punitive rather than remedial and that it constituted a second criminal penalty imposed for the same crime in violation of the constitutional prohibition against double jeopardy. The Supreme Court disagreed, noting that the dangerous drug tax is an excise tax based on the quantity of drugs in the taxpayer's possession and does not impose any affirmative disability or restraint of liberty or privileges upon the taxpayer. Under Helvering v. Mitchell, 303 US 391, 82 L Ed 917, 58 S Ct 630 (1938), both a civil and criminal penalty are allowed for the same act or omission. Although the conduct of possessing dangerous drugs subjects a taxpayer to both a criminal penalty and a tax, the tax is not so punitive in purpose or effect that it negates the legislative intent to create a civil sanction. Rather, the tax is remedial and is collected through a separate administrative procedure. In distinction to U.S. v. Halper, 490 US 735, 104 L Ed 2d 487, 109 S Ct 1892 (1989), the tax does not serve the goal of punishment rather than its remedial purpose of compensating the government for its loss and needs no proof of remedial costs on the part of the state. The method of reporting the tax due and the method of collecting the tax do not transform it into a criminal penalty. After applying the factors in Kennedy v. Mendosa, 372 US 144, 9 L Ed 2d 644, 83 S Ct 554 (1963), the court held that the dangerous drug tax is not a criminal penalty and does not rest on a criminal conviction but constitutes a separate civil remedy and as such is not a multiple punishment that violates double jeopardy. The Dangerous Drug Tax Act is constitutional on its face. Sorensen v. Dept. of Revenue, 254 M 61, 836 P2d 29, 49 St. Rep. 624 (1992).

Chapter Attorney General's Opinions

Applicability of Open Meeting Law to Local Chamber of Commerce Receiving Bed Tax Funds: A local chamber of commerce, when acting as a nonprofit convention and visitor bureau, is an organization supported at least in part by public funds in the form of bed tax money. By accepting public funds and deciding how those funds are to be spent, the convention and visitor bureau takes on the responsibility of accounting to the public for those funds. Therefore, meetings of a local chamber of commerce or other organization recognized and acting as a nonprofit convention and visitor bureau must be open to the public in accordance with the open meeting law unless the demands of individual privacy of the chamber clearly exceed the merits of public disclosure. 44 A.G. Op. 40 (1992).

Lodging Facilities Use Tax and Sales Tax Distinguished — Treatment of Service Charges Different — Subsequent Legislative Action: The state imposed a lodging facilities use tax (use tax) pursuant to Title 15, ch. 65, and a sales tax that covers lodging (sales tax) pursuant to Title 15, ch. 68. Prior to legislative action in Ch. 484, L. 2021, the definitions for the two taxes were different. After an audit, the state determined the petitioner ski resort owed use taxes, sales taxes, and interest for service fees and collected but forfeited deposits on lodging. On appeal, the Supreme Court affirmed, holding that the petitioner was not subject to the use tax on the service fees but was subject to the sales tax and that the petitioner was not subject to the use tax or the sales tax on the forfeited deposits. Lodging Facility Use Tax and Sales Tax Inconsistent and Incompatible — Not to Be Construed In Pari Materia: The Department of Revenue sought to have defendants, online travel companies, remit and collect lodging facility use taxes and sales taxes on their fees. The District Court concluded that the travel companies were not required to pay either tax. On appeal, the defendants argued that the two taxes have the same scope and therefore needed to be construed in pari materia. The Supreme Court concluded that the two separate acts creating the taxes were enacted 16 years apart and taxed separate transactions. The Supreme Court held that the taxes were inconsistent and incompatible and that they did not need to be construed in pari materia. Dept. of Revenue v. Priceline.com, Inc., 2015 MT 241, 380 Mont. 352, 354 P.3d 631.

Plain Language of Lodging Facility Use Tax Statutes — No Basis for Taxing Online Travel Company Fees: The Department of Revenue sought to have the defendants, online travel companies, remit and collect lodging facility use taxes on their fees. The District Court concluded that the defendants were not required to pay the lodging facility use tax under the plain language of the statute. On appeal, the Supreme Court affirmed and agreed that the plain language of the lodging facility use tax provided no basis for taxing the fees charged by the defendants. Dept. of Revenue v. 1987 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 607, L. 1987, provided: "This bill needs a statement of intent because it allows the department of revenue and department of commerce to adopt rules negotiating the administration of this act.

The rules will be necessary to effectively and efficiently collect the tax and disburse the funds. This includes rules clarifying persons subject to the tax, reporting requirements, recordkeeping requirements, qualification for funds requirements, delineation/clarification of the statutorily created council powers, and other requirements. Since this is a new tax in Montana, it is anticipated that many issues will arise requiring rulemaking for resolution.

The intent of the legislature in exempting certain facilities that charge rates not exceeding 60% of the state rate for state officers and employees traveling in Montana is to avoid taxing rooms that are primarily used by pensioners and similarly disposed persons who may use a hotel as a residence, but who nonetheless rent a room by the day or week. Such facilities may also rent rooms to drop-in trade from time to time, but such trade is not the primary business of the facility. Rules adopted should be sensitive to drawing the distinction authorized by the legislature."

Chapter Case Notes

Lodging Facilities Use Tax and Sales Tax Distinguished — Treatment of Service Charges Different — Subsequent Legislative Action: The state imposed a lodging facilities use tax (use tax) pursuant to Title 15, ch. 65, and a sales tax that covers lodging (sales tax) pursuant to Title 15, ch. 68. Prior to legislative action in Ch. 484, L. 2021, the definitions for the two taxes were different. After an audit, the state determined the petitioner ski resort owed use taxes, sales taxes, and interest for service fees and collected but forfeited deposits on lodging. On appeal, the Supreme Court affirmed, holding that the petitioner was not subject to the use tax on the service fees but was subject to the sales tax and that the petitioner was not subject to the use tax or the sales tax on the forfeited deposits. Boyne USA, Inc. v. Dept. of Revenue, 2021 MT 155, 404 Mont. 347, 490 P.3d 1240. Note: See changes to use tax made by Ch. 484, L. 2021.

Liability of Online Travel Companies for Payment of Sales Tax — Accrues From Date Lawsuit Filed: The Department of Revenue sought to have the defendants, online travel companies, remit and collect lodging facility use taxes and sales taxes on their fees. The District Court concluded that the defendants were not required to pay either tax. After the Department appealed, the defendants argued that if they were required to pay either tax their liability should accrue from the date of the decision by the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court ultimately concluded that the defendants should pay a sales tax on their fees and held that the liability to do so ran from the date the Department filed suit. Dept. of Revenue v. Priceline.com, Inc. 2015 MT 241, 380 Mont. 352, 354 P.3d 631.

Lodging Facility Use Tax and Sales Tax Inconsistent and Incompatible — Not to Be Construed In Pari Materia: The Department of Revenue sought to have defendants, online travel companies, remit and collect lodging facility use taxes and sales taxes on their fees. The District Court concluded that the travel companies were not required to pay either tax. On appeal, the defendants argued that the two taxes have the same scope and therefore needed to be construed in pari materia. The Supreme Court concluded that the two separate acts creating the taxes were enacted 16 years apart and taxed separate transactions. The Supreme Court held that the taxes were inconsistent and incompatible and that they did not need to be construed in pari materia. Dept. of Revenue v. Priceline.com, Inc., 2015 MT 241, 380 Mont. 352, 354 P.3d 631.

Tax of Online Travel Company Fees Required Under Plain Meaning of Sales Tax: The Department of Revenue sought to have the defendants, online travel companies, remit and collect sales taxes on their fees. The District Court concluded that the defendants were not required to pay sales tax. On appeal, the Supreme Court reversed, holding that the plain meaning of the sales tax provided a basis for taxing the fees. Dept. of Revenue v. Priceline.com, Inc., 2015 MT 241, 380 Mont. 352, 354 P.3d 631.

Case Notes

Lodging Facilities Use Tax and Sales Tax Distinguished — Treatment of Service Charges Different — Subsequent Legislative Action: The state imposed a lodging facilities use tax (use tax) pursuant to Title 15, ch. 65, and a sales tax that covers lodging (sales tax) pursuant to Title 15, ch. 68. Prior to legislative action in Ch. 484, L. 2021, the definitions for the two taxes were different. After an audit, the state determined the petitioner ski resort owed use taxes, sales taxes, and interest for service fees and collected but forfeited deposits on lodging. On appeal, the Supreme Court affirmed, holding that the petitioner was not subject to the use tax on the service fees but was subject to the sales tax and that the petitioner was not subject to the use tax or the sales tax on the forfeited deposits. 1983 Amendments: Chapter 238, in introductory clause, before "funds hereinbelow allocated" substituted "Those" for "except those"; after "counties" deleted "which funds"; near end of introductory clause after "paid by the" substituted "department of highways from the earmarked revenue fund" for "state treasurer directly"; and in (6) after "department of highways" deleted "and state treasurer".

Chapter 277, in introduction, substituted references to state special revenue fund for references to earmarked revenue fund.

Chapter 624, in introductory portion, inserted "special" before "revenue fund"; in (1) at beginning changed $6,500,000 to $14,000,000; in (1)(a) at beginning changed $2,950,000 to $6,350,000; in (1)(b) changed $3,550,000 to $7,650,000; and inserted (8) relating to use of funds for construction and maintenance programs.

Effective Date: Section 6, Ch. 632, L. 1979, provided: "Sections 1 and 4 are effective for fiscal years 1980 and 1981 only." The reference to sec. 4 is apparently an error. The correct reference is apparently a reference to sec. 5, Ch. 632.

Purported 1979 Amendment: Although sec. 4, Ch. 632, L. 1979, purports to amend this code section, all amendments were removed from sec. 4 during the legislative process and no actual amendment was made. If normal procedure had been followed, sec. 4 would have been stricken in its entirety from the bill.

Coordination: Section 7, Ch. 473, L. 1975, provided: "If House Bill No. 198 and this bill are each enacted into law in 1975, it is the intent of the legislature that section 2 of this act controls the taxation of liquid petroleum gas under section 84-1832.1 [15-70-321, now repealed]." House Bill No. 198 was enacted and is 15-70-101.

Severability: Section 4, Ch. 6, Ex. L. 1967, read: "The provisions of this act shall be severable and if any of its sections, provisions, exceptions, sentences, clauses, phrases or parts be held unconstitutional or void, the remainder of this act shall continue in full force and effect."

Section 4, Ch. 355, L. 1969, read: "The provisions of this act shall be severable and if any of its sections, provisions, exceptions, sentences, clauses, phrases or parts be held unconstitutional or void, the remainder of this act shall continue in full force and effect."

Section 2, Ch. 384, L. 1971, read: "The provisions of this act shall be severable and if any of its sections, provisions, exceptions, sentences, clauses, phrases, or parts be held unconstitutional or void, the remainder of this act shall continue in full force and effect."

Case Notes

Local Government's Right to Do Work or Contract It Out: This section's provision that funds allocated to local governments shall be disbursed to the lowest bidder when the contract for construction or repair is above $4,000 (2003 amendment increased amount to $25,000) means either that all work above $4,000 (2003 amendment increased amount to $25,000) must be contracted out by bid or that the local government may do the work itself or contract it out by bid. The court construed the provision to mean the latter. Numerous other statutes relating to construction and repair of roads authorize the local government to do the work itself. It would not be reasonable to assume that only construction and repair funded by gas tax dollars must be contracted out. Attempts to require this by legislation in 1979 and 1985 failed, and the failure is significant. Finally, the entities administering that provision have for 12 years interpreted it to mean that a local government may do the work itself and must follow the provision only if the work is contracted out. Mont. Contractors' Ass'n, Inc. v. Dept. of Highways, 220 M 392, 715 P2d 1056, 43 St. Rep. 470 (1986).

Funds From Sources Other Than Gasoline Tax Used for Nonhighway Purposes: Prohibition against expenditure of gasoline tax revenues for nonhighway purposes has no application to street funds derived from other sources; thus proceeds of levy under another statute could be committed to finance proportionate share of construction costs of city shop complex to be used by various city departments. Greener v. Great Falls, 157 M 376, 485 P2d 932 (1971).

Effect of Appropriation: The appropriation by L. 1947, p. 761, from the gasoline drawback fund "as much as may be necessary to comply with the provisions of the law" was likewise an appropriation of the 1 cent per gallon transferred to the aviation fund under the provisions of 67-1-301. State ex rel. St. Aeronautics Comm'n v. Bd. of Examiners, 121 M 402, 194 P2d 633 (1948), overruled in part in Bd. of Regents v. Judge, 168 M 433, 543 P2d 1323 (1975).

Use of Funds for Erection of Highway Building: Under the implied powers of the Highway Commission (now Transportation Commission) considered necessary to render the granted powers efficacious and the performance of its duties effectual, the erection of the building is a proper function in the administration of the highway program, providing expenditures therefor do not exceed 8% of the Commission's available funds. Guillot v. Highway Comm'n, 102 M 149, 56 P2d 1072 (1936).

Use of Funds Collected Under Prior Act: The fact that a road was a part of the federal forest road did not deprive the Highway Commission (now Transportation Commission) of authority of expending any portion of the gasoline license tax funds derived under a prior act, in matching funds provided by the Federal Aid Act. State ex rel. Mineral County v. Highway Comm'n, 82 M 63, 265 P 1 (1928).

Attorney General's Opinions

Construction of Streets With Gas Tax Revenues — Subject to General Debt Limitation: If a city contracts for street construction work to be paid exclusively from gasoline tax revenue received from the state, the indebtedness is considered part of the city's general debt limitation under 7-7-4201 unless the conditions of some specific exception are otherwise met. 42 A.G. Op. 120 (1988).

Municipal Construction of Storm Sewers With Gas Tax Revenues Allowed — Sinking Fund for General Obligation Bonds Allowed: A city may use its gas tax allocation to construct streets and highways, and because a highway is defined as including "drainage structures", the city may use its share of gasoline tax allocation for construction of storm sewers and drains in and under city streets for removal of runoff water. The city may also place the money allocated in a sinking fund used to pay general obligation bonds sold to finance construction of those sewers, as the only statutory restriction on the use of the funds is that the funds must be used exclusively for city streets. Nor do the statutes governing municipal financing prohibit the use of such money in a sinking fund for general obligation bonds. 40 A.G. Op. 19 (1983).

1993 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 428, L. 1993, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because [section 3] [15-70-105 and 15-71-110 (now repealed)] grants the department of transportation authority to adopt rules for establishing procedures to determine whether it is cost-effective to collect any tax, penalty, or interest from a delinquent taxpayer. The legislature intends that the rules adopted by the department address the circumstances under which it is no longer cost-effective to pursue the collection of a tax, penalty, or interest. These circumstances include but are not limited to the difficulty of finding the delinquent taxpayer, the difficulty of locating the assets of the taxpayer, or the financial condition of the taxpayer. In addition, the rules adopted by the department may include procedures to remove, for accounting purposes, a delinquency from the department's accounts receivable.

The legislature also intends that rules provide that if a tax delinquency is written off, it is not forgiven, but the department will incur no further expense in collecting the tax."

Chippewa-Cree Tribal Member Without Standing to Challenge Gas Tax — Incidence of Tax Upon Distributor: Carter, an enrolled member of the Chippewa-Cree Tribe, sold gasoline from a convenience store on the Rocky Boy's Reservation. Carter held a business license issued by the tribe and was not licensed by the state. She alleged that the gasoline tax was unconstitutionally applied to sales by tribal members inside the reservation because the tax is preempted by federal law. The District Court granted summary judgment, holding that Carter lacked standing. Citing Okla. Tax Comm'n v. Chickasaw Nation, 515 US 450, 132 L Ed 2d 400, 115 S Ct 2214 (1995), the Supreme Court affirmed, holding that the incidence of the tax fell upon the distributor and not upon the retailer and that the distributor is not a member of the tribe. For this reason, Carter was not directly and adversely affected by the tax and had no standing to bring the action. Carter v. Dept. of Transportation, 274 M 39, 905 P2d 1102, 52 St. Rep. 1111 (1995), followed in Fleenor v. Darby School District, 2006 MT 31, 331 M 124, 128 P3d 1048 (2006). Fleenor was overruled in Schoof v. Nesbit, 2014 MT 6, 373 Mont. 226, 316 P.3d 831, to the extent Fleenor requires a plaintiff in a right to know or right to participate case to allege an injury beyond failure to receive notice or to allege a personal stake in a particular governmental decision for purposes of establishing standing to pursue a claim.

Effect of Appropriation: The appropriation by Laws 1947, p. 761 from the gasoline drawback fund "as much as may be necessary to comply with the provisions of the law" was likewise an appropriation of the 1 cent per gallon transferred to the aviation fund under the provisions of 67-1-301. State ex rel. St. Aeronautics Comm'n v. Bd. of Examiners, 121 M 402, 194 P2d 633 (1948), overruled in part in Bd. of Regents v. Judge, 168 M 433, 543 P2d 1323 (1975).

Case Notes

Fuel Used in Motorboat — Constitutionality: Under prior law which did not provide for tax refund for gasoline used in motorboats, one who consumed gasoline in motorboat in off-highway use was not entitled to refund on basis of Due Process and Equal Protection Clauses of constitution, since dealer rather than the consumer is the taxpayer, and since consumer, as a boat user, was not proper party to represent all nonhighway users. Harvey v. Blewett, 151 M 427, 443 P2d 902 (1968). (Annotator's Note: The 1979 amendment to former 15-70-221 removed motorboats from the uses for which a refund is authorized.)

Gasoline Lost or Destroyed:

Since there has been no amendment to this law expressing disapproval of an earlier Supreme Court decision that gasoline lost or destroyed should be included in the provision for a refund of the tax paid, the Legislature in effect approved the interpretation. State ex rel. Roeder v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 133 M 393, 324 P2d 1057 (1958).

When gasoline was lost during a flood that tipped over storage tank, the purchaser was entitled to a refund of the tax paid. State ex rel. Roeder v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 133 M 393, 324 P2d 1057 (1958).

When gasoline was lost in derailment of tank cars, the purchaser of the gasoline was entitled to a refund of the license tax paid. State ex rel. Great N. Ry. v. St. Bd of Equalization, 121 M 583, 194 P2d 627 (1948).

Sufficiency of Claim — Substantial Compliance:

When it has been decided that a claimant is entitled to a refund but the claim is such that it cannot be regularly itemized on prescribed forms, the Board (now Department of Transportation) could not set up the failure to comply with technical regulations as a reason for denying the claim. State ex rel. Roeder v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 133 M 393, 324 P2d 1057 (1958).

The State Board of Equalization (now Department of Transportation) could not deny a valid refund claim for the reason that the claim did not comply with the forms provided by the Board when the nature of the claim was such that it could not be regularly itemized on the prescribed form. Where the claimant has complied with the administrative regulations insofar as it was possible under the circumstances, he has substantially complied and is entitled to the refund. State ex rel. Great N. Ry. v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 126 M 187, 246 P2d 220 (1952).

Assignment of Claim: There was nothing in a predecessor to this statute which prevented the claimant who was the actual purchaser of the gasoline from assigning his claim for refund to another where he himself has made the application for refund before assignment. State ex rel. Great N. Ry. v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 121 M 583, 194 P2d 627 (1948).

Mandamus: In action for mandamus to require approval of claim for refund, the petition must allege that the invoice accompanied the claim. State ex rel. Great N. Ry. v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 121 M 583, 194 P2d 627 (1948).

Application for Refund by County: When county brought mandamus to compel State Board of Equalization (now Department of Transportation) to grant county's application for refund of gasoline taxes paid, the entry of a money judgment for the county was error but the court should have ordered a peremptory Writ of Mandate to issue requiring the Board to rescind its action in rejecting claim and requiring that such claim be allowed in proper sum and transmitted to Board of Examiners and Auditor for approval and payment. Roosevelt County v. St. Bd. of Equalization, 118 M 31, 162 P2d 887 (1945).

Attorney General's Opinions

School District Not Allowed to Claim Special Fuel Tax Refund Paid by Bus Service Contractor: When a school district has paid a tax on special fuels, the district may seek a special fuel tax refund regardless of the district activity for which the fuels were used. However, a school district may not claim a special fuel tax refund paid on special fuels by a company that contracts with the school district to provide bus service for the district. 51 A.G. The legislature intends that the department adopt rules that specify the information that must be contained in the written plan. The department shall also develop procedures to verify that the alcohol distributor has obtained financing for the acquisition of the plant, land, and equipment and has secured an adequate supply of agricultural products for the production of alcohol. The rules may include procedures for the review of a new alcohol distributor's business plan or prospectus, architectural plans, and process flows. The department shall also develop procedures for reducing or canceling the reservation of alcohol tax incentives if the department determines that the new alcohol distributor does not comply with the written plan."

Amendment effective May 1, 2001.

1987 Amendment: In (2) substituted "alcoholic beverages" for "liquor".

Case Notes

Impairment of Contracts: The Montana Alcoholic Beverage Code, ch. 1 through 6 of this title, appears to be a valid exercise of the state police power and is not repugnant to the federal constitutional provisions prohibiting impairment of contracts or similar language in the Montana Constitution. Libbey II v. Jos. Schlitz Brewing Co., 34 St. Rep. 1254 (D.C. Mont. 1977) (apparently not reported in Federal Supplement).

Preemption: Cities do not have the authority or jurisdiction to enact ordinances dealing with the control of sales of liquor because the state has reserved exclusive control of that function. State ex rel. Libby v. Haswell, 147 M 492, 414 P2d 652 (1966), overruled in Town Pump, Inc. v. Bd. of Adjustment of Red Lodge, 1998 MT 294, 292 M 6, 971 P2d 349, 55 St. Rep. 1205 (1998).

Police Regulation: The State Liquor Control Act of Montana (Ch. 105, L. 1933) and 16-1-103 are police regulations enacted pursuant to the police powers of the state. The acts prohibited are mala prohibita as distinguished from acts mala in se. St. v. Erlandson, 126 M 316, 249 P2d 794 (1952).

Construction: The State Liquor Control Act of Montana and the Montana Beer Act (Ch. 105 and 106, L. 1933) are in pari materia and must be construed together; and with the amendments to those acts are one homogeneous and consistent body of law. Fletcher v. Paige, 124 M 114, 220 P2d 484 (1950).

Referendums: The State Liquor Control Act of Montana (Ch. 105, L. 1933) does not relate to appropriations of public money and is therefore not exempt from referendum. Failure to state that enactment is necessary for the immediate preservation of the public health, etc., and does not alone effect referability; referability is a question for the courts, immediate necessity being an essential condition. State ex rel. Haynes v. District Court, 106 M 470, 78 P2d 937 (1938).

Act Exercise of Police Power: The State Liquor Control Act of Montana (Ch. 105, L. 1933) is an exercise of a governmental function within the police power of the state. St. v. Andre, 101 M 366, 54 P2d 566 (1936).

Act Not for Raising Revenue: The State Liquor Control Act of Montana (Ch. 105, L. 1933), the main purpose of which is to regulate the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor, but which incidentally results in profits to the state from the operation of state liquor stores, does not violate Art. V, sec. 32, 1889 Mont. Const. (no counterpart in 1972 Mont. Const.), which provides that bills for raising revenue must originate in the House of Representatives. St. v. Driscoll, 101 M 348, 54 P2d 571 (1936).

Constitutional Law: The State Liquor Control Act of Montana (Ch. 105, L. 1933) does not violate the 1889 Montana Constitution (now Art. V, sec. 11, and Art. VIII, sec. 1, 1972 Mont. Const.) requirements that the subject of an act be clearly expressed in the act's title, and that state revenue come from a mandatory property tax and a permissive license tax, two methods of taxation which are not exclusive under the requirement. Other taxes may be levied. St. v. Driscoll, 101 M 348, 54 P2d 571 (1936).

Attorney General's Opinions

No Authority in Local Governing Body to Prohibit Minors in Licensed Premises: An incorporated town with general powers does not have the authority to enact an ordinance prohibiting underage persons from being on licensed premises where alcoholic beverages are sold and consumed because the entire control of the manufacture, sale, and distribution of alcoholic beverages is retained within the State of Montana. The local government may not enact an ordinance providing for greater penalties than those found in 45-5-624 for an underage person convicted of possession of alcoholic beverages. 41 A.G. Op. 84 (1986).

Local Governments Preempted From Controlling Beer Sales: In Montana, neither cities nor counties have authority to enact ordinances requiring wholesale and retail distributors of keg beer to keep and maintain records of the sales or distribution of all beer kegs within the city or county. 40 A.G. Op. 48 (1984).

City License — Effect on State License: A city may license a beer distributor under 16-4-503 but may not thereby limit or make ineffective a state license. 37 A.G. Op. 100 (1977).

Local Governments Preempted From Controlling Beer Sales: By enacting this section, the Legislature reserved to the State the entire control of the manufacture, sale, and distribution of beer. Thus, neither cities nor counties have authority to enact ordinances requiring distributors of keg beer to keep and maintain records of the sales or distribution of all beer kegs within the city or county. 40 A.G. Case Notes

Regulation of Nude Dancing by Municipality: Under the broad regulatory powers of the twenty-first amendment, a municipality with self-government powers may enact an ordinance that regulates nude and seminude dancing. Billings v. Laedeke, 247 M 151, 805 P2d 1348, 48 St. Rep. 133 (1991).

Preemption: Cities do not have the authority or jurisdiction to enact ordinances dealing with the control of sales of liquor, since the state has taken exclusive control of that function. State ex rel. Libby v. Haswell, 147 M 492, 414 P2d 652 (1966), overruled in Town Pump, Inc. v. Bd. of Adjustment of Red Lodge, 1998 MT 294, 292 M 6, 971 P2d 349, 55 St. Rep. 1205 (1998).

Police Regulation: This section is a police regulation and enacted pursuant to the police powers of the state. Deeds prohibited are mala prohibita as distinguished from acts mala in se. St. v. Erlandson, 126 M 316, 249 P2d 794 (1952).

Purpose: The people of this state are to be protected in their "health, welfare and safety" by this section and by the rules and regulations promulgated. Perry v. Luding, 123 M 570, 217 P2d 207 (1950).

Commerce Clause of Federal Constitution Not Violated: The State Liquor Control Act of Montana (Ch. 105, L. 1933), in effect regulating the importation of intoxicating liquor from other states, does not violate the Commerce Clause, in view of the section in the 21st amendment prohibiting the transportation or importation into any state of intoxicating liquor in violation of the laws of a state. St. v. Andre, 101 M 366, 54 P2d 566 (1936).

Regulation of Live Dance Performance in Licensed Liquor Establishment — Abridgment of Free Expression: The validity of a city ordinance regulating live dance performances in establishments licensed to serve liquor must be measured against free expression standards imposed by Art. II, sec. 7, Mont. Const., and the first amendment to the U.S. Constitution. Therefore, a proposed city ordinance prohibiting any live performance involving dance or the removal of clothing in licensed liquor establishments is an unconstitutional abridgment of the constitutional standards because: (1) it fails to distinguish carefully between protected and unprotected conduct; and (2) the requisite governmental interest in regulating such conduct has not been sufficiently established. 41 A.G. Op. 75 (1986).

State Authority to Regulate Liquor — No Delegation to Municipalities: The authority granted to the state by the 21st amendment to the U.S. Constitution to regulate the sale of liquor has not been delegated to municipalities with general powers. Therefore, a municipality with general powers may not punish a violation of its obscenity ordinance by suspending or revoking the liquor license of the offender. 41 A.G. Op. 75 (1986).

Amendment effective May 1, 2001.

1987 Amendment: In two places substituted "alcoholic beverages" for "liquor".

Denial of License — Lack of Public Convenience and Necessity — Adjudicative Process Warranted: Appellants contended that the Department of Revenue's denial of the issuance of all-beverages licenses based on a lack of evidence of public convenience and necessity was improper. In affirming the denial, the Supreme Court noted that the choice made between proceeding by general rule or by individual ad hoc litigation is one that lies primarily in the informed discretion of the administrative agency. Therefore, the Department's use of the adjudicatory process to determine whether the licenses were warranted was not an invalid exercise of rulemaking authority. Because the determination of public convenience and necessity involves a fact-intensive inquiry, it is not necessary that the Department adopt rigid rules defining the term. Ramage v. Dept. of Revenue, 236 M 69, 768 P2d 864, 46 St. Rep. 187 (1989), followed in Kiser v. Dept. of Revenue, 1999 MT 228, 296 M 93, 987 P2d 363, 56 St. Rep. 897 (1999).

Case Notes

Rationing System: The Montana Liquor Control Board's (now Department of Revenue) agreement with retail liquor dealers, advancing $10 a case toward enabling the Board to make an advance payment was not invalidated by the Board's rationing system, since under this section, as it read at the time, the Board could establish, amend, and alter its system either directly or by lawful transactions with exception of discrimination among holders of any class of permits. Carey v. McFatridge, 115 M 278, 142 P2d 229 (1943).

Scope of Rules: The Montana Liquor Control Board (now Department of Revenue) is an administrative body; it has no lawmaking power, and while it is authorized to make rules, they must be limited in their purpose and effect as an aid in the administration of the law of its creation, and any such rules calculated to widen the scope of the law and extend the Board's discretionary powers to matters beyond the purview of the act are void and of no effect. McFatridge v. District Court, 113 M 81, 122 P2d 834 (1942).

Rules of Substitute Board: Delegation of power to the State Board of Equalization (now Montana Tax Appeal Board) acting ex officio as beer board administering Montana Beer Act (Ch. 106, L. 1933) to make rules for the proper carrying into effect of the Act, held not objectionable as a delegation of legislative power. State ex rel. Steward v. District Court, 103 M 487, 63 P2d 141 (1936).

Attorney General's Opinions

No Authority in Local Governing Body to Prohibit Minors in Licensed Premises: An incorporated town with general powers does not have the authority to enact an ordinance prohibiting underage persons from being on licensed premises where alcoholic beverages are sold and consumed because the entire control of the manufacture, sale, and distribution of alcoholic beverages is retained within the State of Montana. The local government may not enact an ordinance providing for greater penalties than those found in 45-5-624 for an underage person convicted of possession of alcoholic beverages. 41 A.G. Op. 84 (1986).

State Authority to Regulate Liquor — No Delegation to Municipalities: The authority granted to the state by the 21st amendment to the U.S. Constitution to regulate the sale of liquor has not been delegated to municipalities with general powers. Therefore, a municipality with general powers may not punish a violation of its obscenity ordinance by suspending or revoking the liquor license of the offender. 41 A.G. Op. 75 (1986).

Case Notes

Unsuccessful Attempt to Sell Agency Franchise Agreement — Department Did Not Negligently or Intentionally Interfere With Sale: The plaintiff held an agency franchise agreement (AFA) for liquor sales and unsuccessfully tried to sell the AFA after the Department of Revenue took action to terminate the AFA for alleged violations of liquor laws. The plaintiff alleged the Department negligently or intentionally interfered with the sale of the AFA. The District Court found that the Department was protected by quasi-judicial immunity. On appeal, the Supreme Court found that regardless of, and aside from, quasi-judicial immunity, a settlement agreement between the plaintiff and the Department extinguished the plaintiff's claims. The Supreme Court also explained that the appellants had not established that the Department had a duty to approve the AFA sale, and without any such duty, the appellants cannot demonstrate that the Department acted negligently or in a manner supporting an intentional interference claim. B.Y.O.B., Inc. v. St., 2021 MT 191, 405 Mont. 88, 493 P.3d 318.

Alcohol Sale Commissions Changed to Reflect Enacted Law — Existing Contract Altered — Contracts Clause: The plaintiffs, owners of an agency liquor store and 2 years into a 10-year contract with the Department of Revenue relating to the sale of alcohol, alleged breach of contract and a state and federal contracts clause violation when the Department changed the commission structure of their contract. The Department changed the commission structure in order to implement changes made by SB 193 (Ch. 362, L. 2015). The state court lawsuit was eventually removed to federal District Court to consider the contracts clause issue. The federal District Court ruled in favor of the Department, finding that a provision in the contract expressly allowed for modifications based on changes to Montana law. On appeal, the Ninth Circuit Court affirmed, holding that the state did not impair its contractual obligation to the plaintiffs within the meaning of the contracts clause because the plaintiffs retained a cause of action to allege breach of contract with the state. LL Liquor, Inc. v. Montana, 912 F.3d 533 (9th Cir. 2018).

Vested Interest Not Gained by Mere Submission of Beer and Wine Application — Retroactive Application of General Rule on Denial of Building Permit: Town Pump, Inc. (Town Pump), was required to obtain subdivision approval in order to complete a property conveyance for the building of a convenience store, gas station, and casino wherein beer and wine would be sold. After Town Pump had submitted an application for a beer and wine license, the property was rezoned as a commercial highway, and the city subsequently adopted a development code requiring a conditional use permit for the property in order for beer and wine to be sold on premises. Town Pump's application was denied based on the provisions of the new development code. Applying the rationale in Femling v. Mont. St. Univ., 220 M 133, 713 P2d 996 (1986), and Wallace v. Dept. of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks, 269 M 364, 889 P2d 817 (1995), the Supreme Court held that Town Pump did not gain a vested interest in the beer and wine application merely because the application was submitted before the adoption of the development plan. The general rule is that the denial of an application for a building permit may be based on a zoning regulation enacted or becoming effective after the application was made; therefore, a zoning regulation may be retroactively applied to deny an application for a building permit, even though the permit could have been lawfully issued at the time of application. The court concluded that the development code was neither arbitrary nor unreasonable in its effects, that it did not impair or burden any vested interest or passed transaction held by Town Pump, and that retroactive application of the development code did not deny Town Pump's constitutional right to due process. Town Pump, Inc. v. Bd. of Adjustment of Red Lodge, 1998 MT 294, 292 M 6, 971 P2d 349, 55 St. Rep. 1205 (1998).

Case Lot Liquor Discount Applicable to Retail Price Rather Than Posted Price — Taxes Based on Discounted Retail Price: The terms of this section, authorizing the Department of Revenue to apply a 5% discount to the price of liquor sold in unbroken case lots, require that the discount apply to the retail price, which does not include liquor excise or license taxes. However, taxes are based on the discounted retail price of the liquor, which results in the same amount of excise and license tax revenues as if the discount had been applied to the retail price with the taxes included. 1985 Amendment: Inserted "or beer importer" in 11 places with minor variations in phraseology.

Case Notes

Notice and Cause: Brewer's distributorship contract with wholesaler could not be reconciled with the provisions of 16-3-221 and 16-3-222 providing for termination only for just cause and on 60 days' notice where the contract provided for termination on 30 days' notice without cause. That provision of the contract was therefore invalid. Maykuth v. Adolph Coors Co., 690 F2d 689 (9th Cir. 1982).

Termination for Dishonesty: Distributorship contract's provision allowing for immediate termination by brewer for certain serious acts by wholesaler, including a felony and "dishonesty", clearly contemplated extremely serious dishonesty. It did not cover wholesaler's out-of-state sales, failure to explain increased sales to supermarket participating in out-of-state sales, and refusal to retrieve beer involved in out-of-state sales. At most, wholesaler breached other provisions of the contract. Maykuth v. Adolph Coors Co., 690 F2d 689 (9th Cir. 1982).

Impairment of Contracts: The Montana Alcoholic Beverage Code, ch. 1 through 6 of this title, appears to be a valid exercise of the state police power and is not repugnant to the federal constitutional provisions prohibiting impairment of contracts or similar language in the Montana Constitution. Libbey II v. Jos. Schlitz Brewing Co., 34 St. Rep. 1254 (D.C. Mont. 1977) (apparently not reported in Federal Supplement).

Amendment effective April 6, 2009.

Severability: Section 4, Ch. 181, L. 2009, was a severability clause.

Saving Clause: Section 5, Ch. 181, L. 2009, was a saving clause.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 194 inserted (6) requiring contracts, agreements, or franchises to contain provision that agreements are interpreted and governed by Montana law; inserted (7) requiring that litigation resulting from a dispute occur in Montana unless unreasonable burden created; inserted (8) requiring that agreements must recognize constitutional right to jury trial; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 1999.

1985 Amendment: Inserted several references to "beer importer" and to "wholesaler and beer importer" after "brewer" and "wholesaler and brewer".

Case Notes

Notice and Cause: Brewer's distributorship contract with wholesaler could not be reconciled with the provisions of 16-3-221 and 16-3-222 providing for termination only for just cause and on 60 days' notice where the contract provided for termination on 30 days' notice without cause. That provision of the contract was therefore invalid. Maykuth v. Adolph Coors Co., 690 F2d 689 (9th Cir. 1982).

Waiver of Notice: Wholesaler's failure to seek an injunction against brewer's termination of distributorship contract was not a waiver of his right under this section to 60 days' notice of termination. Notice offered after termination was no notice at all and without practical value or effect. Brewer breached the contract and was liable for damages. Maykuth v. Adolph Coors Co., 690 F2d 689 (9th Cir. 1982).

Case Notes

Indirect Financial Interest of Liquor Distributor in Retail Liquor Businesses Prohibited: Williamson owned controlling interests in a wholesale beer and wine distribution company and also in an electronic gaming machine business that periodically made loans to alcohol retailers. Williamson was found to be in violation of the alcoholic beverage code because the distribution company had a prohibited indirect financial interest in a liquor retailer to which the gaming machine business had made a loan. Williamson contended on appeal that the provisions of 16-3-242 were construed too broadly and should apply only to an ownership interest and not to a financial interest. The Supreme Court disagreed. Williamson's common business interest and control over the two companies constituted just the type of circuitous indirect financial interest that is prohibited by 16-3-242 and 16-3-406 and gave the distribution company an impermissible indirect financial interest in the alcohol retailers. The District Court was affirmed. Shelby Distrib., LLC v. Dept. of Revenue, 2009 MT 80, 349 M 489, 206 P3d 899 (2009).

Sanction for Unlawful Control of Retail Liquor License and Wholesale Distributor License Not Violative of Due Process: Williamson owned controlling interests in a wholesale beer and wine distribution company and also in an electronic gaming machine business that periodically made loans to alcohol retailers, for which Williamson had approval from the Department of Justice. Following an investigation by the Department of Revenue, Williamson was found to be in violation of the alcoholic beverage code because the distribution company had a prohibited indirect financial interest in a liquor retailer to which the gaming machine business had made a loan. The Department of Revenue ordered the distribution company to pay a $1,500 fine, and ordered Williamson either to divest himself of common ownership of the two companies or to cease making loans to alcohol retailers. The distribution company appealed the decision to District Court on grounds that its due process rights had been violated and that the Department of Revenue had misinterpreted the law, but the court affirmed the Department order. On appeal, plaintiff contended that due process was violated when one department sanctioned the loan activity that had been previously approved by another department. The Supreme Court disagreed. Each department controlled separate functions and each required separate licenses. The Department of Justice approval of loans did not unfairly mislead Williamson into believing that the distribution company was free from the constraints of state liquor control laws. Further, the sanction in this case, the major part of which was simply an order that the prohibited conduct must cease, did not constitute treatment that was so fundamentally unfair that it violated plaintiff's due process rights. The District Court was affirmed. Shelby Distrib., LLC v. Dept. of Revenue, 2009 MT 80, 349 M 489, 206 P3d 899 (2009), distinguishing Seaman v. Dept. of Revenue, 2002 MT 34, 308 M 307, 42 P3d 790 (2002).

Regulation of Live Dance Performance in Licensed Liquor Establishment — Abridgment of Free Expression: The validity of a city ordinance regulating live dance performances in establishments licensed to serve liquor must be measured against free expression standards imposed by Art. II, sec. 7, Mont. Const., and the first amendment to the U.S. Constitution. Therefore, a proposed city ordinance prohibiting any live performance involving dance or the removal of clothing in licensed liquor establishments is an unconstitutional abridgment of the constitutional standards because: (1) it fails to distinguish carefully between protected and unprotected conduct; and (2) the requisite governmental interest in regulating such conduct has not been sufficiently established. 41 A.G. Chapter 217 throughout section changed 19 to 21.

Applicability: Section 8, Ch. 217, L. 1987, provided: "The provisions of this act do not apply to persons who were born on or between April 1, 1966, and April 1, 1968."

Effective Date: Section 9(1), Ch. 217, L. 1987, provided: "This act is effective April 1, 1987."

Severability: Section 7, Ch. 217, L. 1987, was a severability section.

Construction With Other Law: Under 27-1-710(2), no provision of Title 16 may be used to find civil liability for furnishing alcohol to a person who causes damage or an injury. Liability may only be grounded in a violation of 27-1-710.

Case Notes

Liability for Alcohol-Related Injuries — Statute Not Retroactively Applied: After consuming alcohol at a bar for 3 hours, a truck driver died from injuries received in an accident. His widow sued the bar, claiming that its action in allowing the driver to drink and then drive was the proximate cause of his death. The District Court granted the bar's motion for a judgment on the pleadings for a failure to state a claim for relief, ruling that Montana did not recognize common-law dram shop liability against the bar owner. Upon appeal, the Supreme Court held that the 1986 law (27-1-710) defining civil liability for injuries involving alcohol consumption cannot be applied retroactively. The court also ruled that the District Court erred in granting the motion for judgment on the pleadings as the widow's complaint alleging negligence by the bar properly stated a claim for relief. Jevning v. Skyline Bar, 223 M 422, 726 P2d 326, 43 St. Rep. 1845 (1986).

Guilt of Minor Misrepresenting His Age: While this part holds that a minor is "equally guilty" with a licensee selling to him, it does not mean that he is held as a matter of law to be an accomplice of the person charged with selling intoxicating liquor to an underage person. The minor's crime would be the misdemeanor of knowingly misrepresenting his qualifications for the purpose of obtaining liquor. St. v. Paskvan, 131 M 316, 309 P2d 1019 (1957).

Entrapment: Defense of entrapment would not be available to a bar owner in a prosecution for selling liquor to a minor where it was shown that the public officers had given a minor money and sent him into the bar to purchase the liquor in order to obtain evidence. St. v. Parr, 129 M 175, 283 P2d 1086 (1955), distinguished in Henderson v. U.S., 237 F2d 169 (5th Cir. 1956). (Dissenting opinion, 129 M 183, 283 P2d 1086 (1955).)

Ostensible Agency: A conviction of the owner of a tavern for a violation of this section was upheld where a barmaid at the tavern sold beer to minors, although the barmaid was not on the defendant's payroll. There was ample evidence tending to show, at the very least, an ostensible agency. St. v. Erlandson, 126 M 316, 249 P2d 794 (1952).

CASE NOTES UNDER FORMER LAW (SEE 27-1-710, MCA)

Bar Selling to Intoxicated Minor — Liability to Minor: A bar or tavern operator who serves an intoxicated minor may be liable in damages for injuries subsequently sustained by the minor. The imbiber's acts of drinking alcoholic beverages served by the bar or tavern operator and then becoming involved in an injury-producing accident may be reasonably foreseeable events which may no longer protect a defendant from liability for negligence. Under the state's system of comparative negligence, it is for the jury to determine the degree of negligence attributable to the plaintiff and defendant. Neither a plaintiff's nor a defendant's acts have to be the sole proximate cause of the injuries. To the extent that Swartzenberger v. Billings Labor Temple Ass'n, 179 M 145, 586 P2d 712, 35 St. Rep. 1625 (1978), and Folda v. Bozeman, 177 M 537, 582 P2d 767, 35 St. Rep. 1019 (1978), imply that the imbiber's act of drinking is the sole proximate cause of a resulting injury, they are overruled. Folda was also overruled, as to the standard that a property owner is absolved of liability because a dangerous condition upon the premises is open and obvious, in Richardson v. Corvallis Pub. School District No. 1, 286 M 309, 950 P2d 748, 54 St. Rep. 1422 (1997). Bissett v. DMI, Inc., 220 M 153, 717 P2d 545, 43 St. Rep. 252 (1986).

Violation of Alcoholic Beverage Control Statutes — Evidence of Negligence: Although not negligence per se, violation of the alcoholic beverage control statutes is judicially recognized as evidence of negligence with regard to a tavern operator's liability for off-premises injuries to a third party injured by a patron of the tavern. As for causation, consumption of the alcoholic beverages served, subsequent driving, and the likelihood of an injury-producing accident are foreseeable intervening acts that do not relieve the tavern operator of liability for negligence. Nehring v. LaCounte, 219 M 462, 712 P2d 1329, 43 St. Rep. 93 (1986), followed in Bissett v. DMI, Inc., 220 M 153, 717 P2d 545, 43 St. Rep. 252 (1986).

Violation of Alcoholic Beverage Control Statutes Not Negligence as Matter of Law: With regard to a tavern operator's liability for off-premises injuries to a third party injured by a patron of the tavern, the Supreme Court held that a violation of the alcoholic beverage control statutes was not negligence as a matter of law. It is not negligence per se because the two statutes in question were enacted to regulate the business of selling liquor and beer in order to protect the people of the state generally and the interests of the state rather than to protect against any particular kind of injury or provide a civil remedy. Nehring v. LaCounte, 219 M 462, 712 P2d 1329, 43 St. Rep. 93 (1986), followed in Bissett v. DMI, Inc., 220 M 153, 717 P2d 545, 43 St. Rep. 252 (1986).

Bar Selling to Intoxicated Adult — Liability to Injured Third Person: Air Force NCO Club personnel's giving of alcoholic beverage to intoxicated adult after the legal closing time for a retail liquor establishment in violation of this section and 16-3-305 was negligence per se and a proximate cause of injury to passenger in intoxicated person's auto, which went off the road and hit a tree. Intoxicated person was also negligent and his intoxication was also a proximate cause of the injury, and passenger assumed the risk of injuries when he rode with person he thought was intoxicated and an unsafe driver. Defendant U.S. was liable to passenger to the degree of defendant's negligence. Johnson v. U.S., 496 F. Supp. 597, 37 St. Rep. 1581 (D.C. Mont. 1980).

Nature of Purveyor of Alcohol: Whether alcoholic beverages were commercially served or socially served will be taken into consideration in considering liability of server to a third party injured in an auto accident involving servee. Runge v. Watts, 180 M 91, 589 P2d 145, 36 St. Rep. 85 (1979).

Section's Application to Social Purveyors of Alcohol: This section's provision that no licensee or his or her employee or employees, nor any other person, shall sell, deliver, or give away or cause or permit to be sold, delivered or given away any alcoholic beverage to . . . any person under the age of 18 (changed to 19 by 1979 amendment and changed to 21 by 1987 amendment) does not apply to a social purveyor of alcoholic beverages. Runge v. Watts, 180 M 91, 589 P2d 145, 36 St. Rep. 85 (1979).

Serving Minor at Private Party — Liability to Injured Third Person: Minor drank beer furnished by host of private party and had an auto accident while driving from host's home. Plaintiff passenger in minor's auto was injured. Minor's drinking, not host's serving of beer to him, was the proximate cause of the accident, and host was not liable to passenger under common-law negligence principles. Runge v. Watts, 180 M 91, 589 P2d 145, 36 St. Rep. 85 (1979), overruled, as to statement that the drinking, not the serving, was the proximate cause of the injury, by Nehring v. LaCounte, 219 M 462, 712 P2d 1329, 43 St. Rep. 93 (1986).

Bars Selling to Intoxicated Adult — Liability to Survivors: Adult drank excessively at two bars from late morning into the evening, fell down the stairs at one of them, and died of injuries sustained. His wife sued on behalf of herself and her two children. The bars may have been negligent per se, but the bartenders knew decedent was an experienced heavy drinker, and could not reasonably know he would fall and die as a result of the drinking. Decedent's contributory negligence intervened between any negligence of the bartenders and his death, and was the proximate cause of his death. His contributory negligence was a complete bar to recovery. Swartzenberger v. Billings Labor Temple Ass'n, 179 M 145, 586 P2d 712, 35 St. Rep. 1625 (1978). To the extent that Swartzenberger implies that the imbiber's act of drinking is the sole proximate cause of any resulting injury to the imbiber, the case is overruled by Bissett v. DMI, Inc., 220 M 153, 717 P2d 545, 43 St. Rep. 252 (1986).

Bar Selling to Intoxicated Minor — Liability to Estate: Minor was served liquor and beer by V.F.W. Club, in violation of former law, when she was obviously extremely intoxicated. She was unable to leave the club on her own, had to be helped out, and drowned in a stream near the club after apparently having entered the stream of her own accord. Evidence supported the conclusion that she became voluntarily intoxicated and disregarded her duty to use due care for her own safety, and this was the proximate cause of her death. The rule that contributory negligence precludes any recovery against a defendant was in effect at the time of the death, and the club was not liable to the estate of a decedent minor. Folda v. Bozeman, 177 M 537, 582 P2d 767, 35 St. Rep. 1019 (1978). To the extent that Folda implies that the imbiber's act of drinking is the sole proximate cause of any resulting injury to the imbiber, the case is overruled by Bissett v. DMI, Inc., 220 M 153, 717 P2d 545, 43 St. Rep. 252 (1986). Folda was also overruled, as to the standard that a property owner is absolved of liability because a dangerous condition upon the premises is open and obvious, in Richardson v. Corvallis Pub. School District No. 1, 286 M 309, 950 P2d 748, 54 St. Rep. 1422 (1997).

Bar Selling to Intoxicated Minor — Liability to Injured Third Party: Air Force NCO Club personnel served minor airman liquor in violation of this section. They knew he was drinking excessively, and knew that airmen at the club would be driving their dates home. Minor left the club while intoxicated and had an accident in which plaintiff passenger was injured. The serving of liquor to the minor was a proximate cause of the plaintiff's injuries. The plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence where she was 17, had been drinking, and relied on airman for a ride home. The United States was liable to plaintiff. Deeds v. U.S., 306 F. Supp. 348 (D.C. Mont. 1969).

Bar Selling to Patron — Liability to Injured Third Party: Bar patron was shoved by girl on stool next to his when he attempted to kiss her. He fell off the stool and knocked nearby plaintiff to the floor, injuring her. There was no proof that bar had served patron, that he was ill-behaved, or that bar violated statute prohibiting a person from giving liquor to any person apparently under the influence of liquor. Plaintiff could not recover from bar as she proved no duty created by the facts and violated by the bar; her injury was proximately caused by the patron, not the bar. Nevin v. Carlasco, 139 M 512, 365 P2d 637 (1961). However, see Harrington v. The Crystal Bar, Inc., 2013 MT 209, 371 Mont. 165, 306 P.3d 342 (reversing grant of summary judgment to a bar when pleadings indicated the bar operator had some knowledge of a potential conflict).

Case Notes

Negligence Per Se: Violation of this section, enacted for the health, welfare, and safety of the people of Montana, is negligence per se. Plaintiff was injured in accident involving vehicle driven by person defendant allegedly served in violation of this section. Johnson v. U.S., 496 F. Supp. 597, 37 St. Rep. 1581 (D.C. Mont. 1980).

Exclusive Jurisdiction: When there was alleged violation of city ordinance restricting hours of sale but same was not violation of former state law, police court (now City Court) in city had exclusive jurisdiction over matter. State ex rel. Goodwin v. District Court, 167 M 179, 536 P2d 766 (1975).

"Closed" Defined: The word "closed" means absolutely closed, to close off the front, sides, and rear of that part of a room which is used for the purpose of selling liquor. It makes no difference whether any liquor is sold or not; the offense consists in its being open. St. v. Perez, 126 M 15, 243 P2d 309 (1952).

Complaint — Sufficiency: A complaint that alleges "on or about" a certain day of a certain month is sufficient since the precise day is not of the essence of the offense; and it is sufficient if the evidence discloses the unlawful sale of liquor on a day other than the date disclosed in the complaint. State ex rel. Borberg v. District Court, 125 M 481, 240 P2d 854 (1952).

Attorney General's Opinions

Band Members as Bar Employees — Restriction From Premises After Closing Not Required: Members of a band hired to perform at a bar are considered employees within the meaning of this section and may remain on the premises after closing time. 44 A.G. Op. 2 (1991).

Closure of Poker Room After Hours Not Required — Alcoholic Beverages Prohibited: Absent local regulations to the contrary, a licensee may operate a poker game on premises licensed for sale of alcoholic beverages during hours of closure enumerated in 16-3-304; however, persons on the licensed premises, including the poker room, may not consume alcoholic beverages during the hours of closure even if the beverages were purchased prior to closing time. 42 A.G. Op. 10 (1987).

State Authority to Regulate Liquor — No Delegation to Municipalities: The authority granted to the state by the 21st amendment to the U.S. Constitution to regulate the sale of liquor has not been delegated to municipalities with general powers. Therefore, a municipality with general powers may not punish a violation of its obscenity ordinance by suspending or revoking the liquor license of the offender. 41 A.G. Op. 75 (1986).

16-3-305. Sale of alcoholic beverages during closed hours unlawful — lawful business need not be closed.

1985 Amendment: Substituted entire text (see 1985 Session Law) for "During the hours when the licensed establishments where alcoholic beverages are sold at retail are required by this code to be closed, it shall be unlawful to sell, offer for sale, or give away any such alcoholic beverages, and during such hours all persons, save employees of such licensed establishments, shall be excluded therefrom; provided, however, that when a licensed establishment is operated in conjunction with a hotel, restaurant, bus depot, railway terminal, or other lawful business other than that of the sale of intoxicating liquor or beer, then such other lawful business need not be closed, but only the part thereof where such beer or liquor is sold."

Negligence Per Se: Violation of this section, enacted for the health, welfare, and safety of the people of Montana, is negligence per se. Restaurant Business: When the dining room is entirely separate from the barroom with a connecting door, this section is violated by keeping the barroom open after hours and allowing people to remain therein. The restaurant business may be conducted without using the barroom. St. v. Perez, 126 M 15, 243 P2d 309 (1952).

Attorney General's Opinions

When Nonemployees Allowed on Bar Premises After Closing — Consumption of Alcohol Not Allowed: Under this section, nonemployees may remain on the premises of a bar after closing time as long as the owner of the licensed premises is engaged in a lawful business; however, nonemployees may not consume alcoholic beverages on the premises after closing time, even if the beverages were purchased prior to closing. 44 A.G. Case Notes

Showing of Constitutionally Protected Property Interest Required — Federal and State Claims: Plaintiff brought property interest claims against a city and city council members on several state and federal grounds after a state liquor license was denied. The city had enacted ordinances disallowing the sale of alcohol in the city without a conditional use permit and then denied plaintiff's application for a permit. The District Court held that plaintiff's property interest claims were invalid, and plaintiff appealed. The Supreme Court noted that to establish a viable claim under 42 U.S.C. 1983, a plaintiff must first establish that it possesses a protected liberty or property interest and has a legitimate claim of entitlement to that interest. Under state due process and takings law, a plaintiff must also establish a property interest, and a property interest exists only when the Legislature has so narrowly circumscribed the issuing agency's discretion that approval of the interest is virtually assured. Receipt of a liquor license is a privilege and not a right. Plaintiff had yet to obtain a state liquor license at the time that the ordinances were passed and thus had no property interest in operating a bar, nor could plaintiff assert ultimate entitlement to a liquor license. Therefore, plaintiff's inability to demonstrate a protected property interest in operating property as a bar precluded the establishment of federal or state property claims against the city and City Council members, nor did the city deprive plaintiff of a protected property interest by enacting the ordinances or denying a conditional use permit. The District Court was affirmed. Germann v. Stephens, 2006 MT 130, 332 M 303, 137 P3d 545 (2006), following ISC Distrib., Inc. v. Trevor, 273 M 185, 903 P2d 170 (1995), and Kiely Constr. v. Red Lodge, 2002 MT 241, 312 M 52, 57 P3d 836 (2002).

Administrative Rule Void When Contrary to Longstanding Administrative Interpretation: The Department of Revenue's longstanding administrative interpretation of the meaning of "on the same street" as used in 16-3-306 has the force and effect of law due to the repeated reenactment of that section by the Legislature without change in the operative language that no license be issued to a business "on the same street" and within 600 feet of a church or school. Thus, the interpretation could not be changed, and an administrative rule making a change is invalid. Hovey v. Dept. of Revenue, 203 M 27, 659 P2d 280, 40 St. Rep. 272 (1983).

Entrances "On the Same Street": When the phrase "on the same street", as used in this section, is read in conjunction with the section's requirement that the distance between the premises of the business and a church or school be measured in a straight line from entrance to entrance, it is evident that the Legislature intended the provision to apply only when the entrance to the business and the entrance to the church or school are on the same street. Hovey v. Dept. of Revenue, 203 M 27, 659 P2d 280, 40 St. Rep. 272 (1983).

Compiler's Comments

1983 Amendment: Substituted entire text (see 1983 Session Law) for "(1) The cities and incorporated towns may enact ordinances defining certain areas in the cities and towns where alcoholic beverages may or may not be sold.

(2) No incorporated city or incorporated town may by ordinance restrict the number of licenses that the department may issue."

Case Notes

Preemption: Cities do not have the authority or jurisdiction to enact ordinances dealing with the control of sales of liquor; the state has exclusive authority in that matter. State ex rel. Libby v. Haswell, 147 M 492, 414 P2d 652 (1966), overruled in Town Pump, Inc. v. Bd. of Adjustment of Red Lodge, 1998 MT 294, 292 M 6, 971 P2d 349, 55 St. Rep. 1205 (1998).

Power of City Council to Limit Number of Beer Parlors: A city council could (prior to 1947 amendment of the Montana Beer Act taking this power away from cities) properly limit the number of places in the city where beer and liquor at retail might be sold and then refuse to issue a license to the assignee of a Montana Liquor Control Board (now Department of Revenue) license, and in doing so was not depriving him of property without due process of law. State ex rel. McIntire v. Libby, 107 M 216, 82 P2d 587 (1938), explained in Stephens v. Great Falls, 119 M 368, 175 P2d 408 (1938).

Attorney General's Opinions

No Authority in Local Governing Body to Prohibit Minors in Licensed Premises: An incorporated town with general powers does not have the authority to enact an ordinance prohibiting underage persons from being on licensed premises where alcoholic beverages are sold and consumed because the entire control of the manufacture, sale, and distribution of alcoholic beverages is retained within the State of Montana. The local government may not enact an ordinance providing for greater penalties than those found in 45-5-624 for an underage person convicted of possession of alcoholic beverages. 41 A.G. Op. 84 (1986).

State Authority to Regulate Liquor — No Delegation to Municipalities: The authority granted to the state by the 21st amendment to the U.S. Constitution to regulate the sale of liquor has not been delegated to municipalities with general powers. Therefore, a municipality with general powers may not punish a violation of its obscenity ordinance by suspending or revoking the liquor license of the offender. 41 A.G. Op. 75 (1986).

Local Governments Preempted From Controlling Beer Sales: In Montana, neither cities nor counties have authority to enact ordinances requiring wholesale and retail distributors of keg beer to keep and maintain records of the sales or distribution of all beer kegs within the city or county. 40 A.G. Op. 48 (1984).

City License — Effect on State License: A city may license a beer distributor under 16-4-503 but may not thereby limit or make ineffective a state license. 37 A.G. Op. 100 (1977).

Administrative Rules

ARM 42.13.108 Lapse of license for nonuse.

Case Notes

Commencement of Nonuse Period: Plaintiffs ignored reality by contending that the 90-day period of nonuse commenced upon conditional approval, and that the right to transfer vested on that date, subject to divestment only upon failure to meet health requirements and inspection. The fair and logical answer is that the license continues in the old place of business (as long as it is actively being used) until the ultimate transfer is approved by the licensing authority. State ex rel. Corette v. Dept. of Revenue, 176 M 276, 577 P2d 1214 (1978).

Limitation of Actions: Licensee, whose license was revoked for nonuse, was barred from relief by his failure to take action within 15 days after receipt of notice from the Montana Liquor Control Board (now Department of Revenue). State ex rel. Gillespie v. Mont. Liquor Control Bd., 150 M 26, 430 P2d 112 (1967).

Short, Temporary Opening to Avoid Statute: Licenses lapse automatically if not used for 90 days, and the statutory nonuse period could not be avoided by opening bar to the public for a few hours of 1 day. State ex rel. Gillespie v. Mont. Liquor Control Bd., 150 M 26, 430 P2d 112 (1967).

Case Notes

Indirect Financial Interest of Liquor Distributor in Retail Liquor Businesses Prohibited: Williamson owned controlling interests in a wholesale beer and wine distribution company and also in an electronic gaming machine business that periodically made loans to alcohol retailers. Williamson was found to be in violation of the alcoholic beverage code because the distribution company had a prohibited indirect financial interest in a liquor retailer to which the gaming machine business had made a loan. Williamson contended on appeal that the provisions of 16-3-242 were construed too broadly and should apply only to an ownership interest and not to a financial interest. The Supreme Court disagreed. Williamson's common business interest and control over the two companies constituted just the type of circuitous indirect financial interest that is prohibited by 16-3-242 and 16-3-406 and gave the distribution company an impermissible indirect financial interest in the alcohol retailers. The District Court was affirmed. Shelby Distrib., LLC v. Dept. of Revenue, 2009 MT 80, 349 M 489, 206 P3d 899 (2009).

Sanction for Unlawful Control of Retail Liquor License and Wholesale Distributor License Not Violative of Due Process: Williamson owned controlling interests in a wholesale beer and wine distribution company and also in an electronic gaming machine business that periodically made loans to alcohol retailers, for which Williamson had approval from the Department of Justice. Following an investigation by the Department of Revenue, Williamson was found to be in violation of the alcoholic beverage code because the distribution company had a prohibited indirect financial interest in a liquor retailer to which the gaming machine business had made a loan. The Department of Revenue ordered the distribution company to pay a $1,500 fine, and ordered Williamson either to divest himself of common ownership of the two companies or to cease making loans to alcohol retailers. The distribution company appealed the decision to District Court on grounds that its due process rights had been violated and that the Department of Revenue had misinterpreted the law, but the court affirmed the Department order. On appeal, plaintiff contended that due process was violated when one department sanctioned the loan activity that had been previously approved by another department. The Supreme Court disagreed. Each department controlled separate functions and each required separate licenses. The Department of Justice approval of loans did not unfairly mislead Williamson into believing that the distribution company was free from the constraints of state liquor control laws. Further, the sanction in this case, the major part of which was simply an order that the prohibited conduct must cease, did not constitute treatment that was so fundamentally unfair that it violated plaintiff's due process rights. The District Court was affirmed. Shelby Distrib., LLC v. Dept. of Revenue, 2009 MT 80, 349 M 489, 206 P3d 899 (2009), distinguishing Seaman v. Dept. of Revenue, 2002 MT 34, 308 M 307, 42 P3d 790 (2002).

Issuance of License — Off-the-Record Site Visit Improper: After an administrative hearing, the Director of the Department of Revenue awarded a beer and wine license to one of two parties after unannounced site visits to the premises of each party. On appeal, the District Court overruled the Director's decision and reinstated the order of the hearing examiner, which proposed award of the license to the other party. The Supreme Court affirmed the District Court's order vacating the Director's order because it was founded on an unlawful procedure that violated the appellant's due process interests. Whether the conduct prejudiced both contenders' rights equally is irrelevant. Lack of prior notice, coupled with lack of any documentation, is fatal to an ordinarily permissible inspection. This type of conduct under a Montana Administrative Procedure Act proceeding violates certain other safeguards built in by statute: the right to respond and present evidence and argument on all relevant issues and the right to conduct a cross-examination sufficient for full and true disclosure of facts. However, the trial judge erred in ordering the adoption of the hearing examiner's proposal. This was not an alternative authorized by statute. The case was remanded to the Department for final determination. Frascell, Inc. v. St., 235 M 152, 766 P2d 850, 45 St. Rep. 2267 (1988).

Purported Equitable Ownership of Beer License: A person who claims equitable ownership of a retail beer license and wishes to have the license transferred to him may not enforce his claim when he has never been the record owner of the license, his name has never been endorsed on the license in any other capacity, and, as a result, he has never been subjected to the scrutiny of the Liquor Division of the Department of Revenue throughout the time he has claimed his equitable interest. Feurherm v. Schmaing, 181 M 136, 592 P2d 924, 36 St. Rep. 479 (1979), distinguished in Groshelle v. Reid, 270 M 443, 893 P2d 314, 52 St. Rep. 261 (1995).

Qualifications for License: Montana Liquor Control Board (now Department of Revenue) was not empowered by the terms of the Montana Beer Act (Ch. 106, L. 1933) to establish the policy that grocery stores are the only "fit and proper person, firm or corporation to sell beer". Skaggs Drug Centers v. Mont. Liquor Control Bd., 146 M 115, 404 P2d 511 (1965).

Statute Clear on Face: Petitioner applied for a beer license in Miles City and was denied. The State Tax Appeal Board (now Montana Tax Appeal Board) and the District Court affirmed the decision. At the time of petitioner's application, Miles City had eight beer licenses and a population of 9,602 people. Under this section, a city must reach a population of 10,000 before a ninth license can be issued. Petitioner was therefore properly denied a license. Colvin v. Preamble: The preamble to Ch. 731, L. 1985, provided: "WHEREAS, on July 1, 1983, the United States Supreme Court rendered its opinion in the case entitled Rice, Director, Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control of California v. Rehner, and held that Congress had delegated authority to the states, as well as to Indian tribes, to regulate the use and distribution of alcoholic beverages in Indian country; and

WHEREAS, the Montana Alcoholic Beverage Code limits the number of all-beverages licenses available in corporate city and county quota areas and the number of on-premises consumption retail beer licenses available in corporate city quota areas; and

WHEREAS, the enforcement of Montana's alcoholic beverages license quota creates a hardship on tribal alcoholic beverages licensees in quota areas where no state licenses are available; and

WHEREAS, the enlisted men's, noncommissioned officers', and officers' clubs located on state or federal military reservations in Montana have operated for many years as federal enclaves beyond the jurisdiction of state laws relating to licensing and regulation of alcoholic beverages; and

WHEREAS, effective December 1, 1984, Air National Guard Regulation 215-2 requires enlisted men's, noncommissioned officers', and officers' clubs to comply with state laws relating to licensing and regulation of alcoholic beverages; and

WHEREAS, the enforcement of Montana's alcoholic beverage license quota creates a hardship for enlisted men's, noncommissioned officers', and officers' clubs, which have historically operated as social clubs without profit motive and which do not have the economic capacity to compete for licenses.

THEREFORE, the Legislature of the State of Montana determines it appropriate to make available retail alcoholic beverages licenses in excess of state quota limitations to be issued to persons holding tribal alcoholic beverages licenses and doing business on Montana Indian reservations and to enlisted men's, noncommissioned officers', and officers' clubs located on state or federal military reservations."

Case Notes

County Liquor License Improperly Issued for Bar Within Five Miles of City Limits: Owens received a county liquor license for her bar, which she attested was more than 5 miles from the city limits of Kalispell, based on a survey by a private licensed surveyor who used an engineer's ruler to measure on a map the distance from the city limit to the boundary of Owens' property nearest to the city limit. After receiving three contacts alleging problems with Owens' license, including a charge that the bar was not located beyond the 5-mile requirement, the Department of Justice had a land-based survey conducted, and the radial distance from the bar's nearest entrance measured 4.911 miles from the nearest boundary of Kalispell—470 feet short of 5 miles. The Department of Revenue (Department) then notified Owens that it was revoking the license based on incorrect information in the application and for noncompliance with the distance requirement. Owens contested the revocation, but a hearings examiner recommended that the revocation be affirmed, the Department Director agreed, and the District Court affirmed the revocation. On appeal, the Supreme Court also affirmed. Substantial evidence supported the Director's findings, and nothing in the record indicated that the Director misapprehended the effect of the findings. Statutory and administrative guidelines allowed for revocation of the license under these circumstances, and the District Court correctly affirmed the Director's decision to revoke the license. Owens v. Dept. of Revenue, 2007 MT 298, 340 M 48, 172 P3d 1227 (2007).

Lapsed Pre-1947 All-Beverages License Not Reinstated: The Billings VFW ceased operations in 1974 and allowed its pre-1947 liquor license to lapse based on the belief that the license was nontransferable. In 1979, the VFW reopened and was issued a new nontransferable all-beverages license. In 1991, the Supreme Court held that pre-1947 liquor licenses held by fraternal and veterans' organizations were not subject to quota restrictions passed in 1949 and therefore were freely transferable. (See Helena Aerie No. 16 v. Dept. of Revenue, 251 M 77, 822 P2d 1057 (1991).) After the 1991 court decision, the VFW received an offer to purchase its pre-1947 license for $165,000. The Department of Revenue refused to reissue the lapsed license or to declare that the current license held by the VFW was freely transferable. The VFW sought a declaratory judgment that its license be characterized as freely transferable on the basis that the Department was estopped from arguing that the license was nontransferable because the VFW had let the pre-1947 license expire based on the Department's misrepresentation that under the 1949 law, the license was nontransferable. The Supreme Court held that the doctrine of equitable estoppel did not apply because the misrepresentation had to be of fact and not a misrepresentation of law. Billings Post No. 1634 v. Dept. of Revenue, 284 M 84, 943 P2d 517, 54 St. Rep. 786 (1997).

Fraternal Organization's License to Remain Transferable and Assignable: The Eagles Club, holder of a liquor license since 1934, appealed a District Court ruling that the Department of Revenue had properly classified its license as nontransferable and nonassignable. The Supreme Court reversed, holding that there had been no evidence that the license held by the Eagles Club, renewed under the 1947 quota law, had lost its original characteristics of being transferable and assignable. Helena Aerie No. 16, F.O.E. v. Dept. of Revenue, 251 M 77, 822 P2d 1057, 48 St. Rep. 1050 (1991).

Denial of License — Lack of Public Convenience and Necessity — Adjudicative Process Warranted: Appellants contended that the Department of Revenue's denial of the issuance of all-beverages licenses based on a lack of evidence of public convenience and necessity was improper. In affirming the denial, the Supreme Court noted that the choice made between proceeding by general rule or by individual ad hoc litigation is one that lies primarily in the informed discretion of the administrative agency. Therefore, the Department's use of the adjudicatory process to determine whether the licenses were warranted was not an invalid exercise of rulemaking authority. Because the determination of public convenience and necessity involves a fact-intensive inquiry, it is not necessary that the Department adopt rigid rules defining the term. Ramage v. Dept. of Revenue, 236 M 69, 768 P2d 864, 46 St. Rep. 187 (1989), followed in Kiser v. Dept. of Revenue, 1999 MT 228, 296 M 93, 987 P2d 363, 56 St. Rep. 897 (1999).

Lease Expiring After Enactment of Quota System: Where hotel and bar were leased for a period of 5 years at time when there was no quota on liquor licenses, and contract provided for return of the property to lessor upon expiration of lease but made no mention of transfer of liquor license, lease could not be reformed in equity to include provision for transfer of liquor license where quota law had been enacted prior to expiration of lease. Sullivan v. Marsh, 124 M 415, 225 P2d 868 (1950), distinguished in Beard v. McCormick, 147 M 361, 411 P2d 964 (1966).

Power of Council to Limit Number of Places: A City Council could properly limit the number of places in the city where beer and liquor at retail might be sold and then refuse to issue a license to the assignee of a Montana Liquor Control Board (now Department of Revenue) license, and in doing so was not depriving him of property without due process of law. State ex rel. McIntire v. Libby, 107 M 216, 82 P2d 587 (1938), explained in Stephens v. Great Falls, 119 M 368, 175 P2d 408 (1938).

Case Notes

Local Development Code Regulating Sale of Alcoholic Beverages Not Preempted by State: Montana's statutory framework for the regulation of alcohol clearly contemplates that cities will impose local zoning that regulates the sale of alcohol. The development code of the city of Red Lodge, a self-governing city, being consistent with and stricter than the state's regulations, was not preempted by state law. Town Pump, Inc. v. Bd. of Adjustment of Red Lodge, 1998 MT 294, 292 M 6, 971 P2d 349, 55 St. Rep. 1205 (1998), overruling State ex rel. Libby v. Haswell, 147 M 492, 414 P2d 652 (1966).

Criteria Applicable in Determination of Public Convenience and Necessity — Lack of Protest: Guidelines used by the Department of Revenue in determining whether issuance of an all-beverages license is warranted by public convenience include: (1) whether issuance of the license will materially promote the public's ability to engage in the licensed activity; and (2) evaluation of a variety of criteria including, inter alia: (a) the business abilities and character of the applicant; (b) the demand for services in the area to be served; (c) the impact on existing purveyors; and (d) any adverse impact on the area to be served. In order to make this determination, the Department must independently weigh the evidence submitted by the applicants. The lack of public protest does not extinguish this duty. Ramage v. Dept. of Revenue, 236 M 69, 768 P2d 864, 46 St. Rep. 187 (1989), followed in Kiser v. Dept. of Revenue, 1999 MT 228, 296 M 93, 987 P2d 363, 56 St. Rep. 897 (1999).

1993 Amendment: Chapter 599 in (2)(a), at end of first sentence, inserted "for on-premise consumption"; deleted former first sentence of (2)(c) that read: "A written application for each event for which the licensee intends to provide catering services, the written approval of the catering application by the sponsor of the special event, and a fee of $35 must be filed with the department at least 3 days prior to the event and shall describe the location of the premises where the event is to be held, the nature of the event, and the period during which the event is to be held" and deleted fourth sentence that read: "If obtained, the licensee shall display in a prominent place on those premises, the written approval from the department for each event which is catered pursuant to this subsection"; at beginning of (2)(d), after "The licensee shall", substituted "notify" for "file with each application for an event to be catered a written statement of approval of the premises where the event is to be held, issued by", before "event" inserted "catered", and inserted second sentence requiring a $35 fee; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective May 4, 1993.

Chapter 180 inserted (2)(g) relating to the authority of a holder of a catering endorsement to sell beer at a county fairground or public sports arena.

1985 Amendments — Effective Date and Applicability: In (1)(a)(ii) and (1)(b) inserted "exclusive of those issued under 16-4-209(1)(a) and (1)(b)"; and inserted (1)(e) prohibiting transfer of a license issued under 16-4-209(1)(a) to area outside quota area or reservation boundary.

Section 8, Ch. 731, L. 1985, provided: "This act is effective on passage and approval [approved May 13, 1985] and applies only to tribal licensees who hold tribal licenses issued prior to January 1, 1985, and to enlisted men's, noncommissioned officers', and officers' clubs located on state and federal military reservations in Montana on May 13, 1985."

1983 Amendments: Chapter 29 deleted former (9) that read: "All licenses shall expire at midnight of June 30 of each year."

Chapter 37, in (2)(c), reduced the fee from $40 to $35 and reduced the time for filing the application from 10 days to 3 days prior to the event; at end of (2)(d) inserted the requirement of approval by the local law enforcement agency.

Chapter 59, in (1)(c), deleted last two sentences, which read: "A license transferred between quota areas under this section may be held only by natural persons for 5 years following the transfer. For the purpose of this section, natural persons shall not include limited partnerships or other business entities of any kind in which each natural person is not a full participant in the ownership and operation of the business authorized by the license."

Chapter 636, in (1)(a)(ii), deleted "by more than 33%" after "that area's quota" and inserted (A) and (B) establishing two percentage limitations rather than one.

1983 Code Commissioner Change: Former (1) through (5) and (8) were redesignated 16-4-404(2) through (7).

1981 Amendments — Composite: Chapter 25 added "prescribed in 16-4-502" at the end of (1)(a)(i) and (1)(a)(ii).

Chapter 59 inserted (1)(b) relating to when a license within an incorporated quota area may be transferred to a new ownership and a new unincorporated location in the same county and inserted "Except as provided in subsection (1)(b)" at the beginning of (1)(a).

Chapter 512 changed 25% to 33% in (1)(a)(ii); changed the provisions of (1)(c), relating to mortgage, pledge, or retransfer of a license, to apply only for the 5 years following the transfer; and added (1)(d) prohibiting retransfer of license to different quota area.

In preparing the composite of the Ch. 59 and Ch. 512 amendments, the code commissioner did not include the language "Except as provided in subsection (b) above," added to (1)(c) by Ch. 59 in order to avoid apparently redundant language indicating the subsection to which (1)(c) applies.

Revenue Oversight Committee Bill: House Bill 21 (Ch. 25, L. 1981) was introduced at the request of the Revenue Oversight Committee. See committee report, "Montana's Liquor License Quota System", Legislative Council (1980).

Case Notes

Security Interest Retained in Beer and Wine License — Assignment Contingent on Fulfillment of Premises Lease: Groshelle leased a bar to Bertschs. The lease provided that Groshelle would assign the beer and wine license to Bertschs and retain a security interest in the license and that Bertschs would reassign the license to Groshelle upon termination of the lease. The transfer of license was approved by the Department of Revenue. After deciding to sell the business to Reids, Bertschs applied for transfer of the license to Reids, subject to Groshelle's security interest and a reassignment to Groshelle upon termination of the lease. That transfer was also approved. After a lease period of several years, Reids and Groshelle could not come to terms regarding a new lease. Groshelle filed a complaint seeking a judgment declaring the reassignment provisions of the lease valid and enforceable. The District Court properly granted partial summary judgment to Groshelle after holding the reassignment enforceable, subject to Department approval. The Supreme Court affirmed on appeal, finding nothing in the language of the various leases of the bar premises, fixtures, and furniture that created a lease in the beer and wine license and nothing in the record indicating Groshelle's intent to relinquish the license. Groshelle v. Reid, 270 M 443, 893 P2d 314, 52 St. Rep. 261 (1995), distinguishing Feurherm v. Schmaing, 181 M 136, 592 P2d 924 (1979).

Purported Equitable Ownership of Beer License: A person who claims equitable ownership of a beer license and wishes to have the license transferred to him may not enforce his claim when he has never been the record owner of the license, his name has never been endorsed on the license in any other capacity, and, as a result, he has never been subjected to the scrutiny of the Liquor Division of the Department of Revenue throughout the time he has claimed his equitable interest. Feurherm v. Schmaing, 181 M 136, 592 P2d 924, 36 St. Rep. 479 (1979), distinguished in Groshelle v. Reid, 270 M 443, 893 P2d 314, 52 St. Rep. 261 (1995).

Transfer at End of Lease: When plaintiffs rented premises and allowed defendant to use their liquor license under a homemade lease, liquor license was not transferred to defendant at the expiration of the lease. Beard v. McCormick, 147 M 361, 411 P2d 964 (1966).

License Transferred With Lease: A court decree adjudged that the liquor licenses be transferred to the defendants. Because they were unable under Montana law to hold such licenses, an arrangement was made between the plaintiff and the defendants to transfer the licenses to the plaintiff along with a lease of the premises. Such lease and transfer were upheld as there was consideration. Sears v. Barker, 126 M 101, 244 P2d 516 (1952).

Transfer of Location:

Montana Liquor Control Board (now Department of Revenue) conformed to legislative directive in refusing to authorize removal of license from premises for which it was granted to another location. State ex rel. Boulds v. Paige, 124 M 353, 224 P2d 141 (1950).

Purchaser of a license from a licensee cannot compel Montana Liquor Control Board (now Department of Revenue) to consent to transfer of license when he intends to carry on business at a location different from that authorized in the original license. State ex rel. Jester v. Paige, 123 M 301, 213 P2d 441 (1949).

Assignment of License: An "involuntary" assignment and coerced surrender, enforced by court decree, after making for the parties a contract to which they did not and could not agree, are not authorized. Light v. Zeiter, 124 M 67, 219 P2d 295 (1950).

Evidence: Complaint in suit for reformation of contract on ground that words "stock and fixtures" in contract for sale of beer and liquor establishment, containing provision for surrender of property in case of default, were intended by the parties to include the beer and liquor licenses. Plaintiffs had no right in the original licenses which were transferred to purchasers where the several plaintiffs were alleged to have been joint owners, but the original liquor and beer licenses were in the name of only one of them. Light v. Zeiter, 124 M 67, 219 P2d 295 (1950).

Disqualified Person Interested in Premises: License issued in name of one person who failed to state in application that two others who were ineligible for license had an interest in the premises was invalid and subject to cancellation. Perry v. Luding, 123 M 570, 217 P2d 207 (1950).

Attachment of License: A retail liquor license is subject to attachment. Stallinger v. Goss, 121 M 437, 193 P2d 810 (1948).

Transfer After Sheriff's Sale: A retail liquor dealer's license could be purchased by a qualified person at a Sheriff's sale, and such purchaser could insist that the license so purchased be transferred to him. Stallinger v. Goss, 121 M 437, 193 P2d 810 (1948).

Case Notes

Administrative Rule Clarifying Whether Sufficient Need Exists for Hearing on Transfer Application Not Violative of Protesters' Rights: Protesters to the transfer of a beer and wine license contended that ARM 42.12.109, which requires that the protest letter state the reasons for protesting the transfer of a license, violated the protesters' rights under this section. The Supreme Court disagreed. A regulation that limits the scope of arguments and oral testimony at a hearing to protest the transfer of a license to the issues presented in the initial protest letter serves an administrative function reasonably tailored to the Department of Revenue's broad discretion to efficiently administer the liquor code and does not conflict with this section. The Rule clarifies whether a sufficient need exists for a hearing on a particular transfer application and does not violate protesters' rights. Forsythe v. Great Falls Holdings, LLC, 2008 MT 384, 347 M 67, 196 P3d 1233 (2008).

Department Properly Allowed to Participate in Judicial Review of Liquor License Transfer: Protesters to the transfer of a liquor license asserted that the District Court improperly allowed the Department of Revenue to participate in judicial review of the Department's decision regarding the license transfer on grounds that the Department was not a necessary party to the action. The Supreme Court noted that a person who is not a party to an action cannot be a party to the judgment of that action and that it is only against a party to an action that judgment can be taken. The District Court could not properly order the Department to take specific action concerning the license transfer unless the Department was a party to the action. Therefore, the District Court properly allowed the Department to participate in judicial review of the Department's decision. Forsythe v. Great Falls Holdings, LLC, 2008 MT 384, 347 M 67, 196 P3d 1233 (2008), distinguishing Young v. Great Falls, 194 M 513, 632 P2d 1111 (1981), and Hilands Golf Club v. Ashmore, 277 M 324, 922 P2d 469 (1996).

Transfer of Liquor License Properly Approved Given Compliance With License Transfer Laws and Lack of Evidence Requiring Denial of Transfer: A group of 83 citizens protested the transfer of a liquor license to a proposed truck stop casino on grounds that gambling can be addictive and lead to criminal behavior for some persons, that gambling should not be legal, and that gambling should be restricted to certain areas of town other than near the residential area where many of the protesters lived. Following the required hearing on transfer of the license, the Department of Revenue approved the transfer and the citizens appealed. The Supreme Court noted that the citizens' arguments were very broad policy-type concerns that would more appropriately be raised with the Legislature rather than in the context of a license transfer and found that the Department properly considered each component of public convenience and necessity and correctly concluded that there was no substantial evidence that required denial of the license. The applicant and the Department complied with all laws regarding license transfer, and the court declined to interfere with the approval of the transfer. Preamble: The preamble to Ch. 731, L. 1985, provided: "WHEREAS, on July 1, 1983, the United States Supreme Court rendered its opinion in the case entitled Rice, Director, Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control of California v. Rehner, and held that Congress had delegated authority to the states, as well as to Indian tribes, to regulate the use and distribution of alcoholic beverages in Indian country; and

WHEREAS, the Montana Alcoholic Beverage Code limits the number of all-beverages licenses available in corporate city and county quota areas and the number of on-premises consumption retail beer licenses available in corporate city quota areas; and

WHEREAS, the enforcement of Montana's alcoholic beverages license quota creates a hardship on tribal alcoholic beverages licensees in quota areas where no state licenses are available; and

WHEREAS, the enlisted men's, noncommissioned officers', and officers' clubs located on state or federal military reservations in Montana have operated for many years as federal enclaves beyond the jurisdiction of state laws relating to licensing and regulation of alcoholic beverages; and

WHEREAS, effective December 1, 1984, Air National Guard Regulation 215-2 requires enlisted men's, noncommissioned officers', and officers' clubs to comply with state laws relating to licensing and regulation of alcoholic beverages; and

WHEREAS, the enforcement of Montana's alcoholic beverage license quota creates a hardship for enlisted men's, noncommissioned officers', and officers' clubs, which have historically operated as social clubs without profit motive and which do not have the economic capacity to compete for licenses.

THEREFORE, the Legislature of the State of Montana determines it appropriate to make available retail alcoholic beverages licenses in excess of state quota limitations to be issued to persons holding tribal alcoholic beverages licenses and doing business on Montana Indian reservations and to enlisted men's, noncommissioned officers', and officers' clubs located on state or federal military reservations."

Effective Date — Applicability: Section 8, Ch. 731, L. 1985, provided: "This act is effective on passage and approval [approved May 13, 1985] and applies only to tribal licensees who hold tribal licenses issued prior to January 1, 1985, and to enlisted men's, noncommissioned officers', and officers' clubs located on state and federal military reservations in Montana on May 13, 1985."

ARM 42.12.307 Resort area determination application process.

Case Notes

No Error in Denial of Liquor License Transfer to Excluded Inholding Within Exterior Boundary of Resort: The District Court affirmed the findings and conclusions of a Department of Revenue hearings examiner that a liquor license could not be transferred to a site that was within the exterior boundaries of Big Mountain Ski Resort but that was excluded from the resort area itself as an excluded inholding. The license applicant appealed, but the Supreme Court affirmed. The hearings examiner properly interpreted 16-4-202 (now repealed) to allow the corporate entity that owned the resort to selectively exclude properties within the designated resort boundary from being in the resort area itself. Pursuant to the statute, properties not owned by a resort developer can be brought into the resort area if brought under the developer's control by contract, lease, option, or permit. The site in question was in fact located within the resort boundaries but was never owned or controlled by the resort developer and was excepted from the resort area by virtue of the legal description on the plats. Therefore, denial of the liquor license transfer to an excepted inholding that was not part of the resort area was proper. Case Notes

Showing of Constitutionally Protected Property Interest Required — Federal and State Claims: Plaintiff brought property interest claims against a city and city council members on several state and federal grounds after a state liquor license was denied. The city had enacted ordinances disallowing the sale of alcohol in the city without a conditional use permit and then denied plaintiff's application for a permit. The District Court held that plaintiff's property interest claims were invalid, and plaintiff appealed. The Supreme Court noted that to establish a viable claim under 42 U.S.C. 1983, a plaintiff must first establish that it possesses a protected liberty or property interest and has a legitimate claim of entitlement to that interest. Under state due process and takings law, a plaintiff must also establish a property interest, and a property interest exists only when the Legislature has so narrowly circumscribed the issuing agency's discretion that approval of the interest is virtually assured. Receipt of a liquor license is a privilege and not a right. Plaintiff had yet to obtain a state liquor license at the time that the ordinances were passed and thus had no property interest in operating a bar, nor could plaintiff assert ultimate entitlement to a liquor license. Therefore, plaintiff's inability to demonstrate a protected property interest in operating property as a bar precluded the establishment of federal or state property claims against the city and City Council members, nor did the city deprive plaintiff of a protected property interest by enacting the ordinances or denying a conditional use permit. The District Court was affirmed. Germann v. Stephens, 2006 MT 130, 332 M 303, 137 P3d 545 (2006), following ISC Distrib., Inc. v. Trevor, 273 M 185, 903 P2d 170 (1995), and Kiely Constr. v. Red Lodge, 2002 MT 241, 312 M 52, 57 P3d 836 (2002).

Successful Applicant for Liquor License Required to Be Citizen When License Issued — Deference to Agency Interpretation of Statute: Tokumoto, Merhi, and others applied for several new liquor licenses to be issued for Missoula. At the time of his application, Merhi was not a U.S. citizen. The Department of Revenue determined, in accordance with its longstanding interpretation of the statutes, that Merhi did not have to be a citizen at the time that the relative merits of Merhi's application for a license were determined, as long as he was a citizen at the time of issuance of a license. Citing Norfolk Holdings, Inc. v. Dept. of Revenue, 249 M 40, 813 P2d 460 (1991), the Supreme Court affirmed the Department's decision, noting that the Supreme Court gives great deference to an interpretation of a statute by the agency charged with its administration. Tokumoto v. Dept. of Revenue, 264 M 56, 869 P2d 782, 51 St. Rep. 144 (1994).

"All Applicable Laws" — Meaning: In this section, which provides that a license permitting on-premises consumption of alcoholic beverages cannot be renewed unless the Department of Revenue finds that the licensee's past record and present status as a purveyor of alcoholic beverages and as a businessman and citizen demonstrate that he is likely to operate his establishment in compliance with all applicable laws of the state and local governments, "all applicable laws" is not limited to the alcoholic beverages laws and the zoning and nuisance laws. Broers v. Dept. of Revenue, 237 M 367, 773 P2d 320, 46 St. Rep. 873 (1989).

License Renewal Denied for Assaults and Other Misdemeanors Relating to Fighting, Guns, and Alcoholic Beverage Misuse: Evidence was sufficient to deny renewal of a license to sell alcoholic beverages for on-premises consumption. Misdemeanor convictions for DUI, reckless driving, barroom brawling, and discharging a firearm in the direction of a passing motorist may not alone have been sufficient to refuse to renew the license. However when viewed in connection with licensee's misdemeanor criminal mischief conviction for plowing snow from his lodge's parking lot onto a highway, resulting in a two-car collision, and four misdemeanor assault convictions arising when he chased two children from his lodge for wishing to use the bathroom without making a purchase, pointed a rifle at the family's vehicle as they left, and chased the family in his truck, becoming involved in an accident with the family vehicle, there was ample evidence to refuse to renew. Licensee's actions indicated that he had a disregard for the safety of others, a violent temperament, and a tendency toward alcohol abuse. Broers v. Dept. of Revenue, 237 M 367, 773 P2d 320, 46 St. Rep. 873 (1989).

Requirement That Individual Person Licensee Comply With Applicable Laws — No Unconstitutional Vagueness or Overbreadth: This section provides that a license permitting on-premises consumption of alcoholic beverages cannot be renewed unless the Department of Revenue finds that the licensee's past record and present status as a purveyor of alcoholic beverages and as a businessman and citizen demonstrate that he is likely to operate his establishment in compliance with all applicable laws of the state and local governments. The statute is capable of reasonable interpretation and construction. It is set forth in terms an ordinary person exercising ordinary common sense can understand and comply with. "All applicable laws" means those designed to protect the welfare, health, peace, morals, and safety of the citizens of the state as they relate to the manufacture, sale, and distribution of alcoholic beverages. The statute is not unconstitutionally vague or overbroad. Broers v. Dept. of Revenue, 237 M 367, 773 P2d 320, 46 St. Rep. 873 (1989).

Citizenship and Residency Required of Gambling License Applicant: Sections 23-5-322 and 23-5-422 require that an applicant for a gambling license meet both United States citizenship and Montana residency requirements. Therefore, an alien who resided in the state for 18 years did not meet both requirements and was not entitled to a license. 42 A.G. Op. 105 (1988).

Case Notes

County Liquor License Improperly Issued for Bar Within Five Miles of City Limits: Owens received a county liquor license for her bar, which she attested was more than 5 miles from the city limits of Kalispell, based on a survey by a private licensed surveyor who used an engineer's ruler to measure on a map the distance from the city limit to the boundary of Owens' property nearest to the city limit. After receiving three contacts alleging problems with Owens' license, including a charge that the bar was not located beyond the 5-mile requirement, the Department of Justice had a land-based survey conducted, and the radial distance from the bar's nearest entrance measured 4.911 miles from the nearest boundary of Kalispell—470 feet short of 5 miles. The Department of Revenue (Department) then notified Owens that it was revoking the license based on incorrect information in the application and for noncompliance with the distance requirement. Owens contested the revocation, but a hearings examiner recommended that the revocation be affirmed, the Department Director agreed, and the District Court affirmed the revocation. On appeal, the Supreme Court also affirmed. Substantial evidence supported the Director's findings, and nothing in the record indicated that the Director misapprehended the effect of the findings. Statutory and administrative guidelines allowed for revocation of the license under these circumstances, and the District Court correctly affirmed the Director's decision to revoke the license. Owens v. Dept. of Revenue, 2007 MT 298, 340 M 48, 172 P3d 1227 (2007).

Transfer of Liquor License Properly Approved Given Compliance With License Transfer Laws and Lack of Evidence Requiring Denial of Transfer: A group of 83 citizens protested the transfer of a liquor license to a proposed truck stop casino on grounds that gambling can be addictive and lead to criminal behavior for some persons, that gambling should not be legal, and that gambling should be restricted to certain areas of town other than near the residential area where many of the protesters lived. Following the required hearing on transfer of the license, the Department of Revenue approved the transfer and the citizens appealed. The Supreme Court noted that the citizens' arguments were very broad policy-type concerns that would more appropriately be raised with the Legislature rather than in the context of a license transfer and found that the Department properly considered each component of public convenience and necessity and correctly concluded that there was no substantial evidence that required denial of the license. The applicant and the Department complied with all laws regarding license transfer, and the court declined to interfere with the approval of the transfer. In re Protests to Application for Transfer of Liquor License, 2007 MT 192, 338 M 363, 168 P3d 68 (2007).

Location Requirement Not Unreasonable: Kiser submitted an application for a liquor license but failed to specify a location for his proposed establishment. Kiser was allowed to participate in the licensing process anyway, and the application was considered on its merits, but denied. Kiser contended that the licensing requirement was unreasonable, discriminatory, and unconstitutional. The Supreme Court disagreed, finding that identification of the location where the license will be used is an element to be weighed when balancing applicants' qualifications and the relative degrees to which their proposals serve public convenience and necessity. Further, the distinction made between enforcement of the location requirement and enforcement of the citizenship requirement was not clearly erroneous. Kiser v. Dept. of Revenue, 1999 MT 228, 296 M 93, 987 P2d 363, 56 St. Rep. 897 (1999).

Determination of Applicants' Qualifications — Running of Statutory Period: Applicants argued that the Department of Revenue (now Department of Justice) abused its discretion and exceeded its statutory authority by failing to make an investigation and determination of qualifications within 30 days of receipt of the completed application (see 1997 amendment), despite the fact that the establishment was not yet constructed. However, this section also requires a Department inspection of the premises of the proposed establishment, and the inspection of the building cannot take place before construction is completed. Therefore, the 30-day investigative period does not begin to run until an applicant has submitted all required paperwork and the proposed establishment is constructed. Ramage v. Dept. of Revenue, 236 M 69, 768 P2d 864, 46 St. Rep. 187 (1989).

State Preemption of Local Control:

The Montana Liquor Control Board (now Department of Revenue) has complete control of the liquor traffic within the state, and cities and towns are without power to interfere with such control. State ex rel. McCarten v. Corwin, 119 M 520, 177 P2d 189 (1947).

Under the maxim expressio unius est exclusio alterius the Legislature has made manifest its intent to inhibit all powers of cities and towns over the matter of intoxicating liquors, except as to those powers specifically enumerated. Stephens v. Great Falls, 119 M 368, 175 P2d 408 (1946).

City Fee: Holder of retail liquor license issued by Montana Liquor Control Board (now Department of Revenue) was entitled to engage in retail liquor business without interference by city authorities subject only to payment of a license fee, which city might exact. State ex rel. Wily v. District Court, 118 M 50, 164 P2d 358 (1945).

Opposition by Inhabitants of Locality or Neighborhood:

Opposition by inhabitants of the particular locality or neighborhood was not provided for by the law as a basis for refusal. If applicant met the legal requirements, rules, and regulations of the Liquor Control Board (now Department of Revenue), he was entitled to a license. McFatridge v. District Court, 113 M 81, 122 P2d 834 (1942).

That a majority of the inhabitants of a town and vicinity may be opposed to granting of a license does not constitute grounds for refusal of the license by the Board. State ex rel. McCarten v. Harris, 112 M 344, 115 P2d 292 (1941).

"Premises" Defined: The word "premises" as used in subsection (2) means the building in which the liquor business is to be carried on, and its meaning cannot be extended to include the locality or neighborhood in which the building is located. McFatridge v. District Court, 113 M 81, 122 P2d 834 (1942).

Suitability of Premises: Among other things, the test of suitability of premises should be established by rule made, promulgated and published, and not left to the caprice and whim of the board. In making the investigation of an application the board has discretion to determine if all qualifications exist, but if it finds that they do exist, it has no discretion to refuse a license for extraneous reasons. State ex rel. McCarten v. Harris, 112 M 344, 115 P2d 292 (1941).

Security Interest Retained in Beer and Wine License — Assignment Contingent on Fulfillment of Premises Lease: Groshelle leased a bar to Bertschs. The lease provided that Groshelle would assign the beer and wine license to Bertschs and retain a security interest in the license and that Bertschs would reassign the license to Groshelle upon termination of the lease. The transfer of license was approved by the Department of Revenue. After deciding to sell the business to Reids, Bertschs applied for transfer of the license to Reids, subject to Groshelle's security interest and a reassignment to Groshelle upon termination of the lease. That transfer was also approved. After a lease period of several years, Reids and Groshelle could not come to terms regarding a new lease. Groshelle filed a complaint seeking a judgment declaring the reassignment provisions of the lease valid and enforceable. The District Court properly granted partial summary judgment to Groshelle after holding the reassignment enforceable, subject to Department approval. The Supreme Court affirmed on appeal, finding nothing in the language of the various leases of the bar premises, fixtures, and furniture that created a lease in the beer and wine license and nothing in the record indicating Groshelle's intent to relinquish the license. Groshelle v. Reid, 270 M 443, 893 P2d 314, 52 St. Rep. 261 (1995), distinguishing Feurherm v. Schmaing, 181 M 136, 592 P2d 924 (1979).

Purported Equitable Ownership of Beer License: A person who claims equitable ownership of a beer license and wishes to have the license transferred to him may not enforce his claim when he has never been the record owner of the license, his name has never been endorsed on the license in any other capacity, and, as a result, he has never been subjected to the scrutiny of the Liquor Division of the Department of Revenue (now Department of Justice) throughout the time he has claimed his equitable interest. Feurherm v. Schmaing, 181 M 136, 592 P2d 924, 36 St. Rep. 479 (1979), distinguished in Groshelle v. Reid, 270 M 443, 893 P2d 314, 52 St. Rep. 261 (1995).

Transfer at End of Lease: When plaintiffs rented premises and allowed defendant to use their liquor license under a homemade lease, liquor license was not transferred to defendant at the expiration of the lease. Beard v. McCormick, 147 M 361, 411 P2d 964 (1966).

License Transferred With Lease: A court decree adjudged that the liquor licenses be transferred to the defendants. Because they were unable under Montana law to hold such licenses, an arrangement was made between the plaintiff and the defendants to transfer the licenses to the plaintiff along with a lease of the premises. Such lease and transfer were upheld as there was consideration. Sears v. Barker, 126 M 101, 244 P2d 516 (1952).

Transfer of Location:

Montana Liquor Control Board (now Department of Revenue) conformed to legislative directive in refusing to authorize removal of license from premises for which it was granted to another location. State ex rel. Boulds v. Paige, 124 M 353, 224 P2d 141 (1950).

Purchaser of a license from a licensee cannot compel Montana Liquor Control Board (now Department of Revenue) to consent to transfer of license when he intends to carry on business at a location different from that authorized in the original license. State ex rel. Jester v. Paige, 123 M 301, 213 P2d 441 (1949).

Assignment of License: An "involuntary" assignment and coerced surrender, enforced by court decree, after making for the parties a contract to which they did not and could not agree, are not authorized. Light v. Zeiter, 124 M 67, 219 P2d 295 (1950).

Disqualification of Partner: The disqualification of a single partner works a disqualification of all the partners. Light v. Zeiter, 124 M 67, 219 P2d 295 (1950).

Evidence: Complaint in suit for reformation of contract on ground that words "stock and fixtures" in contract for sale of beer and liquor establishment, containing provision for surrender of property in case of default, were intended by the parties to include the beer and liquor licenses. Plaintiffs had no right in the original licenses which were transferred to purchasers where the several plaintiffs were alleged to have been joint owners, but the original liquor and beer licenses were in the name of only one of them. Light v. Zeiter, 124 M 67, 219 P2d 295 (1950).

Disqualified Person Interested in Premises: License issued in name of one person who failed to state in application that two others who were ineligible for license had an interest in the premises was invalid and subject to cancellation. Perry v. Luding, 123 M 570, 217 P2d 207 (1950).

Attachment of License: A retail liquor license is subject to attachment. Stallinger v. Goss, 121 M 437, 193 P2d 810 (1948).

Transfer After Sheriff's Sale: A retail liquor dealer's license could be purchased by a qualified person at a Sheriff's sale, and, under a previous version of this section, the purchaser could insist that the license so purchased be transferred to him. Stallinger v. Goss, 121 M 437, 193 P2d 810 (1948).

Case Notes

Transfer of Liquor License Properly Approved Given Compliance With License Transfer Laws and Lack of Evidence Requiring Denial of Transfer: A group of 83 citizens protested the transfer of a liquor license to a proposed truck stop casino on grounds that gambling can be addictive and lead to criminal behavior for some persons, that gambling should not be legal, and that gambling should be restricted to certain areas of town other than near the residential area where many of the protesters lived. Following the required hearing on transfer of the license, the Department of Revenue approved the transfer and the citizens appealed. The Supreme Court noted that the citizens' arguments were very broad policy-type concerns that would more appropriately be raised with the Legislature rather than in the context of a license transfer and found that the Department properly considered each component of public convenience and necessity and correctly concluded that there was no substantial evidence that required denial of the license.

The applicant and the Department complied with all laws regarding license transfer, and the court declined to interfere with the approval of the transfer. In re Protests to Application for Transfer of Liquor License, 2007 MT 192, 338 M 363, 168 P3d 68 (2007).

Successful Applicant for Liquor License Required to Be Citizen When License Issued — Deference to Agency Interpretation of Statute: Tokumoto, Merhi, and others applied for several new liquor licenses to be issued for Missoula. At the time of his application, Merhi was not a U.S. citizen. The Department of Revenue determined, in accordance with its longstanding interpretation of the statutes, that Merhi did not have to be a citizen at the time that the relative merits of Merhi's application for a license were determined, as long as he was a citizen at the time of issuance of a license. Citing Norfolk Holdings, Inc. v. Dept. of Revenue, 249 M 40, 813 P2d 460 (1991), the Supreme Court affirmed the Department's decision, noting that the Supreme Court gives great deference to an interpretation of a statute by the agency charged with its administration. Tokumoto v. Dept. of Revenue, 264 M 56, 869 P2d 782, 51 St. Rep. 144 (1994).

Case Notes

"Liquor" to Include Table Wine — Fine for Possession of Untaxed Table Wine Affirmed: A $1,500 fine was properly assessed against an all-beverages licensee found in possession for sale of table wine upon which no Montana tax had been paid, because the wine came within the definition of "liquor" as the term was used in 16-6-301 prior to 1987 amendment. The District Court was constrained by 2-4-704 to affirm the penalty, absent a showing of abuse of discretion by the Department of Revenue. Swan Corp. v. Dept. of Revenue, 232 M 210, 755 P2d 1388, 45 St. Rep. 998 (1988).

Limitation of Actions: Under this section's procedural provisions, which were deleted in 1975, a licensee whose license was revoked for nonuse was barred from relief by his failure to take action within 15 days after receipt of notice from the Montana Liquor Control Board (now Department of Revenue). State ex rel. Gillespie v. Mont. Liquor Control Bd., 150 M 26, 430 P2d 112 (1967).

Review of Agency Action: The principal reason for the enactment of this section was to afford to any person, original applicant or otherwise, appearing before the Montana Liquor Control Board (now Department of Revenue), the right to have the agency's actions reviewed judicially for abuse of discretion. Skaggs Drug Centers v. Mont. Liquor Control Bd., 146 M 115, 404 P2d 511 (1965).

Jurisdiction: On application for Writ of Prohibition by the ex officio beer board to restrain the District Court proceeding instituted by beer licensees to annul an order suspending their licenses, it was held that Board did not exceed its jurisdiction in suspending licenses, but trial court in issuing order to show cause exceeded its jurisdiction. State ex rel. Stewart v. District Court, 103 M 487, 63 P2d 141 (1936).

Attorney General's Opinions

State Authority to Regulate Liquor — No Delegation to Municipalities: The authority granted to the state by the 21st amendment to the U.S. Constitution to regulate the sale of liquor has not been delegated to municipalities with general powers. Therefore, a municipality with general powers may not punish a violation of its obscenity ordinance by suspending or revoking the liquor license of the offender. 41 A.G. Op. 75 (1986).

Case Notes

Interested Party May Intervene in Mandamus Action: Party opposed to transfer of a liquor license is an interested party under 16-4-411 and therefore has standing to intervene in mandamus action. A person having an interest in the subject matter of a mandamus action may be permitted to intervene for the purpose of resisting the granting of the writ. Christopherson v. St., 226 M 350, 735 P2d 524, 44 St. Rep. 712 (1987).

Mandamus Denied — Adequate Remedy Under This Statute: Applicant who was denied transfer of a liquor license had plain, adequate, and speedy remedy in law under 16-4-411; therefore, the court properly denied his application for alternative Writ of Mandamus or Prohibition. Applicant failed to exhaust his administrative remedies and did not show that the Department of Revenue or State Tax Appeal Board (now Montana Tax Appeal Board) was acting contrary to law. McCracken Not a Town: In a proceeding in mandamus to compel the Montana Liquor Control Board (now Department of Revenue) to refund to relator, a retail liquor dealer doing business at a place called "McCracken", situated within a distance of 5 miles of the city of Billings, the difference between $600 paid by him as a license fee and $200 properly chargeable in a "town" located as is McCracken, the Supreme Court held, under the facts presented, that McCracken was not a town, as claimed by relator under the decision in Pollard v. Mont. Liquor Control Bd., 114 M 44, 131 P2d 974 (1942), although mail so addressed reached its destination, and it appeared on the official map of the railroad commission. State ex rel. McCracken v. Case Notes

Preemption: Cities do not have the authority or jurisdiction to enact ordinances dealing with the control of sales of liquor because the state has reserved exclusive control of that function. State ex rel. Libby v. Haswell, 147 M 492, 414 P2d 652 (1966), overruled, pertaining to planning and zoning, in Town Pump, Inc. v. Bd. of Adjustment of Red Lodge, 1998 MT 294, 292 M 6, 971 P2d 349, 55 St. Rep. 1205 (1998).

Attorney General's Opinions

No Authority in Local Governing Body to Prohibit Minors in Licensed Premises: An incorporated town with general powers does not have the authority to enact an ordinance prohibiting underage persons from being on licensed premises where alcoholic beverages are sold and consumed because the entire control of the manufacture, sale, and distribution of alcoholic beverages is retained within the State of Montana. The local government may not enact an ordinance providing for greater penalties than those found in 45-5-624 for an underage person convicted of possession of alcoholic beverages. 41 A.G. Op. 84 (1986).

State Authority to Regulate Liquor — No Delegation to Municipalities: The authority granted to the state by the 21st amendment to the U.S. Constitution to regulate the sale of liquor has not been delegated to municipalities with general powers. Therefore, a municipality with general powers may not punish a violation of its obscenity ordinance by suspending or revoking the liquor license of the offender. 41 A.G. Op. 75 (1986).

Maximum Fee: A city which currently charges the maximum fee allowed under this section does not have the authority to enact an ordinance establishing a delinquent fee schedule for alcohol licenses. The statute expressly limits the maximum fee amount chargeable by local governments and provides no power to access a higher fee under any circumstances. 41 A.G. Op. 20 (1985).

Local Governments Preempted From Controlling Beer Sales: In Montana, neither cities nor counties have authority to enact ordinances requiring wholesale and retail distributors of keg beer to keep and maintain records of the sales or distribution of all beer kegs within the city or county. 40 A.G. Op. 48 (1984).

City License — Effect on State License: A city may license a beer distributor but may not thereby limit or make ineffective a state license. 37 A.G. Op. 100 (1977).

Part 8
Liquor License Security Interest

Part Case Notes

Security Interest Retained in Beer and Wine License — Assignment Contingent on Fulfillment of Premises Lease: Groshelle leased a bar to Bertschs. The lease provided that Groshelle would assign the beer and wine license to Bertschs and retain a security interest in the license and that Bertschs would reassign the license to Groshelle upon termination of the lease. The transfer of license was approved by the Department of Revenue. After deciding to sell the business to Reids, Bertschs applied for transfer of the license to Reids, subject to Groshelle's security interest and a reassignment to Groshelle upon termination of the lease. That transfer was also approved. After a lease period of several years, Reids and Groshelle could not come to terms regarding a new lease. Groshelle filed a complaint seeking a judgment declaring the reassignment provisions of the lease valid and enforceable. The District Court properly granted partial summary judgment to Groshelle after holding the reassignment enforceable, subject to Department approval. The Supreme Court affirmed on appeal, finding nothing in the language of the various leases of the bar premises, fixtures, and furniture that created a lease in the beer and wine license and nothing in the record indicating Groshelle's intent to relinquish the license. Groshelle v. Reid, 270 M 443, 893 P2d 314, 52 St. Rep. 261 (1995), distinguishing Feurherm v. Schmaing, 181 M 136, 592 P2d 924 (1979).

Purported Equitable Ownership of Beer License: A person who claims equitable ownership of a retail beer license and wishes to have the license transferred to him may not enforce his claim when he has never been the record owner of the license, his name has never been endorsed on the license in any other capacity, and, as a result, he has never been subjected to the scrutiny of the Liquor Division of the Department of Revenue throughout the time he has claimed his equitable interest. Feurherm v. Schmaing, 181 M 136, 592 P2d 924, 36 St. Rep. 479 (1979), distinguished in Groshelle v. Reid, 270 M 443, 893 P2d 314, 52 St. Rep. 261 (1995).

This section does not prohibit or limit the ability of a regulated lender to use loan and security documentation consistent with that used by the regulated lender generally, and the documentation does not constitute control of the operation of the business or the licensee operating the business that is subject to the security interest"; inserted (5) concerning requirements for payments on an institutional loan made by the owner of the licensee borrower; inserted (6) concerning requirements for not creating an undisclosed ownership interest in a liquor license by a borrower, coborrower, or guarantor; inserted (7) concerning a regulated lender's absence of duty to ensure a coborrower's or guarantor's compliance with certain requirements; inserted (8) defining borrower; and made minor changes in style. Case Notes

"Liquor" to Include Table Wine — Fine for Possession of Untaxed Table Wine Affirmed: A $1,500 fine was properly assessed against an all-beverages licensee found in possession for sale of table wine upon which no Montana tax had been paid, because the wine came within the definition of "liquor" as the term was used in 16-6-301 prior to 1987 amendment. The District Court was constrained by 2-4-704 to affirm the penalty, absent a showing of abuse of discretion by the Department of Revenue. Swan Corp. v. Case Notes

State Jurisdiction to Prosecute Indians for On-Reservation Liquor Law Violations Upheld: Montana filed charges against Indian grocery store owners for possessing and selling liquor without a state license within the boundaries of the Fort Peck Reservation. When the tribe filed suit in District Court, arguing that Montana could not criminally prosecute Indians for liquor violations, Montana filed a motion arguing that the 11th amendment barred the tribes action and that federal law permitted the state to prosecute Indians for criminal violations of state liquor laws. The District Court granted the states 11th amendment motion, but granted summary judgment for the tribe, ruling that the state had no jurisdiction to maintain the prosecutions. On appeal, the Ninth Circuit Court reversed, holding that pursuant to the interpretation of Rice v. Rehner, 463 US 713 (1983), Montana has jurisdiction to prosecute Indians who violate state liquor laws on an Indian reservation. Fort Belknap Indian Community of the Fort Belknap Indian Reservation v. Mazurek, 793 F. Supp. 949 (D.C. Mont. 1992), affirmed in part and reversed in part, 43 F3d 428 (9th Cir. 1994), certiorari denied, 516 US 806, 133 L Ed 2d 15, 116 S Ct 49 (1995).

State Jurisdiction to Punish Criminal Violations of State Liquor Laws by Indians in Indian Country: Under the holding in Rice v. Rehner, 463 US 713 (1983), and 18 U.S.C. 1161, the state has the power to enforce state criminal statutes against Indians for violations of state law relating to the sale or possession of liquor within Indian reservations. Brown v. District Court, 238 M 248, 777 P2d 877, 46 St. Rep. 1242 (1989).

Common-Law Rights Giving Way to Liquor Licensing System: Defendant asserted that as a natural born white citizen she had a common-law right to sell beer and wine without a valid state license. Although both Art. IV, sec. 2, and the 14th amendment of the U.S. Constitution protect a citizen's federal rights from abridgment by another person or by the state, the protections afforded by these clauses are not absolute and yield to the reasonable exercise of state police powers, such as the liquor licensing system. St. v. Barnes, 232 M 405, 758 P2d 264, 45 St. Rep. 1150 (1988).

Jurisdiction of Offense of Selling Alcohol Without a License: The District Court was the proper court to try the offense of sale of beer or wine without a valid state license. St. v. Barnes, 232 M 405, 758 P2d 264, 45 St. Rep. 1150 (1988).

Dept. of Revenue, 232 M 210, 755 P2d 1388, 45 St. Rep. 998 (1988).

Sale of Liquor and of Management Interest: The bulk sale of liquor on the shelves and not a retail sale and the transfer of a business conducted under a liquor license is permissible under this section. Johnstone v. Svejkovsky, 170 M 504, 554 P2d 1329 (1976).

Commerce Clause of Federal Constitution Not Violated: The State Liquor Control Act of Montana (Ch. 105, L. 1933), in effect regulating the importation of intoxicating liquor from other states, does not violate the Commerce Clause in view of the section in the 21st amendment prohibiting the transportation or importation into any state of intoxicating liquor in violation of the laws of a state. St. v. Andre, 101 M 366, 54 P2d 566 (1936).

Information in Language of Statute Sufficient: Information charging unlawful sale of intoxicating liquor was not demurrable as uncertain and ambiguous. If too general in character, defendant had a plain remedy by application for a bill of particulars. St. v. Driscoll, 101 M 348, 54 P2d 571 (1936).

16-6-302. Sale of alcoholic beverage without license — sale or importation in violation of code — penalty.

Compiler's Comments

2001 Amendment: Chapter 543 inserted (1) defining person; in (2) near beginning after "sale" inserted "in Montana", after "beverage" substituted "commits a criminal offense" for "is guilty of a felony", and after "fine" substituted "not to exceed $5,000" for "of not less than $1,000 or more than $5,000"; inserted (3) concerning civil offense for importing or distributing alcoholic beverages; inserted (4) concerning civil penalties for progressive number of offenses; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective May 1, 2001.

Case Notes

Common-Law Rights Giving Way to Liquor Licensing System: Defendant asserted that as a natural born white citizen she had a common-law right to sell beer and wine without a valid state license. St. v. Barnes, 232 M 405, 758 P2d 264, 45 St. Rep. 1150 (1988).

Illegal Sale of Alcohol Not Requiring "Victim": The District Court properly ruled that the state did not have to produce a "victim" of an offense under this section if it could show that the defendant continued to sell alcoholic beverages without paying a fair share for the privilege. In this respect the entire state and every resident other than defendant was the "victim" of defendant's conduct. St. v. Barnes, 232 M 405, 758 P2d 264, 45 St. Rep. 1150 (1988).

Case Notes

Issuance of Revocation Notice Eight Months After Satisfaction of Violation Not Considered Timely — Immediate Revocation Required: Seaman was cited, and ultimately convicted, of selling liquor that was not purchased from a Montana agency liquor store. This section requires that the Department of Revenue immediately revoke the liquor license when satisfied that the license holder has violated the statute, but here, Seaman was not notified of the intent to revoke until at least 8 months after being convicted. The subsequent revocation of Seaman's license was improper because the Department did not act immediately as required by law. Seaman v. Dept. of Revenue, 2002 MT 34, 308 M 307, 42 P3d 790 (2002).

Collection of Cigarette Sales Tax — Resolution of Reservation Taxation Issues — Negotiations Between State and Tribal Governments Required — Report to Legislature: Section 1, Ch. 697, L. 1991, provided: "(1) The legislature directs the department of revenue to:

(a) discuss and negotiate alternative methods for the collection of cigarette taxes, including the possibility of future tribal taxation, with the tribal governments of each Montana reservation or their designated representatives, the Montana tribal chairman's association, and the state coordinator of Indian affairs;

(b) discuss and negotiate with individual Indian tribes in Montana the possibility of resolving other state taxation issues, including but not limited to the imposition of fuel and alcohol taxes on Indian reservations, through state-tribal cooperative agreements; and

(c) report its findings on negotiations with tribal authorities on a comprehensive state-tribal taxation agreement or proposed legislation to the interim committee on Indian affairs [now law and justice interim committee] prior to the 53rd legislative session.

(2) The legislature also directs the interim committee on Indian affairs [now law and justice interim committee] to work with the Montana tribal chairman's association, the state coordinator of Indian affairs, and individual tribes to:

(a) monitor negotiations conducted pursuant to subsection (1)(a) for proposed cigarette tax collection;

(b) consider alternatives for cigarette tax collection, including possible cooperative agreements to avoid dual taxation by state and tribal governments;

(c) after public hearings and consultation with tobacco wholesalers and retailers, propose legislation to the 53rd legislature to provide for collection of the cigarette sales tax from non-Indian purchasers for cigarettes sold on Indian reservations. The legislation must include a mechanism to prevent dual taxation by providing for revenue sharing between the state and a tribal government that has adopted an ordinance imposing a cigarette tax that is identical to that imposed by the state.

(d) identify other unresolved taxation issues, including but not limited to the imposition of fuel and alcohol taxes on Indian reservations, between the state and Montana Indian tribes; and Preamble: The preamble attached to I.M. No. 149, provided: "WHEREAS, tobacco related disease is the single most preventable cause of death in Montana.

WHEREAS, tobacco related disease kills more people than alcohol, AIDS, car crashes, illegal drugs, murders, and suicides combined.

WHEREAS, 1,400 Montanans die each year from their addiction to smoking.

WHEREAS, smokeless tobacco use can lead to oral cancer, gum disease, and nicotine addiction; and increases the risk of cardiovascular disease, including heart attacks.

WHEREAS, over 18% of Montana high school students use spit tobacco, more than double the national average of 7.8 %.

WHEREAS, 17,100 Montana children, now under 18, will ultimately die prematurely from smoking.

WHEREAS, Montanans spend $216 million annually on health care costs in Montana directly caused by smoking.

WHEREAS, studies have also found that adolescents and young adults are 2 to 3 times more likely to quit than adults due to tobacco price increases.

WHEREAS, significant tax increases on all tobacco products will reduce consumption, prevent kids from becoming addicted, and increase quitting success for all Montanans.

WHEREAS, Montana loses federal matching dollars every year by under funding Medicaid.

WHEREAS, 173,000 Montanans, including 41,500 children, lack health care coverage.

WHEREAS, 56% of uninsured Montanans are self-employed or work for small businesses with 10 or fewer employees; and 60% of small businesses cannot afford to offer health benefits.

WHEREAS, prescription drug costs are increasing 10% per year and are not affordable for many families, seniors or people with disabilities.

NOW THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED BY THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF MONTANA:

That we raise the tax on cigarettes by $1.00 per pack (from 70 cents to $1.70 per pack) and increase the tax on smokeless tobacco by a proportional amount and dedicate use of those tax funds for health care needs."

Saving Clause: Section 59, Ch. 544, L. 2003, was a saving clause.

Severability: Section 60, Ch. 544, L. 2003, was a severability clause.

Applicability: Section 62(1)(a), Ch. 544, L. 2003, provided: "(1) [This act] applies to the sale of the following goods and services:

(a) cigarette and tobacco products sold on or after May 1, 2003."

1993 Amendment: Chapter 352 at beginning of first sentence of (1) inserted "A tax on the purchase of cigarettes for consumption, use, or any purpose other than resale in the regular course of business", after "must be" substituted "precollected by the wholesaler" for "collected", and after "Montana" substituted "The tax is" for "upon cigarettes sold or possessed in this state an excise tax of"; inserted (2) clarifying sales to which the tax does not apply; inserted (3) requiring precollection of tax on cigarettes entering a reservation; inserted (4) allowing for wholesaler refund of certain precollected taxes; inserted (5) providing for distribution of tax-free cigarettes; inserted (6) capping the amount of allowable wholesaler refunds; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1993.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 352, L. 1993, provided: "WHEREAS, the Legislature proposes to eliminate unfair competitive business advantages now enjoyed by retailers operating on Indian reservations in direct competition with businesses operating off the reservations by providing that cigarettes sold on an Indian reservation have a Montana cigarette tax stamp affixed to the cigarette package or container that requires purchasers who are not members of the tribe residing on the reservation to pay the state cigarette tax; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature also recognizes that Indian tribes in Montana view as unlawful certain state taxes being assessed against the tribes and tribal members on the reservation; and

WHEREAS, although the Legislature proposes to exercise its authority to seek assistance from tribal governments in collecting cigarette taxes from nonmembers on the reservation, the Legislature also recognizes the need for negotiation with Montana Indian tribes in order to avoid dual taxation and to develop a comprehensive resolution of the cigarette taxation issues affecting both the state and the tribes."

Applicability: Section 15, Ch. 352, L. 1993, provided that the 1993 amendments to this section apply to cigarette sales made by a wholesaler after September 30, 1993.

1992 Special Session Amendment: Chapter 15, Sp. L. July 1992, increased tax from 18 cents to 19.26 cents.

Effective Date: Section 38, Ch. 15, Sp. L. July 1992, provided that this act is effective on passage and approval. The act became effective pursuant to Article VI, sec. 10, of the Montana Constitution due to the passage of 25 days after delivery without gubernatorial action on the bill. Effective August 14, 1992.

Applicability — Termination: Section 39(8), Ch. 15, Sp. L. July 1992, provided that this section applies for 1 calendar year to tax liabilities beginning August 15, 1992. This section terminates August 15, 1993.

1991 Amendment: Near middle, after "excise tax", deleted "which shall be paid prior to the time of sale and delivery of cigarettes"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1991.

1989 Amendment: Near middle increased cigarette excise tax from 16 cents to 18 cents; and made minor changes in phraseology.

1985 Amendments: Chapter 450 at beginning deleted "From and after July 1, 1981"; and near end after "then", substituted "a tax on each cigarette equal to 1/20th the tax on a package containing not more than 20 cigarettes" for "16 cents on each 20 or fraction of 20 cigarettes contained in such package".

Chapter 704 in version effective on occurrence of contingency, at beginning deleted "From and after July 1, 1981"; and increased tax from 16 cents to 24 cents in two places.

Chapter 704 Contingent Effective Date and Termination: Section 5, Ch. 704, L. 1985, provided: "This act is effective October 1, 1985, but only if the rate of tax on cigarettes imposed by 26 U.S.C. 5701(b)(1) is reduced from $8 per thousand to $4 per thousand on that date."

Section 4, Ch. 704, L. 1985, provided that the act terminates June 30, 1987.

Nonoccurrence of Contingency: Chapter 704, L. 1985, which amended this section, provided in section 5 that the act would become effective October 1, 1985, only if the federal tax rate was reduced on that date. The tax rate was not so reduced, and therefore the amendment did not take effect.

Composite Section: Chapter 450, on packages containing more than 20 cigarettes, provided for a formula which assesses a greater amount of tax than the 24 cents per package set forth in Ch. 704. Therefore, in preparation of the composite of the Ch. 450 and 704 amendments, the Code Commissioner has codified the formula set forth in Ch. 450. Section 4, Ch. 704, L. 1985, provided a termination date of June 30, 1987; therefore, the version printed as temporary is revived July 1, 1987.

1983 Amendment: Changed tax from 12 cents to 16 cents twice.

1981 Amendment: Substituted "July 1, 1981" for "March 5, 1971" following "after" in the first sentence; consolidated the sales tax on cigarettes by adding the 2-cent tax in (2) and the 1-cent tax in (3) to subsection (1); deleted former subsections (2) and (3). Part 5
Medical Marijuana

Part Administrative Rules

Title 42, chapter 39, ARM Cannabis control.

Part Case Notes

DUI Conviction — Sentence to Surrender Medical Marijuana Card Supported by Sufficient Evidence in Record: The defendant was convicted of felony DUI. In his sentence, the District Court ordered the defendant to surrender his medical marijuana card, citing a nexus between the defendant's use of alcohol and marijuana and the crime. The defendant objected, claiming that the condition deprived him of his right to "seek health" and was unrelated to his crime. On appeal, the Supreme Court affirmed, noting that there is no affirmative right to access medical marijuana and holding that substantial evidence in the record established a sufficient nexus to support the sentence. St. v. Corriher, 2021 MT 275, 406 Mont. 120, 497 P.3d 579.

Burden of Proof — Individual Must Show Medical Marijuana Card — Burden Not on City or State: The Municipal Court and District Court did not err in determining that the defendant had the burden of proving she fit under a statutory exception for criminal possession of drug paraphernalia for individuals in compliance with the Medical Marijuana Act (MMA) (now repealed and terminated). Through the MMA, the Legislature created an exception from arrest and prosecution for marijuana-related crimes for individuals who comply with the MMA's regulatory system. In any criminal case, "a defendant who relies upon an exception to a statute made by a proviso or distinct clause, whether in the same section of the statute or elsewhere, has the burden of establishing and showing that he comes within the exception" (U.S. v. Freter, 31 F.3d 783 (9th Cir. 1994), quoted in U.S. v. Guzman-Mata, 579 F.3d 1065 (9th Cir. 2009)). Therefore, to avail herself of the MMA exception the defendant bore the burden of establishing and showing she came within the exception. Unlike St. v. Johnson, 2012 MT 101, 365 Mont. 56, 277 P.3d 1232, the defendant never provided any evidence she had a valid registry card. Therefore, she was not entitled to a rebuttable presumption that she possessed marijuana-related drug paraphernalia in compliance with the MMA, and the city had no presumption to rebut. Consequently, to convict the defendant, the city only needed to prove that the defendant purposely or knowingly possessed with intent to use drug paraphernalia to inhale a dangerous drug. The Municipal Court correctly held that the defendant bore the burden of establishing and showing she came within the MMA exception, and the District Court did not err by affirming the Municipal Court's holding. Missoula v. Shumway, 2019 MT 38, 394 Mont. 302, 434 P.3d 918, citing U.S. v. Guzman-Mata, 579 F.3d 1065 (9th Cir. 2009).

Noncardholder Not Exempt from Prosecution for Possession or Cultivation of Marijuana Under Exemption for Being in Vicinity of Registered Medical Marijuana Cardholder's Authorized Use: The defendant was not exempted from prosecution for possession of marijuana solely because she was in the vicinity of authorized use of marijuana by a registered medical marijuana cardholder. On appeal to the Supreme Court, the defendant argued she was protected from prosecution under the Montana Medical Marijuana Act (now repealed and terminated) because her partner was a registered medical marijuana cardholder and she could not be prosecuted for constructive possession under 50-46-319(5)(a) (now repealed). The Supreme Court disagreed. Even if she was protected from being found in constructive possession of marijuana, the charges against her were not based only on that constructive possession. Because the defendant engaged in activities related to the production and cultivation of marijuana plants and exercised control over both the plants and the house the plants were found in, the defendant was still subject to prosecution for criminal production or manufacture of dangerous drugs. St. v. Sutton, 2018 MT 143, 391 Mont. 485, 419 P.3d 1201.

2011 Montana Marijuana Act — Numerous Provisions Upheld — Prohibition on Remuneration Unreasonable: After the Supreme Court's decision in Mont. Cannabis Indus. Ass'n v. St., 2012 MT 201, 366 Mont. 224, 286 P.3d 1161, which remanded challenges to the 2011 Montana Marijuana Act to the District Court to apply rational basis review, the District Court determined the following: (1) that the Act's provision requiring the Department of Public Health and Human Services to notify the Board of Medical Examiners of any physician who certified 25 or more patients in a year for medical marijuana failed rational basis review; (2) that the Act's commercial prohibitions, including the limits on the number of patients a provider can have and the restrictions against accepting remuneration for products or services provided to registered cardholders, failed rational basis review; (3) that the Act's provision prohibiting advertising by providers failed strict scrutiny and unconstitutionally infringed free speech; (4) that the Act's provision prohibiting probationers from becoming registered cardholders withstood rational basis review; and (5) that the Act's provision allowing warrantless inspections of providers' businesses comported with constitutional guarantees against unreasonable searches. On appeal, the Supreme Court upheld all of the challenged provisions of the Act except for the remuneration restrictions, concluding that: (1) the 25-patient review trigger is not arbitrary in light of the problems with overcertification under the repealed 2004 Medical Marijuana Act and is rationally related to the legitimate state interest of carefully regulating the distribution of medical marijuana while allowing its limited use for people with debilitating medical conditions; (2) the patient limit is reasonably related to the legitimate governmental concern of affording a means of treatment while avoiding large-scale commercial marijuana production, but the remuneration restrictions are not reasonable when balanced against the purposes of the Act and violate the equal protection and due process of law clauses of the Montana Constitution; (3) the Act limits only commercial speech that is an unlawful activity under federal law and does not unconstitutionally infringe free speech rights; (4) the ban on probationers becoming registered cardholders is not facially invalid; and (5) allowing warrantless inspections of providers' businesses is not facially invalid. Mont. Cannabis Indus. Ass'n v. St., 2016 MT 44, 382 Mont. 256, 368 P.3d 1131. (See 2016 and 2017 amendments to the Montana Medical Marijuana Act.)

Right to Employment — Selling Medical Marijuana for Profit Not Fundamental Right: The District Court determined that medical marijuana is a legal product in Montana with an established licensing and distribution system and that consequently a statutory prohibition on accepting money for it implicates the fundamental right to pursue employment. On appeal, the Supreme Court reversed the District Court and determined the right to employment does not grant a right to or property interest in any particular job or employment. Moreover, the Legislature, in its exercise of the state's police powers, was permitted to circumscribe a right to protect the public health and welfare. Mont. Cannabis Indus. Ass'n v. St., 2012 MT 201, 366 Mont. 224, 286 P.3d 1161, following Wadsworth v. St., 275 Mont. 287, 911 P.2d 1165 (1996), and Wiser v. St., 2006 MT 20, 331 Mont. 28, 129 P.3d 133. See also Mont. Cannabis Indus. Ass'n v. St., 2016 MT 44, 382 Mont. 256, 368 P.3d 1131.

Right to Privacy — Access to Medical Marijuana Not Fundamental Right: The District Court determined that statutory restrictions on medical marijuana substantially implicated the fundamental right to privacy. On appeal, the Supreme Court reversed the District Court and determined that the right to privacy does not encompass the affirmative right of access to medical marijuana. The Supreme Court reasoned that while the right to privacy is certainly implicated when a statute infringes on a person's ability to obtain or reject a "lawful" medical treatment, it does not follow that the right to privacy is necessarily implicated when a statute regulates a particular medication. Mont. Cannabis Indus. Ass'n v. St., 2012 MT 201, 366 Mont. 224, 286 P.3d 1161, following Wiser v. St., 2006 MT 20, 331 Mont. 28, 129 P.3d 133, and distinguishing Armstrong v. St., 1999 MT 261, 296 Mont. 361, 989 P.2d 364. See also Mont. Cannabis Indus. Ass'n v. St., 2016 MT 44, 382 Mont. 256, 368 P.3d 1131.

Right to Seek Health — Access to Medical Marijuana Not Fundamental Right: The District Court determined that denying medical marijuana providers compensation and limiting the number of cardholders that each provider can serve substantially implicated the fundamental right to seek health in a lawful manner because such restrictions deny access to medical marijuana. On appeal, the Supreme Court reversed the District Court and determined that the right to obtain and reject medical treatment does not give an individual a fundamental affirmative right to access any drug, regardless of its legality. Moreover, the right to seek health is circumscribed by the state's police powers to protect the public's health and welfare. Mont. Cannabis Indus. Ass'n v. St., 2012 MT 201, 366 Mont. 224, 286 P.3d 1161, citing Wiser v. St., 2006 MT 20, 331 Mont. 28, 129 P.3d 133. See also Mont. Cannabis Indus. Ass'n v. St., 2016 MT 44, 382 Mont. 256, 368 P.3d 1131.

Possession of Valid Registry Identification Card at Time of Offense Required for Immunity: Stoner was charged with numerous drug offenses related to the possession and production of marijuana on July 22, 2009. On December 3, 2009, Stoner was issued a qualifying patient registry identification card. Stoner argued in a motion to dismiss at the District Court level that the Medical Marijuana Act (now repealed) did not require a person to possess a registry identification card at the time of the offense. The District Court denied the motion and Stoner appealed. The Supreme Court held that Stoner was required to obtain and be in possession of a valid registry identification card at the time of the offense for which he sought immunity from prosecution. St. v. Stoner, 2012 MT 162, 365 Mont. 465, 285 P.3d 402.

Hashish Not Marijuana — Definitions Harmonized: A medical marijuana card that was issued pursuant to the former Medical Marijuana Act as set forth in 50-46-101 through 50-46-210 (now repealed) did not entitle the defendant to possess hashish, which is specifically differentiated in 50-32-101. The Act was clear and unambiguous on its face, and the District Court's interpretation appropriately harmonized the statutes. St. v. Pirello, 2012 MT 155, 365 Mont. 399, 282 P.3d 662.

Rule of Lenity Not Applicable — Fair Notice That Hashish Not Medical Marijuana: The definitions of "marijuana" and "usable marijuana" were clear and unambiguous under the former Medical Marijuana Act as set forth in 50-46-101 through 50-46-210 (now repealed). Consequently, the defendant had fair notice that possession of hashish was prohibited under the Act and the rule of lenity did not apply. St. v. Pirello, 2012 MT 155, 365 Mont. 399, 282 P.3d 662.

2009 Medical Marijuana Act — Caregiver-to-Caregiver Exchanges Prohibited: Plaintiffs argued the 2009 Medical Marijuana Act (now repealed) allowed caregivers to either exchange marijuana with other caregivers or provide cultivation services to other caregivers for the purpose of supplying qualified patients with medical marijuana, but the plain language of the 2009 MMA authorized caregivers to provide marijuana only to qualifying patients and not to other caregivers. Medical Marijuana Growers Ass'n, Inc. v. Corrigan, 2012 MT 146, 365 Mont. 346, 281 P.3d 210.

Interpretation of Medical Marijuana Act — Medical Marijuana to Be Obtained From Care Provider Identified on Card — Denial of Motion to Dismiss Criminal Possession of Marijuana Affirmed: The defendant was charged with several counts, including criminal possession of marijuana. At the time of the offense, police found less than 1 ounce on the defendant, who had a valid medical marijuana card. After being found guilty of the offense in Justice's Court, the defendant appealed for a trial de novo in District Court. She also filed a motion to dismiss the possession charge, claiming that because she had a valid card, she could not be prosecuted for possessing less than 1 ounce, even if she did not obtain the marijuana from the provider identified on her card. The District Court denied the motion to dismiss and found her guilty of the charge. On appeal, the Supreme Court affirmed, ruling that the Medical Marijuana Act (now repealed) did not permit a cardholder to obtain marijuana from anyone other than the registered provider. St. v. Johnson, 2012 MT 101, 365 Mont. 56, 277 P.3d 1232.

Sentencing Conditions May Not Restrict Medical Treatment Authorized by State Law: Nelson was charged with seven drug-related crimes. Nelson suffers from a degenerative disc disorder and has had four surgeries on his back. Nelson had applied with the state to be a qualified patient in Montana's medical marijuana program and to be entitled to the lawful use of medical marijuana. On December 8, 2006, subsequent to being charged with the drug-related crimes, Nelson was accepted into the medical marijuana program, placed on the confidential registry, and issued an identification card indicating his participation in the program. On February 7, 2007, Nelson entered into a plea agreement with the state. In exchange for pleading nolo contendere to criminal possession or manufacture of dangerous drugs, Nelson received a 3-year deferred imposition of sentence, and the state agreed to dismiss the remaining six counts. On February 26, 2007, Nelson appeared before the District Court and formally pleaded no contest to the charge. The District Court asked Nelson's attorney how Nelson participated in the medical marijuana program. The state offered that it had spoken to officials at the Department of Corrections, who opined that they would not allow Nelson to smoke marijuana while under their supervision but would allow him to use the pill form of marijuana, dronabinol, as prescribed by a physician. Nelson's attorney argued that such a restriction on Nelson's use of medical marijuana would be cost-prohibitive for him due to the expense of dronabinol and was thus contrary to the intent behind the passage of the Medical Marijuana Act, which was to allow individuals to obtain medical relief through the use of medical marijuana in a manner that was cost-effective. Nelson was ultimately given a 3-year deferred imposition of sentence subject to 20 conditions. Nelson appealed the conditions requiring him to comply with federal law and restricting his use and possession of marijuana to the pill form. Under the Medical Marijuana Act, "medical use" specifically contemplates "cultivation" and the use of "paraphernalia relating to the consumption of marijuana". The Supreme Court concluded that the District Court exceeded its statutory authority in imposing the condition limiting use to the pill form. The District Court unlawfully denied Nelson the right and privilege to use a lawful medical treatment for relief from a debilitating condition under the Medical Marijuana Act. The District Court also exceeded its authority in imposing the condition requiring compliance with federal law, insofar as it could be invoked to support a revocation of his deferred sentence in the face of contrary state law. It is an axiom of federalism under the U.S. Constitution that Congress does not have the authority to commandeer the processes of states by directly compelling them to enact and enforce a federal regulatory program. St. v. Nelson, 2008 MT 359, 346 M 366, 195 P3d 826 (2008), distinguished in St. v. Fadness, 2012 MT 12, 363 Mont. 322, 268 P.3d 17.

Appropriations — Legislative Control Over Marketing Assessment Funds: Although the control of the Legislature over appropriations to state agencies is based upon broad constitutional provisions, certain money may either be exempt from the appropriation process or the purposes for which that money may be appropriated may be limited by statute. Thus, the Legislature may control appropriations from the Wheat Marketing and Research Account, but those appropriations are subject to the statutorily stated purposes of the Account. Any attempt by the Legislature in an appropriation bill to alter the purposes for which appropriations from the Account are made is subject to the constitutional restriction that the purpose of legislation must be clearly stated in the title of the bill. 39 A.G. The title to Ch. 28, L. 1981 (HB 341), read in part: "An act to rename and define treasury funds to be in accordance with current authoritative literature and generally accepted accounting principles; removing the sunset provision on the university funds; ... and providing effective dates." Chapter 28, L. 1981, made no amendments to Sec. 2, Ch. 438, L. 1977, which terminated subsections (10) through (15) of this section. However, the Code Commissioner did not remove those subsections because the testimony of witnesses on HB 341, as well as the title to HB 341, indicates an apparent intent to remove the sunset provisions.

Section 2, Ch. 28, L. 1981, rewrote subsection (1) establishing fund structure of state treasury by inserting all new language in (a) dealing with governmental funds, (b) dealing with proprietary funds, and (c) dealing with fiduciary funds and by making minor changes in (d) which deals with university funds; added subsection (2) establishing fixed assets account group and long-term debt account group.

Section 6, Ch. 28, L. 1981, provided that the amendments to this section will be effective July 1, 1983.

Attorney General's Opinions

Public University Endowment Funds Not "Public Funds" — Not Required to be Invested Through Unified Investment Program: Article VIII, sec. 13, Mont. Const., does not require that endowments granted to Montana's public universities be invested through the unified investment program. 53 A.G. Op. 6 (2010).

Transfer of Money Between State Treasury Accounts — Statutory Appropriation Not Required: Article VIII, sec. 14, Mont. Const., requires a statutory appropriation only when money is paid out of the state treasury, but neither the constitution nor state law requires a statutory appropriation when money is transferred between accounts within the state treasury. 44 A.G. Op. 43 (1992).

Regulation of Gifts to School for Deaf and Blind: The Board of Public Education has complete control over the ultimate disposition of gifts to the Montana School for the Deaf and Blind and can utilize such gifts without a specific appropriation. Pending such disposition, cash and similar gifts to the School must be deposited with the State Treasurer. If the Board invests any gifts, investment must be done pursuant to the unified investment program. 36 A.G. Op. 106 (1976).

Appropriations — Legislative Control Over Marketing Assessment Funds: Although the control of the Legislature over appropriations to state agencies is based upon broad constitutional provisions, certain money may either be exempt from the appropriation process or the purposes for which that money may be appropriated may be limited by statute. Thus, the Legislature may control appropriations from the Wheat Marketing and Research Account, but those appropriations are subject to the statutorily stated purposes of the Account. Any attempt by the Legislature in an appropriation bill to alter the purposes for which appropriations from the Account are made is subject to the constitutional restriction that the purpose of legislation must be clearly stated in the title of the bill. 39 A.G. Op. 3 (1981).

State Grants to Regional Mental Health Centers — Conditions: State grants to regional mental health centers are properly conditioned upon each recipient center accounting for all of its funds through the state treasury and the Statewide Budget and Accounting System (SBAS). 37 A.G. Op. 127 (1978).

Attorney General's Opinions

Disaster and Emergency Expenditures: An interaccount loan was not appropriate to provide a loan of $11.4 million to the Department of State Lands (now Department of Natural Resources and Conservation) from the state's general fund to be repaid by a subsequent appropriation of the same amount from the general fund. An interaccount loan may not be made to a special revenue account when the borrower anticipates no income, other than the possibility of a supplemental appropriation sometime in the future, with which to repay the loan. The reliance on the possibility of a supplemental appropriation does not meet the requirement of reasonable evidence of future income under the interaccount loan statute. 42 A.G. Op. 123 (1988).

1989 Amendment: In (3) and (4) changed references to Department of Revenue to State Auditor. Amendment effective January 1, 1990.

Case Notes

Change of Venue From Lewis and Clark County Based on Residence Denied: Subsection (1) does not necessarily grant exclusive jurisdiction to the Lewis and Clark County District Court. However, there can be no doubt that Courts in that county are a proper venue and the Courts are powerless, based upon the residence of the parties, to transfer the cause to another venue even though the other venue may also have been proper. The power to change the place of trial based on residence exists only when the county designated in the complaint is not the proper county. St. v. Sec. St. Bank, 184 M 461, 603 P2d 681, 36 St. Rep. 2166 (1979).

(b) the references to "state auditor" in 17-4-103, 17-4-105, and 17-4-106 of [this act] are changed to "department"." House Bill No. 563 was approved as Ch. 325, L. 1995.

Section 28, Ch. 702, L. 1989, in (2) and (4) changed references to Department of Revenue to references to Department of Social and Rehabilitation Services. The direction to the Code Commissioner erroneously provided that the change be made in 17-4-105(3)(d). The apparent intent was to change the reference in 17-4-105(4). Chapter 679 inserted (4) authorizing offsetting of child support debts.

Case Notes

Child Support Enforcement Remedies Held Separate Remedies to Be Exercised Within Ten-Year Statute of Limitations — Due Process Requirements Applicable to Separate Remedies — Connell Distinguished: Emery was divorced from Keep in 1987, and Emery was ordered to pay child support. In exchange for Keep's receipt of payments under the Aid to Families With Dependent Children program, Keep assigned the Child Support Enforcement Division (CSED) of the Department of Public Health and Human Services her right to receive child support and her right to enforcement of support. In 1991, CSED served Emery with a Notice of Intent (NOI) to collect the child support payments by referral of his debt to the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) for collection by interception of any federal tax refund owed to Emery. In response to the NOI, Emery timely requested an administrative hearing before CSED, which was granted, but the hearing was indefinitely continued, and no interception was made by the IRS. In 1992, CSED sent a second NOI to Emery, but Emery made no response. In 1992, no interception was made by the IRS. Also in 1992, Emery and Keep executed a stipulated change of their children's custody. In that stipulation, Keep waived her ability to collect child support arrearages, and the District Court approved the stipulation in an order. In 1995, CSED sent a third NOI to Emery notifying him of CSED's intent to collect child support payments by interception of Emery's federal tax refund. In response to the 1995 NOI, Emery requested a hearing before the CSED. Within 8 months from service of the 1995 NOI upon Emery, the Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) held that CSED's assigned right to child support was not affected by the waiver because CSED was not a party to the stipulation. The District Court approved the decision of the ALJ. On a motion for alteration or amendment of the District Court's order, the District Court, relying upon In re Connell v. St., 280 M 491, 930 P2d 88 (1997), held that the delay between Emery's 1991 request for administrative review and the 1996 hearing before the ALJ violated Emery's right to due process of law and his right to the administration of justice without delay. The Supreme Court reviewed its decision in Connell and pointed out that in that case, 44 months elapsed before the ALJ made a decision in response to Connell's request for administrative review of a CSED NOI and that the 44-month lapse denied Connell his constitutional rights to due process and administration of justice without delay. In contrast, the Supreme Court held that the NOI served upon Emery in 1995 in the case before it was a separate proceeding from the NOI served upon him in 1991 and was not, as interpreted by the District Court, a continuation of the 1991 proceeding because the 1991 proceeding was discontinued once the IRS failed to make an interception of the federal tax refund owed to Emery. Further, the Supreme Court pointed out that the various administrative remedies, such as state debt offsets, license suspension, warrants for distraint, and state income withholding, are all separate remedies for the CSED to pursue, and election of one remedy does not preclude pursuit of another remedy after, or at the same time as, the remedy chosen by the CSED until the debt assigned to the CSED is fully paid. Any of the remedies, the Supreme Court held, were subject to the 10-year statute of limitations provided in 27-2-201. The Supreme Court therefore held that because the lapse of time in the case before it was between different proceedings and not within one proceeding and the lapse of time within the 1995 proceeding was reasonable, Emery's right of due process and right to administration of justice without delay were not violated. The Supreme Court also held that because Emery had no right under Montana law to a hearing when no action was being taken by the CSED against him, the failure of the CSED to grant a hearing did not implicate Emery's rights of due process and administration of justice. In response to Emery's argument that the CSED did not act soon enough in initiating its collection action, the Supreme Court held that Art. II, sec. 16, Mont. Const., imposes no requirement that the CSED act "speedily and without delay" within the 10-year statute of limitations provided in 27-2-201, noting that imposition of such a requirement would effectively eliminate that 10-year limitation period. For these reasons, the Supreme Court reversed the decision made by the District Court that Emery's constitutional rights were violated by the decision of the CSED. Emery v. St., 286 M 376, 950 P2d 764, 54 St. Rep. 1454 (1997).

Payment Directly to Purchaser Not Considered Interest: A payment made directly to the purchaser of industrial development revenue bonds by the user-beneficiary of the bond proceeds from the user-beneficiary's own funds did not have to be considered in applying the interest limitation that was contained in 17-5-102 prior to 1981 amendment. 38 A.G. Sale of Bonds at Less Than Face Value: Prior to 1981 amendment removing specific interest rate limitations, the sale of industrial revenue bonds issued pursuant to Title 90, ch. 5, part 1, at a price less than the face value of the bonds did not violate 17-5-102 if the yield of the bonds exceeded the 9% limitation. 38 A.G. Part 4
Long-Range Building Program Bonds

Part Case Notes

Approval by Voters: Issuance of new bonds under 17-5-410 (now repealed) created a liability within the meaning of Art. XIII, sec. 2, 1889 Mont. Const. (now Art. VIII, sec. 8, 1972 Mont. Const.), and must be approved by a vote of the people before the bonds are issued. State ex rel. Ward v. Anderson, 158 M 279, 491 P2d 868 (1971).

Part Attorney General's Opinions

Two-Thirds Majority Required: When a bill authorizing the Department of Administration to incur future lease and/or purchase payments did not pass by a two-thirds majority of each house as required by the Montana Constitution, no legal method or procedure existed for a lease-purchase plan for construction of the building. 35 A.G. Op. 41 (1973).

17-5-405. Debt service account.

Compiler's Comments

1997 Amendment: Chapter 422 deleted former (1), (2), and (3) that read: "(1) From and after the pledge and appropriation of any special tax to the debt service account, as provided and contemplated in this section, 17-5-407, and 17-5-408, such tax shall continue in force and shall be available and shall be pledged and appropriated for the payment of long-range building program bonds, and all moneys received from the collection thereof shall be deposited by the treasurer to the credit of the debt service account.

(2) No special taxes pledged to the debt service account on January 1, 1973, shall be discontinued or diverted to other funds until all bonds issued pursuant to this part prior to that date and the interest thereon have been fully paid or the state's liability thereon has been fully discharged, except to the extent, if any, that the right so to do has been reserved in the resolutions authorizing the issuance of such bonds.

(3) Subject to the provisions of subsections (1) and (2), the state reserves the right to modify from time to time the nature and amount of special taxes to be deposited to the credit of the debt service account"; in (2), at end of second sentence, substituted "credit to the debt service account an amount sufficient to restore the balance from the general fund" for "credit to said account an amount sufficient to restore said balance from the next collections of the special taxes appropriated to said account and from any other collections of taxes appropriated to the general fund, not exceeding the aggregate amount theretofore transferred from the debt service account to the general fund"; adjusted subsection references; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1997.

1983 Amendment: Throughout section, substituted "debt service account" for "sinking fund account".

Case Notes

Approval by Voters: Because portions of the proceeds of the income tax, corporation license tax, and tobacco tax are pledged for the security of bonds issued under this chapter, the issuance of new bonds would create a liability within the meaning of Art. XIII, sec. 2, 1889 Mont. Const. (now Art. VIII, sec. 8, 1972 Mont. Const.), and such bonds may not be issued without approval by a vote of the people. This holding does not have retroactive effect; bonds issued in good faith before November 23, 1971, but without approval by a vote of the electors pursuant to Art. XIII, sec. 2, 1889 Mont. Const. (now Art. VIII, sec. 8, 1972 Mont. Const.), are valid. State ex rel. Ward v. Anderson, 158 M 279, 491 P2d 868 (1971), distinguishing Cottingham v. St. Bd. of Examiners, 134 M 1, 328 P2d 907 (1958).

(2) The legislature, through the enactment of this section, in accordance with Article VIII, section 8, of the Montana constitution, authorizes the creation of a state debt in an amount not to exceed $3,855,242 for loans to political subdivisions and local government entities for water development projects approved in [sections 1 through 3] [not codified] and for funding a reserve for the coal severance tax bonds authorized to fund those projects.

(3) In connection with the issuance of coal severance tax bonds, the board of examiners may pay the principal and interest on the bonds from the debt service account and in all other respects manage and use the funds within each special bond account for the benefit of the bonds. The board of examiners shall exercise its discretion to enhance the marketability of the bonds and to secure the most advantageous financial arrangements for the state.

(4) Earnings on bond proceeds prior to the completion of any loan must be allocated to the debt service account to pay the debt service on the bonds during this period. Earnings in excess of debt service, if any, must be allocated to the water development state special revenue account and may be used for the purposes allowed under 85-1-604(3)(c) [now repealed].

(5) Loan repayments from loans financed with coal severance tax bonds are pledged, dedicated, and appropriated to the debt service account in the state treasury for the benefit of bonds approved for loans under this section." Effective May 5, 1993.

State Debt: Section 17, Ch. 613, L. 1993, required that [section 16] (not codified) receive a three-fourths vote of each house to create state debt and appropriate coal severance tax bond fund deposits. [Section 16] received the necessary three-fourths vote of each house.

Severability: Section 18, Ch. 613, L. 1993, was a severability clause.

Severability Clause: Section 51, Ch. 505, L. 1981, was a severability section.

Part Case Notes

Special Legislation — Permissible When General Act Cannot Be Provided: Plaintiff filed a complaint for declaratory judgment in the Supreme Court seeking to determine the validity of several acts of the Legislature allowing the issuance of state revenue bonds. The bonds would be financed by coal severance taxes to provide proceeds for development of state water resources. Plaintiff contended that the appropriation of funds for favorable loans to a score of small municipalities, water districts, and portions of counties constituted special legislation and was unconstitutional. The court noted that Art. V, sec. 12, Mont. Const., is not absolutely prohibitory. The court noted that the Legislature cannot draft a general act of statewide application providing for the issuance and sale of revenue bonds and at the same time control the way the proceeds are to be spent or loaned except through its direct authorization of projects. The court held that the passage of Ch. 705, L. 1983, was an implementation of Title 85, ch. 1, part 6, and excluded no class of governmental entity. Therefore, those enactments were "general" legislation within the meaning of Art. V, sec. 12, Mont. Const. The court also held sections 5 and 6 of Ch. 705, L. 1983, were valid in any event because even though local in effect, these were provisions for which a general act could not be provided. Grossman v. St., 209 M 427, 682 P2d 1319, 41 St. Rep. 804 (1984).

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 390, L. 2013, provided: "WHEREAS, Article VIII, section 15, of the Montana Constitution requires that "Public retirement systems shall be funded on an actuarially sound basis" and that "Public retirement system assets, including income and actuarially required contributions, shall not be encumbered, diverted, reduced, or terminated and shall be held in trust to provide benefits to participants and their beneficiaries and to defray administrative expenses"; and

WHEREAS, the unprecedented collapse of the financial markets in 2008 through 2009 and the subsequent slow rate of economic recovery have resulted in little or no prospect that current statutory contribution rates together with future market returns will be sufficient to fund the Public Employees' Retirement System on an actuarially sound basis, and current contributions remain insufficient to pay the past and future accruals of retirement benefits for members currently in the system; and

WHEREAS, failure to return the system to a position of actuarially sound funding places the benefits to be paid to current system participants in jeopardy and results in collection of employee contributions for which future benefits may not be guaranteed; and

WHEREAS, the current and increasing level of unfunded liabilities has the potential to compromise the credit ratings of the state of Montana and of local government entities, including public school districts; and

WHEREAS, because reasonable increases in employer contributions and reasonable reductions in benefits for future participants alone will not be sufficient to return the system to a position of actuarially sound funding, a reasonable increase in contributions for current participants is necessary to help return the system to a position of actuarially sound funding; and

WHEREAS, during the past two legislative sessions and interims, the Legislature, interim committees, the retirement system board and staff, and the Governor's office have analyzed and enacted alternatives for returning the system to a position of actuarially sound funding without raising contract impairment issues for current members, which have failed to reduce system costs enough to restore the system to actuarial soundness; and

WHEREAS, in light of significant strains on the Montana economy, on state and local government budgets, and on taxpayers, a modest supplemental contribution rate increase of 1% imposed on current members, with an appropriate mechanism to terminate the supplemental contribution rate as system funding improves and in conjunction with additional employer and state contributions, is, pursuant to the language of U.S. Trust Company of New York v. New Jersey, 431 U.S. 1 (1977), concerning contract impairment, reasonable and necessary, is for a valid public purpose, and is the least impairing alternative available to the Legislature as it seeks to fulfill its constitutional obligation to ensure that the retirement system is funded in an actuarially sound manner."

The provisions of this section do not affect the authorizations contained in section 10, Chapter 722, Laws of 1991." Case Notes

1999 Coal Producer's License Tax Violative of Constitutional Coal Severance Tax Provisions: By simple majority vote, the 1999 Legislature passed House Bill No. 260, which created a license tax on the production of coal and allocated revenue from the tax to various state programs. Several legislators challenged the validity of the new tax, contending that by creating a license tax on the same taxable event for which the state coal severance tax is imposed and then providing a credit against the severance tax in an amount slightly greater than the amount of the license tax, the Legislature simply diverted what in substance and character are coal severance taxes to purposes other than the coal tax trust fund, in violation of Art. IX, sec. 5, Mont. Const. The Supreme Court agreed, noting that the only difference between the coal severance tax and the coal producer's license tax was the purpose for which each was allocated. A tax on the production of natural resources is characterized by the nature of the activity upon which the tax is imposed, and the effect of a legislative assessment is more important than its label in determining the character of the tax. Legislative imposition of a tax can become unlawful when done to accomplish an unlawful end, which was the case in this instance because the coal producer's license tax diverted production-based coal severance taxes for an unconstitutional purpose. Although the Legislature has the authority to determine the percentage of the coal severance tax, in this case, the Legislature simply gave a different name to the same tax and thereby diverted revenue to causes other than the coal tax trust fund. A coal severance tax by any other name is just as dedicated. By diverting and allocating coal severance tax revenue in a manner contrary to the requirement in Art. IX, sec. 5, and by doing so without the required three-fourths vote of each house of the Legislature, House Bill No. 260 violated the constitution; thus, the state was enjoined from enforcing House Bill No. 260. Attorney General's Opinions

Investment Earnings Not to Be Credited to Science and Technology Development Account: Investment earnings on funds earmarked to be loaned but not yet paid out to a loan recipient are not payback funds or loan repayments within the context of 17-6-201 or 90-3-305 (now repealed). Therefore, those earnings may not be credited to the science and technology development account to be used to cover costs of administering programs under the Montana Science and Technology Financing Act. 45 A.G. Op. 28 (1994).

Three-Fourths Vote Required to Appropriate Severance Tax Trust Fund Income: Income deposited in the coal severance tax permanent fund under this section becomes part of the principal of the trust. As such, the Legislature may not appropriate by a simple majority the income and interest earned on the trust fund since July 1, 1983; rather, a three-fourths vote of each house is required. (See 1989 amendment.) 42 A.G. Op. 110 (1988).

Case Notes

Bonded Debt — Not Invalid as Continuing Appropriation: Plaintiff filed a complaint for declaratory judgment in the Supreme Court seeking to determine the validity of several acts of the Legislature allowing the issuance of state revenue bonds. The bonds would be financed by coal severance taxes to provide proceeds for development of state water resources. Plaintiff contended that this was an invalid "continuing appropriation". Plaintiff contended that the 48th Legislature by enacting the program could not constitutionally bind future Legislatures to "appropriate" the coal tax money necessary to service the bonds; that the principal of the coal severance tax trust funds had been invaded for years; and that each bond issue requires a separate appropriation of coal severance tax revenues by a three-fourths vote of each house of the Legislature. The Supreme Court harmonized the various constitutional provisions involved. The court held that the Legislature can authorize long-term borrowing by issuing and selling bonds and can provide for the servicing for such indebtedness by repayment or refunding. The court found nothing making the coal severance tax trust fund immune from use as a source of funding for long-term state bonds. When the Legislature validly acts to establish a debt, that indebtedness becomes a state obligation extending over the life of the indebtedness, and every succeeding Legislature has an unavoidable duty to provide for it in the manner required by the authorizing law. Case Notes

Amount of Funding Indefinite — Certainty Upon Sale of Bonds: Plaintiff filed a complaint for declaratory judgment in the Supreme Court seeking to determine the validity of several acts of the Legislature allowing the issuance of state revenue bonds. The plaintiff contended that H.B. 846, L. 1981, whereby the Legislature authorized issuance of up to $10 million in coal severance tax bonds for the state's share of construction costs of Tongue River Dam rehabilitation, violated Art. VIII, sec. 14, and Art. IX, sec. 5, Mont. Const., in that the amount of money necessary to finance the project was not definite or certain. The court found that at the time of the bill's passage, it was impossible for the Legislature to determine the exact cost. The authorization is contingent on legislative approval of a detailed project plan. Sections 17-5-709 and 17-5-710 place limits on the bonds that may be issued. The court found that no Legislature can be expected to predict the interest rate which will meet the market for the issuance of state bonds. The court found that when the bonds are issued and sold, the interest rate to be paid by the state will become certain. The amounts necessary to service and repay the indebtedness will be definite. The court relied on State ex rel. Toomey v. St. Bd. of Examiners, 74 M 1, 238 P 316 (1925), which held "that is certain which can be made certain", to uphold the authorization for the project. Grossman v. St., 209 M 427, 682 P2d 1319, 41 St. Rep. 804 (1984).
